PRESIDENT TAKES UP STRIKE THREAT IN STEEL INDUSTRY; CONFERENCES HAVE EASED THE GENERAL LABOR SITUATION; SENATE COMMITTEE ADDS 3 MORE AMENDMENTS TO TREATY

DECLINE IN FOOD PRICES DUE SOON, WILLIAMS SAYS

DEALERS TRYING TO HELP

ARMY FOOD SALES GO ON

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams, in general charge of the efforts the Government is making here to enlist the co-operation of dealers as well as consumers in the fight against high prices, announced last night that he was well pleased with the way the war on the high cost of living was progressing.

In making public the third of the semi-weekly fair price lists issued by the Fair Price Committee Mr. Williams pointed to the fact that, although the prices in general were only slightly, if any, lower than they were when the agitation started, nevertheless they were stable now and would go no higher.

"Lower prices are coming," said the Food Administrator; "make no mistake about that, and, with the hearty support we are getting from dealers as well as consumers, I should say that in a very short time we will see a gradual decline in the cost of most of the commodities necessary under our conditions of life.

"A number of persons have complained to me that the price of food does not go down. It could not be expected it would at once. You remember when the Attorney General talked to the Fair Price Committee two weeks ago he did not tell us that we would be able to reduce prices right away. His point was that the Government had to stop the vicious cycle of rising prices, rising wages, rising costs. He told us then that we had to get hold of things at once and hold prices stable until the pressure exerted would slowly drive them down. An analysis of this fair price list shows that in New York City the prices are being held fairly level over a period of more than two weeks now, and I think they will continue to remain so."

Dealers Observing Fair Prices.

Mr. Williams said that investigations into conditions all over the city had convinced him that in the main the dealers are observing the price regulations they have agreed to which are expressed in the fair price list. With the meat, he said, it was harder to fix a price for the retailers inasmuch as the wholesale butchers had as yet agreed to no price list. However, with the fair margins of profit made public any housewife who felt that she was being forced to pay exhorbitant prices, said the Food Administrator, could demand to be shown the dealer's bill from the wholesaler. The totals on such a bill with the fair margins added will show what ought to be charged the consumer.

"The agitation has undoubtedly put a stop to hoarding in this city," said Mr. Williams. "The risk of being discovered and branded as a profiteer just now is too great for most men to attempt it. Also with the system of fai. prices we are working under, the hoarder bringing his ware out into the open market is held to a fixed price. That fixed price is going down, too, slowly but surely.

"With the prices stable we are now going to concentrate all our attention to forcing reductions in the cost to the consumer of everything. To this end the wholesalers are being enlisted as well as the retailer. We will, in case a retailer refuses to abide by our lists, have recourse to the wholesaler who will refuse to supply the dealer in question with goods. There is one step further we have to go and that is to the producer. When that is accomplished our chain of food is complete and we will be able to point without hesitation to the cause of the high cost of living."

Federal Food Bureau Favored.

The Food Administrator said he favored the creation of some sort of Federal bureau to keep the people in touch with the food situation all over the country.

"I should have it modeled after the Weather Bureau," he said. "Then data could be collected by agents all over the United States who would keep the citizens informed of the conditions in production and consumption of foodstuffs. It would be in the nature of a National Fair Price Committee."

Mr. Williams said that he had received complaints from women living in Coney Island that the dealers there were paying no attention to the fair price list figures given out by the committee. Two

Foch Thanks Britain for Aid in Transporting Our Troops

LONDON, Aug. 29.—Marshal Foch, in a letter of thanks to the British Parliament, says:

"If I was able to bring the war to a speedy conclusion, it was due to the sustained determination of the British Government to reinforce and keep up in 1918 sufficient effectives and give powerful assistance to the transport of American divisions."

DILLINGHAM QUITS; HIPPODROME OPENS

SHUBERT HOUSES STAY DARK

Producing Managers Give Out Arguments That Were Presented to Gompers.

Charles B. Dillingham, whose membership in the Producing Managers' Association was the cause of the strike of 412 stagehands at the Hippodrome on Thursday, resigned yesterday as managing director of that institution, and announcement was made immediately that the Hippodrome would resume performances of "Happy Days" on Monday afternoon.

The following statement was given out at the Hippodrome at midnight last night:

"Charles B. Dillingham's wishes for the welfare of the Hippodrome employes, which caused him to resign from the big playhouse, will be gratified. After a conference last night between the owners and the various organizations of employes, it was arranged to resume the run of 'Happy Days' at the Hippodrome Monday, reopening with the holiday matinée."

The Hippodrome is owned and operated by the United States Realty and Improvement Company, which, although it had no connection with the Producing Managers' Association, employed Charles B. Dillingham as Managing Director. Mr. Dillingham, who was beginning his fifth season as Managing Director of the Hippodrome, sent his resignation to the Realty Company yesterday morning, declaring that he preferred to resign rather than to be the cause of the closing of the theatre.

Those present at the conference at the Hippodrome last night were H. O. Winsor, Vice President of the United States Realty and Improvement Company; R. H. Burnside, general stage director of the Hippodrome; Mark W. Luescher, business manager; Charles C. Shay, President of the Stagehands' Union; Harry Mountford and James William Fitzpatrick of the Associated Actors and Artists of America; Frank Gillmore and Marie Dressler of the Actors' Equity Association; representatives of the Musicians' Union, and others.

As Reported to Gompers.

The Producing Managers' Association, through Arthur Hopkins, last night issued a detailed statement of the reasons for its position, and explaining, in the words of Mr. Hopkins, "why it could not recognize the Actors' Equity Association." George M. Cohan and Mr. Hopkins conferred with Samuel Gompers in Washington on Thursday, and the statement is a résumé of their position as it was put before Mr. Gompers.

"A condition like this can only mean chaos and, finally, death to the theatre," the statement said. "The entire producing business is built on individual contract between actor and manager. Productions are planned far ahead with certain actors in mind. Frequently productions are long postponed until such time as certain actors are free. The manager believes that the success of such productions is made more certain by the help of these actors, and, naturally, if success follows, the manager wants to feel certain of the services of these actors for a definite period. The actor before he can honestly enter into a contract for such certain period, must know that no influence that can interfere with his fulfillment of that contract can possibly arise. He cannot serve two masters—the theatre and unionism. If he is true to the honorable obligations of unionism, he has no right to make any definite personal contract for the theatre. His duty to unionism may at any time upset it.

"The greatest injustice the manager could inflict upon the theatre and the actor would be approval of the actor's present predicament. A nominally uncertain business would become so helplessly hazardous that no man who regarded slight security as essential could venture into it. The business might easily be exposed to a series of strikes. The lesson of the present strike is enough to demonstrate that two or three more of them would ruin the theatrical business and reduce it to the lowest vitality it has known since its infancy. The substitution of new managements or actor-managements would in no way

CITES CITY'S CONTRACT

DEFENDS MOVE AS RELIEF

Mayor Hylan wrote yesterday to Public Service Commissioner Nixon demanding that he set aside his order granting an increased fare and the zoning system to the New York and North Shore Traction Company, and threatening to place the matter before Governor Smith if he failed to act.

Mayor Hylan asserted that the commission's act was entirely illegal. In a reply Commissioner Nixon defended the legality of his action, which was taken after proof that the company's revenue was much less than its operating expenses, and that the company intended to quit operation and abandon its property next week if no relief were obtained.

Mayor Hylan quoted from the contract of the company with the city a passage which stated that "the fare for any passenger upon such railroad shall not exceed 5 cents, and the company shall not charge any passenger more than 5 cents for one continuous ride from any point on said railroad, or a line or branch operating in connection therewith, to any point thereto, or any connecting line or branch thereto, within the limits of the city."

The Mayor then proceeded to quote from a decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of Quimby vs. the Public Service Commission, in which the court said:

"The Public Service Commission has no authority to hear and determine any such application when contract between city and railway provides that only 5-cent fare can be charged."

The Mayor attacked the action of the commission as an entering wedge for further fare increases, saying:

"Should the order issued by you be permitted to stand, nothing would prevent you from issuing orders increasing the fare to 8, 10, or 15 cents on the other lines in the city which are now held by contract to a 5-cent fare with the people."

The Mayor concluded his letter by saying:

"As Mayor of the City of New York, I request you to revoke and set aside this order for the reasons above set forth. If this request made by me as Mayor, acting for the people of the City of New York is not complied with, I shall feel that I would be remiss in my duty to the people of the City of New York if I did not immediately call your action to the attention of the Governor of the State of New York."

Denies Exceeding Power.

Public Service Commissioner Nixon, in reply, denied that he had overriden the city authorities, asserting that he had acted because of the existence of an emergency. After arguing in favor of his legal right to make the order, he said:

"If you have any doubt in your mind as to my full power to grant the relief given, you have only to ask the Corporation Counsel to bring the matter before the proper tribunal for a decision."

Commissioner Nixon reminded the Mayor that at a public hearing held by the Mayor at Flushing in June, 1918, not a single voice had been raised against the fare increase. He continued:

"The operating company had not money to buy coal for further operation; the employes were clamoring for pay equal to that given elsewhere for similar service. In fact a stopping of operation was imminent and unescapable. Possessing full powers in the premises, I could not permit this calamity to fall upon the people of this section of the city.

"That some relief be afforded the company was only incidental to the broader purpose in view, which was to prevent the serious inconvenience which would be the inevitable result of the discontinuance of this service. School children, working men and many who have built homes along the lines would be compelled to walk long distances to get to any means of transportation whatsoever and to pay rates of fare fixed by the Federal Government greatly in excess of the rates allowed by the commission's order.

"A part of this same system, extending beyond the city limits has, under the order of the Public Service Com-

Danes Claim $25,000,000 for Loss of Ships in War

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29.—Claims against the belligerent powers amounting to more than 100,000,000 kroner, (approximately $25,000,000,) have been lodged with the Minister of Commerce by the Wholesale Merchants' Association and the Council of Ministry.

The claimants allege that losses to this amount were inflicted contrary to international law during the war.

NEW RAILROAD PLAN OFFERED BY BRYAN

SEES GOOD IN PLUMB PLAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—William Jennings Bryan appeared before the House Interstate Commerce Committee this afternoon with a plan of his own for the future control of the railroads. Mr. Bryan advocated a "dual system," under which the Government would own and operate one large trunk line, reaching into all States, with the various States owning and operating the portions of other roads within their boundaries.

After he concluded his testimony, Mr. Bryan was asked if he intended to be a candidate for the Presidential nomination, and whether he would advocate the insertion by the Democratic party of a Government ownership plan in its next national platform. So far as the question of being a candidate was concerned, Mr. Bryan said he had "heard nothing of this." Regarding the possible adoption of a Government ownership plank in the Democratic platform, he replied:

"The plan I have proposed has not been agitated among the people yet, but the time is ripe for its consideration."

Mr. Bryan presented his scheme as an "alternative" to the Plumb plan, in which he said he saw "many good things," but which he feared because of a possible centralization of power at Washington.

"But if I had to choose between private ownership and nationalization, I would take the risk of nationalization," he declared.

"The railroads must be considered a monopoly," said Mr. Bryan. "Private ownership is indefensible and intolerable. The monopoly must be a Government monopoly for all the people, instead of a private monopoly for a few of the people."

Three arguments advanced against private monopoly, which Mr. Bryan considered "unanswerable," he said, were, first, that it destroys all incentive to competition; second, it creates a group of men who do not serve the public truly, and, third, that the "victims" of private monopoly become discouraged, and "in the breasts of the discouraged is sown the seed of anarchy."

Sees Much to the Plumb Plan.

"I do not care to express a full opinion of it," he said. "I agree entirely with the fundamental of Government ownership. I do not think it unfair that the 2,000,000 employes should have a representation of one-third on the Board of Directors. The railway magnates had a representation under private ownership of three-thirds of their boards, without giving labor or the public any representation, and we should not be alarmed at the possible consequences of allowing one-third representation to the employes. But I do not see why the 20,000 officials of the railways should be allowed one-third representation.

"It has also been said that if the Government owned the roads politics might be used in the control," said Mr. Bryan. "I can't see why this argument should come from the advocates of private ownership. Politics could not be worse under the Government than under private control.

"There has not been a day in twenty-five years when the railroads were not in politics. They have elected Governors, legislators, Senators and Judges. They have controlled party conventions. Their lobbyists have been in the national capital corrupting all who could be corrupted and coercing all who could be coerced. The railroad magnates have been, and are, and will be in politics.

Tells of Railroads in Politics.

"I know their machinery. They have tried to take the power from the States and to concentrate it at Washington, because it would be easier to control it that way. I know the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio had lobbyists here when the new station was built, and they used their passes to secure the

FIRST BLOW AT COVENANT

Also Restrict Power of Our Representative on Reparation Commission.

EXPECT REPORT WEDNESDAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The Foreign Relations Committee today added three amendments to its string of textual changes in the Peace Treaty, and all but cleared the way for work on the program of reservations. After today's executive session, only one amendment remained on the committee's calendar—Senator Fall's proposal to strike from the treaty the whole of Part XIII., the labor section.

Amendments adopted today were the Johnson proposal giving the United States a vote equal to that of Great Britain in the Council and Assembly of the League of Nations; that of Senator Moses to prohibit any self-governing colony or dependency of an empire voting in any dispute to which the mother country is a party; that of Senator Fall limiting the powers of the American member of the Reparation Commission.

The 9 to 8 alignment which marked the adoption of previous amendments prevailed again today, Senator McCumber voting with the Democrats against every proposal to alter the text.

First Inroad on Covenant.

Today's action marked the first inroad into the League Covenant. Senator Johnson of California called up his amendment soon after the committee met in executive session—its second meeting of the day—and an hour's discussion ensued, during which Senator McCumber offered a substitute amendment. This was defeated, and then by the 9 to 8 vote the Johnson amendment was adopted.

The amendment adds the following language at the end of Article III. of the League covenant:

> Provided that when any member of the League has or possesses self-governing dominions or colonies or parts of empire which are also members of the League, the United States shall have votes in the assembly or council of the League numerically equal to the aggregate vote of such member of the League and its self-governing dominions and colonies and parts of empire in the council or assembly of the League.

The effect of this amendment is to give the United States six votes in the assembly as at present constituted under the covenant, equaling the vote given the British Empire with its self-governing colonies and India, which in the committee's opinion is a "part of the Empire."

The words "part of empire" were added to the Johnson proposal to cover the case of India. Senator Lodge pointed out that India had been made a signatory of the treaty and given a vote in the assembly "by sheer force," as she is neither a colony nor a territory, but simply a part of the empire.

Discussing this amendment following its adoption, Senator Lodge said he would "like to see any man go out on the stump in the United States and say the United States should not have as many votes in the League as Great Britain has. It would be a difficult thing to defend."

Explain Equal Vote Provision.

The provision for an equal vote in the council was included, committee members explained, because the League covenant provides means for changing the membership of the council, either by increasing its size or by replacing members. Under this provision, Canada or some other British colony might become a member of the council as well as of the assembly, and in such an event the Johnson amendment would protect the United States being outvoted in the body which admittedly is to be the active force of the League, if it is to have active force.

Senator McCumber's substitute for Mr. Johnson's amendment was voted down by 3 votes to 10. Senator McCumber, Republican, and Hitchcock and Swanson, Democrats, voted for it, and all the other Republicans present, with Senator Williams, Democrat, opposed it. Mr. McCumber's amendment would have added at the end of the eighth paragraph of Article 13 this provision:

> Whenever the case referred to the assembly involves a dispute between one member of the League and another member whose self-governing dominions or dependencies are also represented in the assembly, neither the dominant member nor its dominions nor dependencies may join in

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Two resolutions were offered in the House today expressing the sense of the House that President Wilson should remain in Washington to attend to official duties here in connection with labor troubles and the high cost of living campaign.

Represenative Strong of Kansas read such a resolution on the floor, with the Democrats shouting: "Are you afarid to hear him tell the country about Republican opposition to the League of Nations?"

Representative Rodenberg of Illinois was the author of another resolution, which reads:

> Whereas, The situation with reference to the railroads and labor generally is of such pressing importance as to indicate the necessity for immediate steps to bring capital and labor together for a better understanding; and
> Whereas, In compliance with the recent request of the President of the United States, Congress will shortly have adopted legislation giving the Administration the same control over wearing apparel and other necessaries of life that it has had for more than a year over the hoarding of and profiteering in food products; and

FRENCH CHAMBER TO RATIFY TREATY

Score of Deputies Who Were Expected to Speak Announce Decision to Refrain.

TAKE CABINET BY SURPRISE

Government to Address the House on Tuesday—Action Expected by Friday.

PARIS, Aug. 29, (Associated Press.)—The general discussion of the ratification of the Peace Treaty came to a dramatic conclusion this afternoon in the Chamber of Deputies, when, after a stirring speech by Albert Thomas, former member of the War Council, more than twenty Deputies, who were expected to take part in the debate, announced their decision to refrain from speaking.

The Government was plainly embarrassed, all the Ministers gathering around Premier Clemenceau. They conferred for several minutes, and finally André Tardieu arose and said that the Government had looked for a discussion lasting well into next week, but was ready to proceed, and would require an hour and a half.

"We will listen to you," came from all parts of the house.

Jean Bon, Socialist and Extremist, came to the rescue of the Government by the very bitterness of his attack, refusing to hear Captain Tardieu or any subordinate, and calling upon Premier Clemenceau himself. He declared he would hear no one else.

This made it a question of confidence, and all the Government's supporters rallied to the Premier. The sitting was then adjourned until Tuesday.

René Viviani and Louis Barthou, both former Premiers, will speak on that day. M. Viviani told The Associated Press that he expected the treaty would be ratified on Thursday or Friday next.

In the course of the debate before this was brought to a sudden end Deputy Maurice Barrès criticised the treaty for failing to make a Rhine frontier. He advocated French propaganda and the dissemination of French literature, art and language, so that when the fifteen years of occupation had ended the Rhine valley might become a sort of Franco-German autonomous country, which would afford protection against another Prussian attack. He said he would vote for ratification of the treaty.

M. Albert Thomas, who announced that he also would vote for ratification, advocated the neutralization of the Rhine valley under occupation, with the League of Nations in control, and the capital of the League at Cologne or Aix-la-Chapelle. He argued that the former German Emperor must be brought to trial in order to establish fully the responsibilities for the war.

The children's father, who was German, was killed in the war, and the mother's mind was affected by grief. Mme. Schumann-Heink's idea was to make Americans of her grandchildren, but the American passport regulations proved an insurmountable obstacle.

KNOX COUNSELS REJECTING TREATY

NOT A TREATY, BUT A TRUCE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—That safety for the United States lies in utter rejection of the pending peace treaty; that in any other course lies involvement in "centuries of blood-letting" and "war more woeful and devastating than the one we have just closed," was the view expressed by Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, in his speech before the Senate today.

He urged that the United States "decline to be a party to it at all," and took issue with President Wilson on the point that peace with Germany could not be brought about by some other means, notably a Congressional resolution declaring the state of war at an end. The passage of such a resolution, Mr. Knox said, was clearly within the power of Congress and would thoroughly meet the needs of the situation, so far as providing a basis for resumption of commercial relations was concerned.

America, he asserted, ought to have got out of Europe immediately after the armistice. Even now, after American negotiators had made the United States a party to the world settlement, this nation should withdraw itself, he said, by renouncing all participation in the organizations set up to carry out treaty provisions, renouncing all indemnities and shares in German territory, and should "reserve complete liberty of action, either independently or in conjunction with other powers, in taking such steps as we determine wise for preserving the peace."

Instead of joining the League of Nations, the United States, Mr. Knox said, should carry out the spirit of the act of 1916, which authorized the President to convene the nations of the world to establish a code of international law, reduce armaments, establish an international tribunal, "and go as far as possible in the direction of securing peace through justice, through a league to which all the world are parties to its formation. This would be a fitting, generous, and dignified exit from a situation in which primarily we had no direct concern."

The Pennsylvania Senator said there was danger the treaty might prove to be so harsh it would "kill the goose that lays the golden egg," by which he meant, he said, that Germany by all accounts would not be able to pay the bill tendered her, and the question would arise how far her conquerors could afford to go in enforcing the peace terms.

He criticised President Wilson for what he termed withholding from the Senate information asked concerning the Peace Conference and other treaties now being completed. He argued that this secrecy appeared to indicate that there were things that must be concealed from the American people. What these things were he said he would like to know.

Mr. Knox expressed gratification that the Senate debates had developed many facts regarding the treaty of which the public, which had not read or digested the whole vast document, would otherwise have been kept in ignorance. "The people now may finally hope," he said, "to see the whole of the great, gaunt tragedy into which those whom they had charged with protecting them were about to betray them."

"I wish at the outset," said Senator

GOMPERS ALSO SEES WILSON

No Announcement Made but the President Is Expected to Act.

STEEL STRIKE IS DELAYED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—A conference was held at the White House this afternoon between President Wilson, Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and the members of the steel workers' committee, as a result of which, it was predicted, developments of nation-wide importance in the relations of capital and labor may be expected within the next few days, probably not later than Labor Day.

The general labor situation following the conference was described as "momentarily easier." It is understood that the steel workers' committee will endeavor to prevent a strike of large proportions in the steel mills, at least until President Wilson has had an opportunity to use his good offices. The situation on the Pacific Coast railroad lines is improving, and the leaders of the railroad shop crafts also are satisfied that their members throughout the nation will not strike for the present.

Developments on Labor Day (Monday) and the day following may go far toward the success or failure of the efforts of the more conservative officials of the American Federation of Labor, headed by Mr. Gompers, who are striving apparently to prevent disastrous strikes pending the Government campaign to reduce living costs and the formulation of a constructive program to meet other features of the critical situation.

These labor officials feel that they will be able to prevent the radical elements from obtaining the ascendency through the means of Labor Day demonstrations, which might be followed by the spread of the strike spirit. That agitators of the I. W. W. type will endeavor to make the most of any opportunity presented to stir up trouble and to discredit the present national leaders of the American Federation of Labor is not doubted, but the leaders are counting upon the sober-minded among the workers to dominate the situation.

Steel Situation Critical.

Admittedly the situation as regards the steel workers is critical as a result of the continued refusal of Judge E. H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, to receive the representatives of the men. The fact that President Wilson did receive the committee which was turned down by Judge Gary was looked upon here today as of great importance and significance.

The conference at the White House this afternoon lasted for about forty-five minutes, and the President made a careful review of the situation in the steel mills, as well as other features of the labor unrest. At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Gompers told the newspaper correspondents that they must look to the President for any statement concerning the deliberations. There was no announcement tonight from the White House.

From the attitude of the members of the Steel Workers' Committee and such other information as could be gained it was understood that the workers in the steel mills would be asked to remain at their posts temporarily. One labor official when asked for his opinion concerning the danger of a general strike tomorrow or following Labor Day, as a result of the vote taken by the men, replied:

"We have authority if negotiations are pending to delay the date for a strike."

This statement was made after the Steel Workers' Committee had returned from the White to the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor and had discussed the situation with the Executive Council of the Federation. The general belief was, therefore, that President Wilson had told Mr. Gompers and the committee that he would take some action. In this connection it was pointed ot that, inasmuch as Judge Gary had flatly refused to negotiate further, any negotiations which might warrant the leaders to counsel delay in calling a strike must involve President Wilson.

Expect Message Before Monday.

There were many here who expressed the opinion that in view of the critical situation in the steel mills, and the danger of an effort upon the part of radical agitators to stir up trouble on Labor Day, President Wilson will issue a statement of principles not later than Monday. It is possible that such a mes-

[illegible] might come earlier in anticipation of Labor Day.

Considerable pressure has been brought to bear upon the President to call capital and labor together to discuss the demands confronting the nation and to endeavor to arrive at a solution. This project has been brought forward by such officials as Secretary Lane of the Department of the Interior, and Senator Poindexter. Labor leaders, who were at first inclined to oppose such a program, feeling that it would not bring the quick relief which so many of their men demanded, are said to be giving the matter more thought. President Wilson, however, has not indicated what course he will follow.

The members of the steel workers' committee, it is reported, are anxious that President Wilson should take up with Judge Gary the matter of conditions in the steel industry and request that he receive the representatives of organized labor. While this is possible, it seems more probable at this time that the President will make known his beliefs in the form of an open message to the country.

Speedy action of some sort seems imperative if radical members of the American Federation of Labor, who would like nothing better than to overthrow the influence of President Gompers, are to be prevented from gaining control. It is no secret that there has been an organized anti-Gompers movement among some of the labor elements, which believed that Mr. Gompers was not sufficiently radical to meet their desires. During the war, however, President Wilson gave sympathetic support to Mr. Gompers, and also gave him an important mission in connection with the Peace Conference, thus keeping the balance of power in his hands.

Gompers Still in Control.

At the present time Mr. Gompers appears to be still in control of the situation, and his return to Washington has had a tremendous effect upon the attitude of the other labor leaders here in connection with the spirit of unrest which reached its height with the advancing cost of living.

Many of the employes in the steel mills controlled by the United States Steel Corporation have shown a spirit of bitterness toward the attitude taken by Judge Gary, and the task of holding them in check during the last few days has not been easy. An intimation of the feeling which exists was given in this telegram, sent today by the members of the steel workers' committee:

> The steel workers are being discriminated against. This wholesale discrimination is for the purpose of forcing strikes. The steel companies are doing the same in many other places, but in spite of this persecution try to hold men at work until all amicable means of settlement have been exhausted.
> The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor is negotiating for a conference with President Wilson today. Steel companies show by their action a determination to force the issue before the President has hardly a chance to pass on the merits of the controversy. We are doing all possible to secure justice for the men and to prevent the national disaster of a general strike of the steel industry.

There is a report here that the steel interests as represented by Judge Gary are refusing to receive the committee because they object to the radical attitude of some of the workers, who they charge of desiring nothing less than the closed shop. If this feature of the situation is cleared up, it has been stated, the way may be paved for a meeting between some representatives of the workers and the steel interests.

Railroad Situation Better.

As to the general railroad situation, there was a distinct feeling of relief today and the prospects were brighter than at any time for weeks. It is felt that, for the moment at least, the warning sent out last night by Director General Hines, with the approval of President Wilson, that the railroads on the west coast would be operated if all the power of the Government was required to accomplish this, had a telling effect.

Reports from the West Coast were generally favorable and indicated that a large number of men were returning to their posts. The bad spots were Fresno and Los Angeles, both in California. One report stated that the Santa Fé north of, but not including Fresno, was in operation; another that the Western Pacific lines were clear, as were also the Southern Pacific lines north and east of, but not including Fresno. The yard situation in San Francisco was reported as normal. Service in and out of Los Angeles was still tied up tonight.

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor will not reconvene until Sept. 3.

Railroad Officials Intend to Resume Train Service Today.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 29.—The four local Brotherhoods, including trainmen, conductors, engineers, and firemen, who have been on strike, tonight voted by a two-thirds majority to return to work at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Operation of trains on the Southern Pacific, Santa Fé and St. Lake Railroads will start tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock, officials of these roads announced. Railroad officials said trains would be operated with crews available under Government protection if the majority of the men do not report.

CHICAGO SHOPMEN MAY BALK.

Leader Says They Will Refuse to Accept the President's Terms.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—President Wilson will not get the support of Chicago railroad shopmen, according to M. L. Hawver, President of the Chicago District Council, who adds that the men are "tired of being double-crossed by the officers of the Grand Lodge of Shopmen."

Despite the fact that the Grand Lodge officers were elected by the workers, Hawver says the men are ready to bolt the organization.

"The Grand Lodge officers have never had the hearty support of the men," he said, "and the shopmen do not feel the officers were authorized to enter into the agreement with President Wilson."

CABLE OPERATORS STRIKE.

Enough of Postal's Force Loyal to Keep Up Service.

A number of cable operators of the Postal Telegraph - Commercial Cable Company went on strike this morning just after midnight.

At the offices of the company it was stated that not all operators had quit, and that the company was handling its cable business, but with delay. The manager of the cable office said that he had no authority to tell the number of men who had left their posts or what their demands were.

Secretary William J. Deegan of the company said that he had not heard of the strike, and that the men had made no demands as far as he knew.

"Cable operators," he said, "are receiving a 30 per cent. bonus to meet the high cost of living, a month's vacation with pay and look forward to a pension without paying anything towards it themselves. With overtime some of them make more than $200 a month. If any number have stuck it has been for some cause which has arisen suddenly, and very likely it will be adjusted quickly."

ELEVATOR WORKERS STRIKE

Two hundred machinists and twenty patternmakers struck yesterday at the A. B. See Elevator Company's factory, Jersey City, for an eight-hour day, 80 cents an hour, and a closed shop. The men made a demand a few days ago and Mr. See published an advertisement in newspapers denouncing walking delegates who had brought trouble into a business he had conducted peaceably for thirty-six years.

Early in the Summer the pay was advanced to 69 cents an hour for a nine and a half hour day with the condition an eight-hour day would be granted on Oct. 1. About twenty machinists and other employes refused to go out and were reported to have been put at clerical work and repairs. The strikers put out pickets who were compelled to keep at a distance by a detail of policemen.

Stops Injunction Against Picketing.

Supreme Court Justice Guy denied yesterday the application by the Window Cleaners' Employers' Protective Association to continue a temporary injunction restraining the members of the Window Cleaners' Union from picketing the places of business of the employers pending the strike. The court ruled that no facts had been shown to disclose that illegal acts had been performed by the strikers.

SENATE GETS MORE PEACE DOCUMENTS

DISCUSSING WILSON'S TOUR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Through official and unofficial channels, the Senate today got more information concerning the peace settlement, while, for the present, at least, still more information for which it had asked was denied.

President Wilson submitted officially the treaty with Poland, which was signed at Versailles on June 28, the same day as the treaty with Germany, and which is a part of the settlement by the terms of the German compact. He also sent in the protocol between the United States, Belgium, Great Britain and France on the one hand, and Germany on the other, regarding the occupation of the Rhine Provinces by allied forces, pending the carrying out of the terms of the treaty.

His message made no mention of two other matters concerning which Senator Lodge wrote him, by direction of the Foreign Relations Committee, on Aug. 23—a declaration signed in July, regarding payment for allied armies of occupation, and the four treaties now being completed at Paris, namely, those with Austria, Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria.

The Polish treaty and the protocol were the official pieces of information received. Unofficially—as these had previously been presented—Senator Knox today put into the record the text of an air convention drawn up by an interallied commission appointed for the purpose, on which the United States was represented. A note accompanying it stated that the commission had decided to publish it for the information of the public. But, while it had been presented to the British Parliament and the French Chamber, Senator Knox asserted, it had not heretofore been given to the American public for their information.

Senator Lodge, in commenting on this, said that if the document was considered of public interest to such an extent that its publication before it had been officially signed was thought wise the people of the United States surely should have had a look at it, at least as soon as the people of Great Britain, France, and the other countries it was intended to bind.

What the Committee Asked For.

That it might appear just how much of the information recently asked for by the Senate President Wilson had withheld in submitting his reply today, Senator Lodge tonight made public the letter he wrote the President, following out the committee's instructions. The letter reads:

> My Dear Mr. President: I am instructed by the Committee on Foreign Relations to say to you that they would be much indebted if you would send to the Senate the treaty with Poland, signed at Versailles on the 28th of June; the agreement between the United States, Belgium, the British Empire, and France, of the one part, and Germany of the other part, with regard to the military occupation of the territories of the Rhine, also signed at Versailles on the 28th of June; and the declaration of the 16th of June, signed by you, M. Clemenceau, and Mr. Lloyd George. The treaty with Poland is referred to in the treaty with Germany, and the other two documents appear to be concerned exclusively with the subject of the treaty with Germany, and the committee, therefore, is desirous of considering them all together in connection with the treaty of peace with Germany.
>
> I am instructed further to say as the treaties with Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey are all closely connected, if not interlocked, with the treaty with Germany, the committee would be obliged, if it is not incompatible with the public interest, if you could send them any drafts or any information in regard to the terms and provisions of those four treaties, which the committee are certain would be of great help to them in expediting action upon the treaty of peace with Germany.
>
> I have the honor to be,
> HENRY CABOT LODGE.

President's Letter to the Senate.

President Wilson's letter to the Senate, which forms the only reply received, is as follows:

> To the Senate: I transmit herewith, with a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to their ratification, the accompanying treaty with Poland, signed at Versailles on the 28th of June; and the agreement between the United States, Belgium, the British Empire, and France on the one part, and Germany on the other part, with regard to the military occupation of the territories of the Rhine, also signed at Versailles on the 28th of June.
>
> This treaty and this convention are ancillary to the treaty of peace with Germany, and I am glad to lay them before the Senate now in order that they may be considered, if possible in connection with that treaty, and also in order that they may serve to throw further light upon the treaty itself.
> WOODROW WILSON.

In commenting on President Wilson's reply today, Senators called attention to the fact that he expressed the hope that the Polish treaty might be considered coincidentally with the German one. That, Senators said, might involve still further delay in reporting the Peace Treaty from the Foreign Relations Committee; but, they added, they did not anticipate that result.

The treaty and the protocol were, at Senator Lodge's request, referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

Members also commented on the fact that, in submitting the Polish treaty, the President did not send in Premier Clemenceau's letter to Paderewski, which was sent the Polish Premier at the time the treaty was completed. This letter accompanied the British text as it was presented to the House of Commons and as it was recently inserted in the Congressional Record by Mr. Lodge.

In that letter Premier Clemenceau assured M. Paderewski that by this treaty the allied and associated powers were assuming obligations they could not well evade, to insure a stable Poland, "no matter what change may occur in her internal affairs." Some curiosity was expressed today as to President Wilson's failure to include this letter, which was Clemenceau's interpretation of the treaty, and which, in Senator Lodge's opinion, is a part of the treaty itself.

Lodge Advises Senators Not to Stump.

Through all the developments at the Capitol in the treaty fight there runs discussion of President Wilson's forthcoming trip through the country. Efforts by the treaty's Senate opponents to decide what measures will be most effective in counteracting this trip are occupying most of their time and attention.

There were indications that Senator Lodge, as Republican leader, was trying to discourage any considerable exodus of Senators to take the stump against the President. His view, expressed tonight, is that Senators should remain in Washington, where, he thinks, they will command greater publicity for their speeches in reply to and attack on the President's arguments than if they set out to follow him or cross his path. Senator Lodge has conveyed to them his belief that if they go out they will get large crowds, but that their voices will carry no further than the limits of the town they are speaking in, while the President will be heard all over the land each time he speaks. Therefore, Senator Lodge holds, Senators should remain in their places here and reply effectively through the usual channels of publicity.

He said tonight that, so far as he knew, there was no plan for a concerted attack on the President's position while he is on tour. He expects that each speech by the President and each new argument he advances will be promptly answered from the Senate floor, and that new challenges, it may be, will be flung at him from time to time by his opponents.

Mr. Lodge, in discussing the general situation on the eve of the President's trip and the completion of the committee's work on the treaty, expressed the view that the Administration forces would be unpleasantly surprised at the size of the vote in favor of the Shantung amendment. That vote, he predicted, would be much closer than some friends of the treaty have believed.

He also said that, even though textual amendments should fail of adoption, the program of reservations as part of the resolution of ratification would undoubtedly go through.

Following the disposition of these two proposals Senator Fall called up his amendment relative to the powers of the American member of the Reparations Commission. It was adopted, 9 to 8. This provision is that:

> The delegate of the United States shall have no vote in the proceedings of the commission except concerning a matter wherein such delegate is specifically instructed by his Government to take part in proceedings of the commission and to cast and record the vote of the United States thereupon, but shall always have such right when Annex III. to the reparation clauses or any section thereof is under consideration.

Annex III. of the reparation clauses deals with disposition of matters in which the United States may have an interest.

Senator Moses's Amendment.

Senator Moses's amendment, which also was accepted by 9 to 8, reads as follows:

"At the end of paragraph 9 of Article IV., add:

> Whenever the cause referred to the assembly involves a dispute between one member of the League and another member whose self-governing dominions, colonies or parts of empire are also represented in the assembly, neither the disputant members, nor any of their said dominions, colonies or parts of empire shall have a vote on any phase of the question.

While this amendment rather closely followed the wording of the McCumber substitute for Senator Johnson's proposal, it went only part way, and entirely differed as to the result. The McCumber proposal merely prohibited the disputant States or their colonies from joining in the report of the assembly, while Senator Moses's plan prohibited them voting.

Members said this would prevent Canada voting in a dispute between the United States and Great Britain, or between Great Britain and France. It would, in other words, prevent Great Britain's preponderant voting power in the assembly from being an advantage to her in cases referred by the council to the assembly, and would thus supplement Senator Johnson's equalization amendment.

With these amendments disposed of, the committee has before it only the Fall amendment striking out the labor clauses, and this is to be disposed of early next week. Senator Knox is then to present a draft of reservations to the League covenant, and the final phase of the committee's work will have been reached. The committee members said tonight they are confident the treaty will be reported by midweek, probably on Wednesday, the day President Wilson departs for his speaking tour in behalf of the treaty.

The committee may decide to meet Sunday and Monday, in order to make this possible, it is hinted today, though no definite decision to do this has been reached, and most members do not think it will be required.

Hear Mid-Europe League.

Before going into executive session to take up amendments, the committee today held a public hearing, at which appeared the representatives of the Mid-European League, representing Esthonia, Lithuania, Latvia and Ukraine. Following them India's plea was presented by Dudley Field Malone.

The case of the Mid-Europeans was presented in chief by George Gordon Battle and Robert T. Caldwell of New York, who were supported by individual representatives of the four nations. They all painted for the committee a picture of four nations with strong national aspirations which have withstood 700 years of foreign persecution and exploitation, all of them now with provisional Governments patterned upon the Republic of France, and all desiring to retain their independence and regain their feet politically, economically and socially.

Mr. Caldwell in opening the hearing said that these four nations, representing a total population of about 60,000,000, and of whom 2,000,000 now live in the United States, form a bulwark and buffer against Bolshevism from Russia and a stone wall against German penetration into Russia.

"All these nations during the war fought for the allied cause," said Mr. Caldwell. "They are all strongly anti-German. They have resisted and still resist efforts to Germanize them.

"The United States will have to choose between arming these people for independent life and firm, stable self-government on the one hand or continuing to feed them and support them. They are capable of self-government. They have set up governments which are provisional in name, but not unstable in fact.

"Stabilization of this part of the world will open to the United States a great commercial field. The demand for goods of all sorts is very great there, and these people have the means to buy."

Mr. Caldwell asked that the committee pass resolutions, separate from the Peace Treaty, recommending that the four Governments be recognized by the United States, as they already have been recognized by other great powers. Mr. Battle asked that such a recommendation be incorporated in the resolution ratifying the treaty.

Speaking for Esthonia, Lieutenant Commander G. A. Beall, U. S. N., who visited that country and who was for a time connected with the American peace mission in Paris, said that it is the gateway to the Baltic trade.

Tells of German Treachery.

Rev. Carl Poden, pastor of the Seamen's Institute, New York, speaking for the Letts, his native people, declared that Germany is violating the plain terms of the Peace Treaty against requisitioning or devastation. He told of their treachery in Latvia, relating how his mother was wounded and his brother, who had given haven to forty-six German nobles, was imprisoned and his house burned by the Germans. He admitted that 20 to 25 per cent. of the Letts are Bolshevists. But the Government, he declared, is strongly anti-Bolshevist.

John Lopatto, Assistant City Attorney of Wilkes-Barre, Penn., spoke for Lithuania, one million of whose sons, he said, now live in the United States. Emil Reyvuk represented the Ukrainians.

Moving pictures were shown the committee of the execution by Germans of Letts, men and women, accused of Bolshevism. The pictures were taken by an American Army photographer accompanying an American Army mission that went into Russia to make peace. They showed the Letts being lined up three at a time on the edge of a deep trench and then shot by German sharpshooters.

Dudley Field Malone, speaking for India, urged the committee to amend the League of Nations covenant so that every signatory would be required at once to provide democratic institutions and rule for peoples subject to them.

India, Mr. Malone said, was made a signatory to the Peace Treaty by England's wish, not for India's advantage, but to give the British Empire one more vote in the League of Nations. He declared that a hand-picked Indian delegate was sent to Paris to sign the treaty and that elected Peace Commissioners were denied passports.

At tomorrow's session of the committee Ireland's claims to the right of autonomous government will be presented. The list of speakers will include Justice Cohalan of New York, John F. Murphy of Buffalo, who has recently returned from Ireland; former Governor Dunne of Illinois, one of the American Commissioners that investigated the Irish question and appeared in Ireland's behalf before the peace Conference, and Frank P. Walsh, another member of that body.

UPHOLD CAUSE OF ULSTER.

Loyal Orange Order Protests Recognition Here of Sinn Fein.

The Loyal Orange Order of Protestantism, meeting last night at Unity Hall, 341 West Forty-seventh Street, adopted the following resolution:

> Whereas, It has been announced that a hearing will be granted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Aug. 30, 1919, to representatives of the so-called "Irish Republic"; and
>
> Whereas, That while 200,000 loyal Ulstermen were fighting with the Allies in France, the Sinn Fein were conspiring with the enemy, remaining at home and obstructing recruiting, and in the instance of the sinking of the Lusitania not only refused to help bury the dead, but also attempted to prevent the soldiers from doing so; and
>
> Whereas, There is no real ground for separation from the United Kingdom; therefore
>
> Be it resolved, That we, the recognized officials of the 150,000 members of the Loyal Orange Order of Protestantism, all loyal citizens of the United States, do extend our sympathy and support to the Ulstermen and all who are in sympathy with their cause throughout the world; and
> Be it resolved, That we protest any action favorable to the representatives of the Sinn Fein, a minority of the citizens of Ireland that has placed the loyal population of that island in a false light before the world; and further
>
> Be it resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, and to the public press.

A copy of the resolution was sent to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last night.

appropriation. For ten years the railroads prevented the recommendation of the Interstate Commerce Commission asking enlargement of their powers.

"The railroads want to concentrate power at Washington and rob the States of their authority and then consolidate all lines into trunk lines. Why not be frank and say they want fifteen lines if they can get them, ten if they can get that number, and want most of all one gigantic system, the greatest the world ever saw, with all the banking power behind it, and all the big newspapers controlled by it. Then the question will be whether the Government will own the railroads or the railroads will own the Government."

"I'm afraid of concentration," he told the committee, "because that would go far toward the obliteration of State lines. I believe it as necessary for the States to remain indestructible as for the Union to remain indissoluble. This proposed concentration would go further toward centralization than anything since the formation of the Constitution.

"But if I had to take my choice of concentration at Washington and concentration at New York, I'd take my chances with it at Washington."

Would Cost Much Less.

One "advantage" which Mr. Bryan presented for his plan was that while it would cost $18,000,000,000 to $20,000,000,000 to purchase all the railroads, if only one great trunk line was purchased this would cost the Government only about $4,000,000,000.

Another advantage, Mr. Bryan held, was that the States would realize their own needs better than would a full Federal control. The forty-eight States, he said, would be "forty-eight experimental stations."

Government ownership had not failed in this country, he said, because it had never been tried. He held that the period of Federal operation "had not been a fair one," because it had not been under adverse circumstances, restriction, and a temporary retention.

"It was carried out," he added, "while the roads were in the hands of men who did not want the test to succeed. The Government had to take the roads and run them, with men in office who wanted the scheme to fail."

Chairman Esch of the committee indicated to Mr. Bryan that purchasing the roads might be a costly process for the States. Mr. Esch said that it would cost his State of Wisconsin about $396,000,000, and besides the State would lose its opportunity of taxing the railroads, from which it now derived its principal revenue. Mr. Bryan replied that the railways collected passenger and freight fares from the public before the State collected the tax. "You can take off that tax," he said, "and lower the rates."

The suggestion was made by Mr. Bryan that a joint Congressional committee should examine into how his plan should be carried out.

In answer to Mr. Winslow about the prohibition lobby, Mr. Bryan said that that lobby was conducted in the open and served no personal interests.

RAILROAD SECURITIES OWNERS MAKE PLEA

Claim Indorsement of 50,000,000 People for 6 Per Cent. Return Plan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The principles of the Warfield plan, under which a minimum interest return of 6 per cent. on railroad securities would be guaranteed through a mandatory adjustment of rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission, have been indorsed by "50,000,000 persons owning or directly interested in railroad securities," according to a memorial submitted to the House Interstate Commerce Committee today by S. Davies Warfield, President of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities.

Signers of the memorial numbered 5,000 investing institutions, including savings banks, national and State banks, surety companies, trust companies, and life and fire insurance companies, and 8,189 individual investors. The shipping public also was represented in the indorsement by sixteen municipal trade organizations with an estimated total membership of 30,000. Insurance companies giving their indorsement were said to represent 23,000,000 policyholders, while it was estimated that 5,000,500 persons were represented by savings banks.

In presenting the memorial, Mr. Warfield said its signers did not ask "the continuation of autocratic railroad methods of the past, but a just and definite solution, by the Congress of the most important problem now before the country."

"It is our conviction that the railroads cannot avoid destruction and eventual governmental absorption without a primary distributable return of not less than 6 per cent. assured upon the aggregate investment, not through a governmental guarantee but through the exercise by Congress of its duty to stop, by act, the knife of regulation short of the heart of the transportation system of the United States.

"The responsibility for the existing system and the duty of conserving transportation in America rests upon the Congress. The Interstate Commerce Commission has not the power and cannot, consistently with the Constitution, be charged with the responsibility of determining fundamental questions of public policy. We appeal to this Congress to discharge its duty by the only possible methods. The first requisite is a mandatory declaration that the power of regulation shall not be employed so as to depress net operating income below the level which experience has shown to be necessary to sustain the carriers.

"The legislation proposed is based upon the necessity that Congress shall by law recognize a minimum percentage return on the aggregate investment as a necessary limitation upon its delegation of rate-making power to the Interstate Commerce Commission and shall by law enable that commission to comply with the duty to conserve transportation in America."

NEGRO PROTEST TO WILSON.

Advancement Association Wants Investigation of Lynchings.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in a telegram sent yesterday to President Wilson, protested against recent anti-negro riots and, more particularly, against the assault upon John R. Shillady, Secretary of the association, last week in Austin, Texas. The telegram is signed by Mary White Ovington, Chairman of the association.

"In the name of twelve million negroes of the United States," says the telegram, "the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People respectfully inquires how long the Federal Government under your administration intends to tolerate anarchy in the United States?

"On August 22, John R. Shillady, Secretary of this association, while on a legal and peaceful errand, was brutally beaten in Austin, Texas, the Governor of the State approving of the assault participated in by county officials of Texas.

"On Aug. 28 the State of Georgia tolerated the eighth mob murder in that State since the beginning of the year. On this occasion and one other white mobs burned negro schools and churches.

"Since January of this year thirty-eight persons have been brutally done to death by mobs in this country, of whom six were publicly burned, thirty-six of the victims were colored, two were white.

"Therefore the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People asks the immediate appointment of a responsible commission to investigate the failure of the States to protect United States citizens, and urges you to go before Congress in the interest of the law, and civilization, so gravely menaced in this country."

Knox, "to make my own position perfectly clear, that reason or excuse for misunderstanding or misinterpretation may not exist. No one more abhors Germany's lawlessness, her cruelty, her gross inhumanity in the conduct of this war, than do I. No one is more determined than I to make her pay the full penalty for the great wrongs she has inflicted on civilization and on the world, whose equipoise she has by her iniquities well nigh destroyed. It must not seem to be profitable for any one to violate the great, eternal laws of right, and we must vindicate them now against Germany if we are to save ourselves from chaos. The observations I shall make are therefore dictated by no maudlin sympathy for Germany, the felon who must suffer the penalty incident to his crime.

"But I am vitally concerned in the peace of this world, and peace we must have if it be attainable. But, Mr. President, I am convinced, after the most painstaking consideration that I can give, that this treaty does not spell peace, but war—war more woeful and devastating than the one we have but now closed. The instrument before us is not the Treaty, but the Truce of Versailles. It is for this body—the co-ordinate treaty-making power of this great neutral nation of ours—to make of the document a peace treaty if possible, or, if that be impossible, then we must put this nation in such relation to the treaty and to the powers of the world that our voice may hereafter, as heretofore, be always raised for peace.

"It is to be regretted that the whole matter has been so unfortunately managed, that there has been so much of needless secrecy, so many times mere partial disclosure when the whole truth could and should have been told, so much of assumed mystery in the whole affair that it has become impossible for any of us not in the confidences to tell when we have arrived at the whole of any matter. It is no fault of mine if the facts themselves shall speak an impeachment of the wisdom, the purpose, or the result of the negotiations.

"Fortunately it is no longer necessary to insist upon the high importance of this treaty nor the fact that it marks the point in our history where we turn from our old course of proved happiness, prosperity, and safety to a new one, for us yet untried, of alliances, balance of power, and coalition with countries and peoples whose interests, aspirations and ideals are foreign to our own, because the people are waking to this as the true issue. Little by little they are bringing a divulgence of the facts connected with the treaty, and they may now hope finally to see the whole of the great gaunt tragedy into which those whom they had charged with protecting them were about to betray them.

"But as this treaty itself, as finally placed before us, is so intricate and all-embracing in its conception, is so ponderous and voluminous in its execution, is so microscopic in detail, and, because of these things, so inaccessible to the people upon whose backs it is proposed to place its mighty burdens, it has seemed due and proper that, to the extent of my power, I should add my bit to the information which other Senators are so ably placing before them.

"For assuredly it is one of the calamities of this situation that of the hundred million of us who are to sign this great promissory note, but a paltry few thousand will be able to read it before signature. And that, Mr. President, is at once my reason and my excuse for again intruding my voice in this discussion, for it is the duty of each of us who are charged with the responsibility of speaking and acting for the people in this matter, to give to them in as concrete and understandable a form as we may, the actual provisions of this document. The people will judge this matter rightly if they but know and understand its facts.

"But unfortunately this treaty, intricate, ponderous, and voluminous as it is, yet is by no means the whole story. Many documents involved in its making are before neither the Senate nor the people.

Asks Why Documents Are Withheld.

"Within the last week, the Committee on Foreign Relations requested that the proceedings of the Peace Conference and the documents connected therewith should be furnished for our information. The reply was that all were not here, only those immediately at hand having been brought, and that those here were being sorted and some would be finally sent. Why should these documents need sorting? Do they hold secrets it is thought best the American people should not know?

"Nor have we yet the treaties with Germany's allies,—the former Austro-Hungarian Empire, Bulgaria, and Turkey,—all of whom if we may credit report are to be dismembered or shorn of territory, or both. The provisions of the treaty before us are intimately and inevitably entwined with those of these other treaties. Can we wisely proceed without those treaties and treat this situation piecemeal?

"If the negotiators found it necessary, as they did, to consider the whole situation at one time that they might arrive at harmonious arrangements, must not we also, to act intelligently and wisely, have everything before us?

"Seeds for Another Conflict."

"Mr. President, a treaty of peace has two great functions: In the first place it ends the war and brings back peace; and in the next place it gives to the victor his spoils which normally take the form of territorial adjustments and monetary or other indemnity, either merely to make good his losses, or in addition to impose a penalty. If the victor be guided by a wise statesmanship he so accommodates his spoils as not to sow seeds for another conflict with his erstwhile enemy. The great war now ending was bottomed on Bismarck's violation of this fundamental principle. France overlooked her indemnity, but she never forgot or forgave Alsace-Lorraine. There is, I warn you, Senators, many another Alsace-Lorraine in the treaty laid before us for action.

"The first of the named functions of a peace treaty is performed in this case not by an article specifically declaring that the treaty brings peace to the parties belligerent, but by two widely separated clauses, one at the very beginning of the document, and another at the very end of it, from which you spell out the time and occasion of the termination of this conflict. The initial clause, which follows the recitation of the persons signing, says:

"'From the coming into force of the present treaty the state of war will terminate. From that moment and subject to the provisions of this treaty official relations with Germany, and with any of the German States, will be resumed by the allied and associated powers.'

"In the last article, the fourth and third clauses preceding the testimonial clause, read as follows:

"'A first procès verbal of the deposit of ratifications will be drawn up as soon as the treaty has been ratified by Germany on the one hand, and by three of the principal allied and associated powers on the other hand.

"'From the date of this first procès verbal the treaty will come into force between the high contracting parties who have ratified it. For the determination of all periods of time provided for in the present treaty this date will be the date of the coming into force of the treaty.'

"Germany and Great Britain have already ratified the treaty. So soon, therefore, as the treaty has been ratified by any two of the remaining principal allied and associated powers, the remaining powers being the United States, France, Italy, and Japan, and when the procès verbal of such deposit of ratifications has been drawn up, 'the state of war will terminate,' as a reading of the many treaty clauses, coming into force at that time and making the further conduct of the war impossible, will clearly show.

How Congress Can Proclaim Peace.

"It results from the foregoing, that in order to bring peace between us and Germany it is not necessary that we shall ratify this treaty. It is true Congress need not accept this treaty termination of our belligerency, and might by proper resolution, either joint, concurrent, or by separate resolution to the same effect by the Senate and House respectively, continue this war, because to Congress exclusively belongs the authority to create a status of war, and therefore it might continue such a status by a new declaration. But Congress has no desire to do and will not do this thing.

"On the other hand, Congress, while it cannot negotiate a peace with the enemy, can nevertheless end hostilities with him by declaring, as no longer existent, the status of war with him, which the Congress created by its own act.

"Thus so soon as the first procès verbal is drawn under this treaty, Congress may with all propriety, and should to insure full legality to the act of the Executive in negotiating this particular treaty provision, pass a resolution—concurrent, because the Executive having already committed himself to the substance thereof, his approval would be superfluous—which shall declare that the status of war created by its resolution of April 6, 1917, no longer exists and that a status of peace from that moment obtains. Thus we shall put the country immediately upon a complete peace basis and may at once resume all our normal commercial and other relations with Germany, unhampered by any restrictions. So much for that part of the treaty which ends the war.

"I pass now to the second branch of the treaty, which comprises its whole volume aside from the brief clauses I have quoted, and which deals with the victor's spoils.

At the signing of the armistice, Senator Knox said, "we, who sought no territory, nor indemnity, nor aggrandized power, should have rested, signed our peace when our associates made peace, and quit the war as we entered it, still free and independent, masters of our own destiny, able to work for the benefit of all mankind, unhampered by entangling alliances or commitments.

"But, such was not the course followed, and our representatives sat at the peace table as co-equal negotiators.

Predicts Lasting German Plots.

"Think you Germany—smarting and staggering under the terms of this, the hardest treaty of modern times—will, even if we were to set up the League and she should join it, supinely rest content with the dole of grace and sufferance we are vouchsafing her, the crumbs from her victors' table? It is beside the point to say that such is but her just deserts and the full measure thereof. Lacking the wisdom to go forward and inflict a military punishment that would have uprooted their philosophy of force and taught them the lesson of live and let live, we have left them, beaten, but proud and arrogant, with their mighty spirit bent for the time, but unbroken, with their damning philosophy unchanged, and with a will, fired by hate, to mete out revenge.

"That people will no more cease to plot and plan to recover their former high estate, than did Satan plunged into the abysmal depths of hell. Whether they are in the League if formed or out of it, Germany's agents, secretly or openly, will be at work with her former allies, and with injured Russia, and with Japan—whose conceptions, ideals, aspirations, and ambitions are of imperial Germany, not democratic America, Britain and France. As Russia goes, so will go the whole Slavic and affiliated peoples. And if Germany succeed in this and be able to unite these powers to herself, to turn the teeming millions of Russia to swell her own ranks, and to augment this by the great yellow races of the Pacific, who through Russia would have unimpeded access to the battle front, Western Europe, at least, must perish. Think you, Germany, revengeful, will turn aside from so imposing and grateful a vision in order to grace for generations a conqueror's triumph?

Sees Napoleon's Error Repeated.

"Why have we invited this vision? Was there none at all of that much-vaunted forward looking at the peace table? The wise, the obviously wise course required not months of inventing and piling up penalties, but a few hours devoted to a plan that should rid Germany of the Hohenzollerns, that should provide for her democratization, that should impose a lesson-bearing indemnity, and that should then bind with rivets of steel, because rivets of friendship, the German people to Western Europe, to France, who cannot hope to keep Germany under her feet.

"Napoleon tried to conquer a people and failed. This should be France's lesson. The only possible wise course for France, her only permanent safety, is closest friendship with Germany. The restoration of Alsace-Lorraine, the payment of a suitable indemnity, and then forgetfulness as to the past, hard as that might prove—this should have sufficed. It may seem I am unsympathetic, unmindful and forgetful of wrongs and injuries, unmoved by suffering and grief. I am none of these. I am trying to point out how France herself might escape further and more overwhelming wrong, suffering, and grief. For as certain as the sun rises if we follow the road in which this treaty sets our feet France and ourselves shall meet those on the way."

Our Territorial Duties Abroad.

After citing the cessions of European territory made by Germany to the "principal allied and associated powers," Mr. Knox said:

"Thus the United States becomes the owner in fee of a tenant in common of European territory, and a trustee as to other territory.

"Germany cedes all her overseas possessions in fee simple to the allied and associated powers, who do not assume the debts and who take all the property, without any compensation whatever running to Germany either for the territory ceded or for the actual property taken. Thus the United States becomes a tenant in common with the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan of Germany's African possessions, comprising Togo, Kamerun, German Southwest Africa, and German East Africa, with an area of nearly one million square miles (almost one-third the size of the United States) and a native population of about eleven and a half millions; of her Pacific possessions, including Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, Bismarck's Archipelago, Caroline Islands, Palau or Pelew Islands, Marianne Islands, Solomon Islands, and Marshall Islands. It may be noted in passing that certain of these island possessions form a barrier ring to access to the Philippines, and their possession by any power other than ourselves is big with potential troubles for us.

"Germany cedes also without compensation of any sort or description her extra-territorial and analogous rights in Siam, Morocco, Egypt, and Samoa, and recognizes the French protectorate in Morocco and the British protectorate in Egypt. Thus, territorially, Germany has been closed out in all the world without a penny's compensation. Moreover, she loses the efforts of a generation to provide an outlet for her rapidly increasing surplus population which now must and will find expanding room elsewhere. To this situation is added a restriction of Germany's European area which would have taken care of a part of this expansion.

"There can of course be no question as to the propriety of compelling Germany to disgorge the loot which she seized and which she still has, nor in requiring her to replace that which she seized and has since consumed or otherwise used or destroyed. No matter what this may mean to Germany, no matter how it may leave her, this must be done. The thief must not be heard to plead necessity for the article he stole nor inconvenience from restoring it. This is the most elemental justice and the wholesomest morality. Thus far we move on solid ground.

Warning Against "Killing the Goose."

"But when we get away from and go beyond this it behooves us to proceed with care, lest we go beyond the bounds of wise statesmanship, and, in the homely adage, kill the goose that we expect to lay the golden eggs.

"But the treaty edges in on the perfectly proper theory of restitution by a theory designated as replacement, which places Germany under rather startling obligations. She is first made to 'recognize the right of the allied and associated powers to the replacement ton for ton (gross tonnage) and class for class of all merchant ships and fishing boats lost or damaged owing to the war'; she then acknowledges 'that the tonnage of German shipping at present in existence is much less than that lost by the allied and associated powers in consequence of the German aggression,' and agrees that 'the right thus recognized will be enforced on German ships and boats under the following conditions': Germany cedes to the allied and associated powers on behalf of herself and of all other parties interested all German merchant ships which are of 1,600 tons gross and upward. Included in these will doubtless be the thirty-two auxiliary cruisers and fleet auxiliary (named in another part of the treaty) which are to be disarmed and treated as merchant ships. In addition to the foregoing Germany further cedes one-half, reckoned in tonnage, of the ships which are between 1,000 tons and 1,600 tons gross; one-quarter, reckoned in tonnage, of the steam trawlers, and one-quarter, reckoned in tonnage, of the other fishing boats. All the foregoing must be delivered to the Reparation Commission within two months of the coming into force of the present treaty.

"Thus we take practically all of Germany's means of conducting commerce through her own vessels with overseas countries, of whom we are the farthest away and of which we shall stand most in need, for it is an open secret that before the war the German shipping was the peer at least of any shipping in the world.

"But the treaty goes further than this and compels Germany to lay down in her own shipyards a maximum of 200,000 tons of shipping for each of the next five years—approximately half, I am told, of her shipbuilding capacity—and our representatives, the Reparation Commission, determine the specifications, conditions of building, price to be paid—by giving credit against the reparation bill the commission will make up—and all other questions relating to the accounting, building and delivery of the ships.

German Ships Barred From Seas.

"Thus for a number of years at least we have pretty effectively barred German vessels from the seas.

"The effect of all this upon Germany's future and upon her ability to meet the other requirements of this treaty are well worthy of deep and mature reflection. But, drastic and possibly ruinous as all this is, it yet is but the beginning."

Indemnity Exceeds $24,000,000,000.

After an extended discussion of the subject of "physical restoration," Senator Knox said:

"The thought has been entertained that the treaty fixes, at least tentatively, the German indemnity under these rules at 120,000,000,000 gold marks—about $24,000,000,000—but such an idea is not justified.

"In the first place Germany agrees, in addition to the sum named, to pay Belgium's debt to the Allies and associated powers, whatever the debt may be. This payment is to be considered restoration.

"In the next place, the treaty stipulates that the $24,000,000,000 worth of gold bonds which Germany undertakes to issue is to cover 'whatever part of the full amount of the approved claims is not paid in gold, or in ships, securities, and commodities or otherwise.' Thus the total values of all the materials to be turned over, as heretofore mentioned, seem quite clearly to be in addition to this twenty-four billions of gold bonds.

"Moreover, it is provided that 'further issues (of bonds) by way of acknowledgment and security may be required as the (Reparation) Commission subsequently determined from time to time.'

"So that the bill against Germany will clearly not stop at $24,000,000,000 and may run to any amount.

Labor Provisions "Will Wreck the World."

"As to that part of the treaty which deals with labor, I shall now merely say: Either it will never be enforced as drawn, and perhaps was never intended to be enforced as drawn, but to be merely a sop thrown to labor, or if enforced as written and in the spirit its provisions seem to carry, it will wreck the world. It compels the class antagonism between capital and labor which wisdom requires that we lessen not increase, if we are to remain a free people; and makes possible an ultimate interference of foreign nations in our labor disputes at the instance of residents of our own country."

Would Take No German Indemnity.

As he approached the close of his speech Senator Knox declared:

"Mr. President, the more I consider this treaty the more I am convinced that the only safe way for us to deal with it is to decline to be a party to it at all. I think we should renounce in favor of Germany any and all claims for indemnity because of the war and see that she gets credit for what we renounce, as indeed she should for the value of all she gives up as against a fixed and ample indemnity. I agree with the President when he says the indemnity should have been a fixed amount. We ought to renounce all participation or membership in commissions, committees, boards or otherwise provided for in the treaty in aid of its execution to which by its terms we are parties. We ought not to accept cessions of German territory.

"We ought to declare a general policy to regard with concern any threat of disturbance of general world peace, but at the same time we should reserve complete liberty of action, either independently or in conjunction with other powers, in taking such steps as we determine wise for preserving the peace.

"We ought then to carry out the spirit of the Act of 1916, which authorized the President to convene the nations of the world together to establish a code of international law, reduce armaments, to establish an international tribunal and go as far as possible in the direction of securing peace through justice, through a league to which all the world are parties in its formation. This would be a fitting, generous and dignified exit from a situation in which primarily we had no direct concern.

"A Hard and Cruel Peace."

"It is indeed a hard and cruel peace that this treaty stipulates, and I have no objections to its being so, but see no reason why we, who do not partake in its spoils, should become parties to its harshness and cruelty. I see no reason why we should be parties to imposing upon Germany a treaty whose terms, our negotiators say, she will not be able meet; a treaty that robs our ancient friend China in a way disapproved by our negotiators; a treaty that lays the foundation for centuries of blood-letting into which we should not be drawn; a treaty that, contrary to our own judgment, fails to fix the amount of indemnity to be paid, leaving that vast question to the whim of a majority of a commission on reparations; a treaty predicated upon the assertion that a stricken and helpless world requires our counsel and support, but leaves to the beneficiaries the decision as to the measure and character of the benefactions they are to receive; a treaty that with ominous words presages our involvment in the eruptions of suppressed volcanic world conditions; a treaty that would require us to underwrite all the regional understandings between nations recognized by the League, most of which are based upon oppression of weaker nations, many of which are as yet secret and undisclosed, and when disclosed might drive us to acts of injustice similar to that in which the President felt himself compelled to acquiesce in the case of Shantung."

PRESIDENT PLANS 30 TALKS ON TOUR

Allots Himself 27 Days of Untiring Effort for League and Living Cost Problem.

FIVE DAYS ON WEST COAST

Will Warn Radicals There—Cuts Illinois, Home of Two League Foes, from Itinerary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The itinerary of the 10,000-mile swing to the Pacific Coast, on which President Wilson will start Wednesday evening, to win support for the peace treaty, warn against labor unrest, and aid, if he can, in the campaign to bring down living costs, was issued today at the White House. It shows that the President has given no thought to sparing himself any effort which he believes is essential. At least thirty formal addresses are scheduled, and it is believed that as many more will be included before the tour ends.

The President has allotted himself twenty-seven days in which to accomplish the great task he has outlined, and while Illinois, the home State of Senators Sherman and McCormick, two of the opponents of the treaty, is not to be visited, thus dropping Chicago from the visiting list, the fight will be carried into the native States of virtually all of the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the Middle West and Far West who are against ratification without reservations, which would make it necessary to return the treaty to the Peace Conference.

First Speech at Columbus.

The first speech in the campaign will be delivered in Columbus, Ohio, next Thursday morning, where President Wilson will attempt to arouse opposition to the stand which has been taken by Senator Harding. From there he will go to Indianapolis, and then invade Missouri, the home State of Senator Reed, who, though a Democrat, has appeared as one of the bitterest opponents of the League covenant. There will be two speeches in Missouri—at St. Louis and Kansas City.

Among prominent Republican Senators who will find the President pleading his cause before their constituents, are Cummins of Iowa, Kenyon of Minnesota, Borah of Utah, Poindexter of Washington, Johnson of California, Smoot of Utah, and Capper of Kansas. The President also will pay attention to the situation in Colorado, the home State of Senator Thomas, a Democrat, who has not been whole-hearted for the League covenant, and who recently criticised the League plan for an international labor movement. He has decided also to visit Oklahoma, the home State of Senator Gore, Democrat, and opponent of the League.

California is to entertain the President for five days, from Sept. 17 to 21, inclusive, and this is regarded as significant, not only because of the Peace Treaty feature of the trip—opposition has been predicted in California because of the Shantung controversy—but because the worst labor unrest of the recent weeks has been staged there.

Will Talk on Radicalism.

It was the labor situation in California which moved the President, yesterday, to authorize Director General of Railroads Hines to use, if necessary, the full power of the Government to operate the lines and save the fruit crops. The radical spirit has been very marked on more than one occasion in California, and it is believed that the President will talk on this subject as well as on the League of Nations.

In fact, the tour promises to be by far the most important upon which the President has gone during his career in public life, and the developments will be awaited with the most intense interest, as his appearance before the people comes at one of the most critical periods of the nation's history.

The action of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate in voting today for further amendments to the treaty of peace has only served to add zest to the President's desire to get out among the people and tell them at first hand what he believes to be the duty of the nation. It is believed also that before he starts for the West the President will make an important announcement in regard to the general labor situation and the future relations between capital and labor. And in that event he is sure to follow up the lead in face to face talks with the workers.

It will be the first trip which the President has made to the Pacific Coast since he was sent to the White House in 1912. The point furthest West which he reached during the 1912 campaign was Denver, Colo. He will be accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Wilson. Here is the itinerary:

The President's Itinerary.

"The President plans to leave Washington Wednesday evening, Sept. 3, for Columbus, Ohio, where he will make an address Thursday morning, Sept. 4. Thereafter he will visit the following cities in the order named, making addresses as indicated:

Thursday, Sept. 4—Evening address in Indianapolis, Ind.

Friday, Sept. 5—In St. Louis, Mo.

Saturday, Sept. 6—Morning address in Kansas City, Mo.

Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 6 and 7—Saturday night and Sunday in Des Moines, Iowa.

Monday, Sept. 8—Morning address in Omaha, Neb.; evening address in Sioux Falls, S. D.

Tuesday, Sept. 9—All day in St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn.

Wednesday, Sept. 10—Noon address in Bismarck, N. D.

"Thursday, Sept. 11—Forenoon address in Billings, Mont.; evening address in Helena, Mont.

"Friday, Sept. 12—Forenoon address in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; afternoon address in Spokane, Wash.

"Saturday, Sept. 13, and Sunday, Sept. 14—Day meeting in Tacoma; evening address in Seattle.

"Monday, Sept. 15—All day and evening in Portland, Ore.

"Wednesday, Sept. 17, Thursday, Sept. 18—In San Francisco, Cal.

"Friday, Sept. 19—Afternoon and night in San Diego, Cal.

"Saturday, Sept. 20, and Sunday, Sept. 21—Saturday afternoon and Sunday in Los Angeles, Cal.

"Tuesday, Sept. 23—Evening address in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"Wednesday, Sept. 24—Late afternoon address in Cheyenne, Wyo.; spend night in Denver, Col.

"Thursday, Sept. 25—Forenoon address in Denver, Col.; afternoon address in Pueblo, Col.

"Friday, Sept. 26—Forenoon address in Wichita, Kan.; evening address in Oklahoma City, Okla.

"Saturday, Sept. 27—Mid-afternoon address in Little Rock, Ark.; night address in Memphis, Tenn.

"Sunday, Sept. 28, and Monday, Sept. 29—All day Sunday and Monday forenoon in Louisville, Ky.

"Tuesday, Sept. 30—Arrive Washington at 11 A. M."

TO BRING DRAFT MEN HOME.

Secretary Baker Also Says No Americans Will Go to Silesia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Secretary Baker appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today, which is now considering a resolution calling upon the War Department to return American troops from Siberia, and assured the committee that regulars would be substituted for the draft soldiers now there.

Mr. Baker incidentally assured the committee that no American troops would be sent to Silesia. The 5th and 15th Regiments of Infantry were being sent abroad to replace the 1st Division.

"There are now about 8,000 American drafted men guarding the Siberian railroad in Siberia," said Secretary Baker. "With replacements now going on, I feel certain all of the draft men will be out of Siberia and home by Christmas."

"But it seems to me unfair to hold these drafted men on duty," objected Chairman Porter. "They are held in Siberia by force, against their will and wishes. I think they should be replaced more quickly. How many volunteers have been recruited for the regular army since the armistice?"

"About 100,000 and of these about one-half have expressed a desire for European service, and about 3,000 for Siberian duty," replied the Secretary.

"Why, then, is it not possible to take 7,000 of these volunteers who have no preference where they serve and replace the men in Siberia who have not had the privilege of declaring such a preference and desire to leave Siberia?" Porter asked.

"This might be done, but it will not be easy," answered the Secretary. "However, I will give serious consideration to your suggestion and I will do everything possible to facilitate the return of the drafted men from Siberia."

The Secretary explained that American troops in Siberia were strictly neutral and were taking no part in sectional troubles. They were keeping the Siberian railroad open to get supplies in for the Russian co-operative societies, representing about 25,000,000 families or 100,000,000 individuals, who were buying clothing and stores through the War Department. The total of these purchases had aggregated $25,000,000.

"The United States has sold to a representative of the Kolchak Government arms and ammunition," interjected Mr. Mason of Illinois. "Do you think the Russian Soviet Government will take that as neutral?"

"I do not know of a Soviet Government," Mr. Baker shot back. "We sold the rifles and ammunition, made in this country for use by Russia when that Government was our ally in the war against Germany, to a representative of the Russian Government who ordered these rifles and ammunition. They are of the Russian type and unfit for our use. We received $1,000,000 in cash and notes for the balance, which amounts to several millions."

"The Kolchak Government has guaranteed payment of the ancient Russian bonds, some of which are held in this country, and the Soviet Government has not," suggested Mr. Mason.

"American forces are not held in Siberia to protect any financial interests," retorted Secretary Baker. "Our troops are not assisting Kolchak. The British and French have troops on the Ural front actively participating in the Kolchak campaign. The British have about 1,541 and the French 1,488. The Japanese have 46,000 troops in Siberia and the Italians about 1,450. The American troops are in no danger from organized Bolshevist forces."

TURKS ANXIOUS FOR US TO RUN THEIR COUNTRY

American Commissioners Back in Paris with Recommendations as to Mandates.

PARIS, Aug. 29, (Associated Press.)—The report of Charles R. Crane and H. C. King bearing on their investigation of conditions in the Near East, has been submitted to the American delegation in three sections. The first relates to Syria, the second to Mesopotamia, the third to non-Arabic speaking Turkey.

The report contains recommendations as to mandatories, which the two commissioners refuse to disclose, but they discussed today with the Associated Press the results of their conferences with delegations throughout Syria and other parts of Asia Minor.

The Syrians generally hold that Palestine should be included in Syria, to afford a united country, and oppose the Zionist movement, under the contention that the Jews form only 10 per cent. of the population of Palestine at the present time, and the Moslems fear an influx from other countries.

The Syrians and all other peoples regarded the American mission as a means of taking a plebiscite, and frankly expressed their views, which the commissioners say probably would not have been possible had an international mission gone to Asia Minor, as the conference contemplated. The French however, refused to participate in such a mission, and because of French unwillingness the British withheld delegates.

Apparently there is a majority sentiment throughout Turkey favoring foreign mandates as the best means for rehabilitating the country, and, except in portions of Lebanon, where the French are favored, the commissioners assert, there seems to be an overwhelming sentiment for a United States mandate.

A joint British-French declaration, which was circulated widely in Syria in November, 1918, promising that the people should be allowed to work out their own government, made a marked impression, and the Syrians are relying firmly upon this promise as a guarantee that they will not be prevented from a free expression of their will.

The American commissioners said their report did not necessarily advise a United States mandate for all of Turkey, but it is believed from their discussions that they have reported that in their opinion, much more than Armenia and Constantinople should be included in the American mandate if the United States decides to accept it.

MAYOR CALLS FARE INCREASE ILLEGAL

mission for the Second District a series of zone charges up to 20 cents for a single ride.

"If you wish to take the responsibility of interfering with the rights and comfort of the people it is your perogative to ask the courts to reverse my order.

"If a public official, acting under advice of counsel and satisfied that a certain line of action is necessary must be threatened with a review of his actions by the Governor, by those who do not agree with him, all independence of action is destroyed.

"Rubber stamp officials cannot command the respect and confidence of the public nor conserve their own self-respect.

"It is reported in the public press that you intend to apply for a rehearing. Should this be done the request will of course be granted. Every opportunity will then be afforded to show in what respects this order is unwise, unjust, or contrary to law."

Mayor Hylan later made public a letter to Corporation Counsel Burr suggesting that Public Service Commissioner Nixon be prosecuted on the charge of violating Section 1866 of the penal law making it a misdemeanor for a public office to disobey wilfully any law regulating his official conduct, and under Section 26 of the public service law making it a misdemeanor for a public official to abet any illegal act by a public service corporation. The Mayor also told the Corporation Counsel to serve notice on the traction company at once not to attempt to increase its fares.

B. R. T. Men Accept Wage Increase

Brooklyn Rapid Transit employes who met last night at Arcadia Hall in Brownsville voted to accept the agreement of the B. R. T. to increase wages 25 per cent. and leave other questions to arbitration. There was a long wrangle before the vote was taken, in which some of the speakers asserted that the Amalgamated Association had obtained less for the B. R. T. employes than the Interborough Brotherhood had for the Interborough employes.

SAID TO OPPOSE PERSIAN TREATY

State Department Disapproval of Agreement with Britain Is Reported.

RUMOR OF STRONGER STEP

Talk in Washington That Recognition of the Compact Has Been Refused.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The recently signed Anglo-Persian treaty has been submitted to the American State Department by the British Government, which has sounded out the attitude of the Washington Government toward the arrangement.

The State Department is understood to have made a reply in which it indicated that the American Government did not look with favor upon the treaty. There was an unconfirmed report tonight that the State Department has declined to recognize it.

The action of the State Department is approved by several Persian officials in the United States, but is not understood to have the indorsement of Mirza Abdul Ali Khan, Sadigh-es-Sultaneh, who has been intimately connected with Anglo-Persian oil interests and who recently came to Washington as Minister from Persia direct from London, where he held a semi-public office in the oil syndicate and where he has been succeeded at London by his brother, both of whom have been favorable to placing Persia under British tutelage.

It is understood that Kaighosrow Shahrokh, member and Chief Custodian of the Persian Parliament, who was sent to the United States on a special mission and who is now in Washington, has filed with Secretary Lansing a protest against the Anglo-Persian treaty. Certain other influential Persians in this country, some of them Persian officials, are arranging to organize a strong protest against the new arrangement. This protest, the preparation of which is now in progress, alleges that the treaty is invalid, that it was not legally concluded on the Persian side of the document, and that it was negotiated "secretly" by some seven persons who are alleged to have lacked constitutional powers to so act, the fundamental laws of the country requiring that treaties and conveyances be ratified by the Persian Parliament.

Say Parliament Did Not Get It.

It is their contention that the Anglo-Persian treaty was not submitted to the Persian Parliament for approval and is not desired by the bulk of the Persian people.

It will be offered as "evidence" of the sentiments of the Persians that reputable Persian leaders who were then in control of the Persian Government approached both the British and American Governments before the Peace Conference met at aPris, in an effort to obtain a hearing for Persia at that Conference met at Paris, in an effort to Conference itself.

In a note to the then Persian Chargé d'Affaires in Washington, who was Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, in reply to the Persian representations Secretary Lansing stated that "the Government of the United States regards with sympathy the request that Persian delegates be admitted to the Peace Conference with power to take part in the discussion and determination of all questions with which Persia is interested or concerned."

The Anglo-Persian agreement was made public only a short time ago by the British Government in London. It embraced two agreements signed by Great Britain and Persia at Teheran on Aug. 9 last, accompanied by two letters of the same date from the British Minister at Teheran to the Persian Premier.

The first agreement was political in character and promised the cementing of Anuglo-Persian ties and promotion of the progress and prosperity of Persia. According to this agreement, Great Britain agreed in the most categorical manner to respect the integrity and independence of Persia, to supply expert advisers for the Persian administration to be engaged on contract and endowed with adequate powers, to supply at Persia's cost such offficers, munitions, and equipment as might be adjudged necessary by a joint Anglo-Persian commission of military experts for a uniform Persian force to preserve order, to prescribe a loan for these purposes, to co-operate with the Persian Government in railway construction and other forms of transport, and finally both Governments agreed to the immediate appointment of a joint committee to examine and revise the existing customs tariff.

The second agreement related to a loan of £2,000,000 at 7 per cent., redeemable in twenty years, and to be secured on the revenues and customs reserved and assigned for the repayment of the 1911 loan. Should these prove insufficient Persia, under the agreement, is to make good the difference from other sources of revenue. Article V. of the Anglo-Persian agreement of 1911 is included in the understanding.

The first letter of the British Minister to the Persian Premier, according to information received here announced as further evidence of the British Cabinet's good will the latter's readiness to co-operate with the Persian Government in securing a revision of the existing Anglo-Persian treaty, compensation to Persia for damages inflicted, and the rectification of the Persian frontier, where the parties agree it is justifiable.

The second letter of the British Minister to the Persian Premier stated that Great Britain would not claim from Persia the cost of the maintenance of the British troops which had to be sent to defend Persia's neutrality, while Persia would claim no indemnity for any damage that may have been caused.

Delegation Sent to Paris.

After the then Persian Government had received assurances from certain allied Governments of sympathy and support and recognition of right to representation at the Peace Conference, the Persian Government sent a delegation to Paris last January. The Persian mission presented certain claims of the country to the Peace Conference on Feb. 14, 1919, followed by a supplementary memorandum on March 23, and a reminder on April 6. Those Persians who oppose the new Anglo-Persian treaty and who tried to bring about Persian representation at the Paris conference seem to feel that no reasonable attention has been paid to Persian demands.

One of the grounds on which Persia claimed the right to appear at the Paris Conference was that England, Russia, and Turkey had violated Persian neutrality and sovereignty during the war. The British, it was claimed, had established military bases on Persian territory and had used it as ground for military operations.

While it has not been demonstrated that the British Government had made any promise to favor participation by Persia in the Peace Conference, the former Persian Chargé d'Affaires at Washington communicated to the Washington State Department some months ago what purported to be a copy of a note from the British Minister at Teheran to the Persian Foreign Office, in which it was asserted that "the British Government, on its own part, is ready to receive the empowered representative of Persia at the place where the Peace Conference will be held, so that he may give information when matters pertaining to Persia may be discussed."

After the Peace Conference met, the American Government having endeavored to arrange for a hearing for Persia at Paris, a delegation appeared claiming to represent the Persian Government, but was unable to obtain a hearing through the alleged interposition of another power. The allegation is being made by Persians who are in opposition to the Anglo-Persian treaty that the young Persian Shah, who is 23 years old, in fear of losing his throne, removed certain Persian officials from office and appointed successors who favored the making of the Anglo-Persian treaty.

DECLINE IN FOOD PRICES DUE SOON

investigators had been sent out, he said, with instructions to verify the reports. If it is found they are true the dealers will be summoned by the Food Administrator and warned. They will be branded as profiteers if they persist, Mr. Williams said.

"Just because Coney Island is in the nature of a Summer resort," he said, "the dealers there have no right to consider themselves free to ignore the agreement made by the grocers and butchers with the Fair Price Committee. They are either with us or against us in this fight against high prices."

As a result of the questioning of ten alleged profiteers yesterday by Assistant Federal Attorney Charles J. Buchner in Brooklyn, information was given, Buchner said, by which he expects to make a roundup of sugar profiteers. Eight of the alleged profiteers questioned were said to be sugar men. While the other two were said to be rent profiteers the latter were said to have promised to lower the rents at once. The clue given by one of the alleged sugar profiteers to sugar hoarding in Brooklyn and excessive prices for that commodity was said to be very important. No names were disclosed.

Army Food Sales Continue.

Enthusiasm for supplies of surplus army food on sale in the schools all over the city continued high yesterday, and last night, Commissioner of Markets, Jonathan C. Day, in charge of the sales, estimated that the cash received was in the neighborhood of $90,000. In several of the school buildings, sales would have been considerably higher had it not been for the fact that supplies ran short and could not be replenished with the trucks and workmen at the disposal of the city authorities.

"We are moving the food from the army bases just as rapidly as is possible under the conditions," said the commissioner. "Our half million pounds of bacon brought to the warehouse at Fifty-ninth Street and First Avenue is about cleaned out, but we will have another 500,000 pounds of it in there again by Monday. The barges have proved a great help in moving the supplies quickly."

The commissioner said that next Tuesday five more school buildings would be opened in Queens. They are:

Public School.	Location.
7	Van Alst and Flushing Av., Astoria.
77	Covert Av. and Centre St., Ridgewood.
16	Sycamore Av., Corona.
6	Steinway Av., Jamaica Av.
88	Fresh Pond Road, near Elm Av.

Today the sales will close at noon. Next Tuesday, when primaries are held in many of the school buildings, the food sales in those buildings will continue from 10 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. In other schools the sales will go on as usual. Dr. Day said that before next week was ended he hoped to have food on sale in a hundred schools.

Deputy Commissioner of Markets Edwin J. O'Malley said last night that the city had obtained a few additions to the stock originally received from the Government, and that these additions would be put on sale Tuesday. A list of the articles follows:

Evaporated apples, in fifty-pound cases, at	$9.00
Evaporated peaches, in fifty-pound cases, at	9.50
Evaporated prunes, in fifty-pound cases, at	9.00

These articles may only be purchased by the case. There will also be put on sale asparagus to be sold by the can at 27 cents, and assorted jam by the can at 30 cents. These prices, Mr. O'Malley said, were all considerably lower than the prevailing market quotations.

Sale of Army Shoes Closes.

The sale of army shoes at the Meade Shoe Company in Brooklyn ended last night at 6 o'clock when the last of a stock of between 16,000 and 17,000 pairs of shoes were sold. The price prevailing at the sale was $5.50. After he had closed out his stock, James Meade, the President of the company, said that he had been well pleased with the way the people responded to his offer of inexpensive shoes. He had had a stock of 30,000 pairs in all, he said, but had turned 15,000 pairs back to the factory. He could not continue to handle the crowd, he said. Mr. Meade added that he had written a letter to Washington on the subject and had tried to persuade the War Department to put these shoes now in the factory, as well as others that might be in storage elsewhere, on sale in an armory.

"From the way men and women crowded into my salesrooms," said Mr. Meade, "the people are more than willing to buy all the army shoes the Government will sell."

U. S. TAKES EVIDENCE AGAINST DAIRYMEN

Records of Grand Jury That Investigated League Turned Over to Federal Attorney.

The records of the Grand Jury inquiry into the Dairymen's League in 1917, which led to the indictment of several officers of the league, were turned over yesterday to United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey, following his request on Thursday upon District Attorney Edward Swann for all of the records in the case. To turn over the Grand Jury minutes it was necessary to have a special order signed by Judge William H. Wadhams in the Court of General Sessions.

Judge Wadhams's order permits Mr. Caffey to have all the evidence obtained by the District Attorney at the time of the indictments. This includes not only the Grand Jury record, but statements made to the District Attorney during his investigation.

Proceedings against the Dairymen's League officers were dropped following the passage of an amendment to the Donnelly anti-trust law, which specifically exempted the dairymen from the provisions of that legislation.

District Attorney Swann in his application to Judge Wadhams yesterday said that Federal action could be taken against the league. The league's operations are not confined to New York State, and this circumstance makes Federal action possible under laws affecting interstate commerce.

There are approximately 40,000 members of the league, of whom about 80 per cent. are in New York State. Seven of the members were indicted in 1918 on the charge of conspiring to fix prices at which their product should be sold.

The Dairymen's League News, the official organ of the league, gives the price fixed by the league for September milk as $3.21 per 100 pounds, with a 3 per cent. butterfat test. When pasteurized this milk is classed as Grade B milk.

In the same issue members of the league are asked to interest their Congressmen in a bill to permit collective sales of farm products. This bill is now pending before both houses. "It is evident," says the article, "that the organized middlemen are, by concerted action, attempting to place the blame for the high prices on the farmers. A part of the work to be done is to show Congress and the Government that the existing high prices are hitting the farmers harder than any other class."

STORAGE FISH CONDEMNED.

New Jersey Condemns 55,000 Pounds Unfit for Food.

SEASIDE HEIGHTS, N. J., Aug. 29.—Fifty-five thousand pounds of fish held in cold storage by the Barnegat Power and Cold Storage Company for the Bay State Fish Company of Boston were condemned after a hearing here today by Judge William H. Jeffrey of Ocean County. Complaint had been made by the State Department of Health, which declared that the fish was unfit for human food. The fish consists of 102 boxes of halibut, 140 boxes of sardines, and 80 boxes of mackerel. The fish was ordered turned over to the custody of a constable of the Ocean County courts, and disposed of for purposes other than food. The money from the sale was directed to be turned into the courts. It is likely that the product will be sold as fertilizer.

The tags on some of the boxes showed that they had been in cold storage in some warehouses since 1917, while the State law fixes a year as the limit.

SIX GOVERNORS BACK FEDERAL FOOD DRIVE

CONFER WITH MR. PALMER

Their Committee Counsels Increase of Production and Economy in Consumption.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—New impetus was given the Government's campaign to reduce the cost of living at conferences here today, which assured the closest co-operation between Federal and State authorities.

Six Governors, Gardner of Missouri, Milliken of Maine, Burnquist of Minnesota, Campbell of Arizona, Sproul of Pennsylvania, and Couper of South Carolina, and Lieut. Gov. McDowell of Montana, representing the National Conference of Governors, spent several hours studying the situation with Attorney General Palmer, and then called at the White House to offer to President Wilson the full machinery of their States in the effort to restore a normal price level.

As a result, there was greater optimism in the capital tonight over the outlook than has been evident in many days. With the far-reaching State organizations carrying an appeal for economy and increased production into every county, and aiding the Federal authorities in bringing to justice hoarders and profiteers, officials here believed results would be obtained in the next ninety days which would avert the menace of transportation strikes to obtain higher wages.

"After our meeting today with the President and the Attorney General," the Committee of Governors announced, "certain facts are clear:

"1. That all the people of the nation and all organizations should immediately co-operate for the purpose of increasing the production of the necessaries of life.

"2. That economy in consumption and care in purchasing the necessaries of life are equally important with production.

"3. That every agency of the Federal and State Governments should co-operate forthwith to prevent profiteering.

"The Attorney General has assured us that he will pursue under existing and proposed laws all profiteers.

"The suggestion of the Attorney General that a fair-price commissioner be appointed in each of the States and fair-price commissions in the different localities of the States, upon the nominations of the Governors, was indorsed.

"While the Attorney General expressed a desire to rely upon the assistance of community efforts in the direction of the elimination of profiteering, through local fair-price committees, he gave assurance that when such efforts were not forthcoming and results were not satisfactory his department would handle these questions directly.

"The Attorney General was assured that every State agency which could be of service in this emergency was placed at his command and he was at liberty to call for any information and assistance he desired from the State authorities."

The results of the conference here will be communicated immediately to every Governor by Miles C. Riley, Secretary of the National Conference, along with certain other recommendations.

"One of the most important things to be done is to convince the public that prices are not going higher," Mr. Riley said. "President Wilson has said it was apparent that the cost of living had reached the peak, but in spite of the situation we are facing, merchants everywhere are out with advertisements about high prices next week and urging the people to buy all sorts of things now. Most of that is just plain propaganda. Prices won't be higher if the people are not stampeded into purchasing things they don't need or can do without, and we are going to tell them so. If we can convince them the victory is won."

WARN ON MEAT PRICES.

Defenders of Packers Blame Bad Distribution for High Costs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Interjecting some sharp advice and warning to city dwellers as to meat prices, Western stockmen today laid before the Senate Agriculture Committee further protests against the Kenyon-Kendrick bills to regulate the packing industry.

George T. Donaldson, President of the Kansas State Livestock Association, said that, with J. H. Mercer, Cattle Commissioner of that State, and others, he had been investigating the distribution of meats in all the larger Eastern cities.

"Right in your City of Washington," he told the committee, "I've found the forequarters of beef selling to the retailer for 8 cents a pound, and selling to the consumer at 32 cents."

Mr. Donaldson opposed the regulatory measures.

Mr. Mercer, though opposing the bills, said packers ought to relinquish ownership of stock yards in favor of producers.

W. B. Tagg, an Omaha, Neb., livestock broker, told the committee that a commission to regulate the packing industry and administer licenses would be preferable to a single official. J. H. Bachelor, another Nebraska stockman, attacked the entire proposal, and said that the high price agitation was due largely to "people who want six hours' work and sixteen hours' pay."

Senator Gronna, Republican of North Dakota, asked E. P. Meyers of Hyannis, Neb.: "Did anybody pay your expenses or do anything else to get you to come down here for them?"

"I'm not in favor of the packers," Mr. Meyers retorted. "I'm speaking in my own interest. Cripple the packing business, license it, and add to its cost of operating and you hit me, because the excess cost will have to come out of the producer."

A. E. Stryker, Secretary of the Omaha Livestock Exchange, said that he met "hundreds of shippers every week and never heard one word in favor of any scheme for broadening Government control over the packing industry." He estimated that independent packers bought 750,000 hogs out of 3,000,000 shipped to the yards last year.

$300,000 FOR POLICE FUND.

Proceeds of Field Days Go to Aid of Widows and Orphans.

Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner Wallis announced yesterday that the proceeds from the annual field days of the Police Department amounted to $300,000, which will be added to the fund devoted to the care and support of widows and orphans of policemen who have served less than ten years in the department and are thereby excluded from the benefits of the general pension fund. In addition to this amount a war tax of $30,000 was deducted from the receipts and paid to the Federal Government.

Deputy Commissioner Wallis, who was Chairman of the field day entertainments on July 19 and 26, said that friends of the department had donated advertising valued at $40,000, and that Special Deputy Commissioners had paid all the bills for the luncheons and receptions to Governor Smith and Mayor Hylan, and other public officials and guests. Special Deputy Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker is Treasurer of the fund.

BILL TO INCREASE PAY OF ARMY AND NAVY

Would Give All Officers 30 Per Cent. and Men 50 Per Cent. Increase.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Rear Admiral T. J. Cowie of the Pay Corps of the navy, who had charge of the Liberty bond campaigns in the navy, has prepared a bill for consideration by Congress for increasing the pay of all officers and men of the armed service of the Government—the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard, and marine hospital services. Under the bill, if approved by Congress, all officers, active and retired, of these services would receive an increase of 30 per cent. per annum, and the pay of all enlisted men, active and retired, would be increased 50 per cent.

Discussing his bill today, Admiral Cowie said he was strongly of the opinion that the salaries of all Government officials, high and low, and of all employes on a yearly or monthly basis should be increased "to a degree commensurate with the present cost of living."

"I believe," said the Admiral, "that a liberal increase in salaries should be granted from that of the President down. The salary of the President, Vice President. Cabinet officers and Assistant Secretaries should all be increased 100 per cent.; those of Senators and Representatives 50 per cent., and those of all others in the Government service, on both the military and civil sides, at least 30 per cent. Legislative difficulties, however, present themselves against including all increases in one bill. Hence, I am confining my efforts to what may be properly called the defensive branches of the Government.

"The percentages are designed to take care of what is conservatively estimated will be an average permanent increase in living expenses over the scale which prevailed prior to the war."

BUELOW LOSES LIBEL SUIT.

Socialist Is Upheld in Charge of Abetting Italian Revolutionists.

GENEVA, Aug. 29, (Associated Press.)—During a session of the Grand Council last November Dr. Enderli, Socialist, publicly asserted that Prince von Buelow, former German Imperial Chancellor and Ambassador to Italy, was having relations with Italian anarchists with the object of provoking a revolution in Italy.

Von Buelow demanded an apology. Enderli declined to meet the demand, and maintained that his charges were well founded. Thereupon von Buelow brought a libel suit. The Grand Council appointed a committee of inquiry into the affair, and the committee has just returned a finding in favor of Enderli.

REFUSES FACTS ON MOONEY

Secretary Wilson Says Information Is Not in Public Interest.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—On the ground that publication of such information would be incompatible with the public interest, Secretary Wilson today refused to furnish the House a report on the present activities of the Labor Department in the case of Thomas J. Mooney, who is serving a life sentence after conviction in connection with the preparedness day bomb explosion in San Francisco in 1916.

The report was requested in a resolution introduced by Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas.

In reply to a question about department activities since Mooney's sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, the Secretary said investigations of alien anarchists "have developed clues that lead to the Mooney case," and that these inquiries were being continued.

Seven-Cent Fare in Montreal.

Bridgeport Strike Is Called Off.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 29.—By a vote of two to one the strikers of the Columbia Graphophone Manufacturing Company decided to return to work next Tuesday under the same conditions under which they walked out a month ago. On the other hand the company agrees to take back all the strikers without prejudice, the adjustment of wages in the controversy to be through shop committees and not through union representatives.

ASKS PAPERS TO BAR LUDENDORFF STORY

Senator Chamberlain Calls Pure German Propaganda.

APPEALS TO PATRIOTISM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Senator Chamberlain of Oregon today appealed in the Senate to patriotic American newspaper publishers to refrain from presenting to their readers the history of the world war written by General von Ludendorff of the German army, which many newspapers have announced they are about to publish serially.

General Ludendorff's book, Senator Chamberlain declared, is Teuton propaganda, handled in the style Ludendorff made most effective in Europe. If American newspapers will not voluntarily withhold it Senator Chamberlain hinted that Government action might be asked to prevent its dissemination. He was joined by Senator Lodge in the expression of the hope that the German story of the war should be given no circulation in this country.

Senator Chamberlain read a telegraphed appeal from a citizen of Portland, Ore., that something be done to prevent publication of the Ludendorff book.

"I concur in the statements in this telegram," said Senator Chamberlain, "and I hope that every American newspaper will take the stand that has been taken by one Oregon paper against this Ludendorff story. It should not be allowed to circulate. The character of the man is reason enough for this."

Reading from a French character sketch, Senator Chamberlain said that Ludendorff was one of the instigators and chief supporters of ruthless submarine warfare; that he gloried in the bombardment of unfortified towns on the ground that by killing women and children he robbed other countries of their future defenders.

Continuing, Mr. Chamberlain said: Are the methods of this ferocious militarist to be allowed to go unchallenged when that this war through propaganda of this sort? Are the methods of this ferocious militarist who was also a clever propagandist, to be allowed to instil into the minds of Americans the belief that Germany's methods were justified and her purposes kindly? We have suffered more than 200,000 casualties, and not only the hospitals, but the asylums of our land are full of young victims of German fiendishness. Are we, then, to let the author of these brutalities corrupt American minds with his story of the war, to show Germany's innocence?"

Senator Chamberlain said he called the attention of Congress to the matter in the hope that there may be some public expression on it.

The telegram read by Senator Chamberlain was from L. B. Seeley of Portland and was as follows:

"Today's Oregonian announces the Ludendorff story of the war will not be printed in the Oregonian. Every one I know here says the patriotic decision of the Oregonian is right and that the Federal Government should forbid at once the publication of the Ludendorff story in every paper of the United States. Why should our dead and maimed soldiers' homes be profaned with Ludendorff's story vindicating Hun brutalities?"

"I am in accord with the views of Mr. Seeley, who sent this telegram," said Senator Chamberlain, "and while I would not undertake to restrain the press from publishing this story if they see fit to do so, yet I would appeal to the patriotism of every newspaper in the United States and beg them, as Congress ought to beg them, not to publish the story of the war.

"My reason for it can be found in the character of the man who writes this story."

After reading an article purporting to be a true character sketch of General Ludendorff, Senator Chamberlain continued:

"That is the character of the man. Can it be that this propaganda is to be disseminated in the United States through the instrumentality of a so-called history of the war or story of the war?"

Senator Lodge, manifesting surprise here interrupted to ask if "such a thing as that," was to be published, adding that he hoped it would not be done.

Senator Chamberlain then denounced the Ludendorff story as German propaganda "deliberately planned to poison the minds of the American people."

At the office of The World, which advertises the Ludendorff history for serial publication in New York, it was said last night that no comment would be made at present on Senator Chamberlain's appeal.

HANDICAP AIR RACE ENDED AT MIDNIGHT

Unofficial Figures Give Clergyman-Aviator Best Time Among the American Entrants.

The New York-Toronto and return international handicap race for $10,000 in cash prizes offered by John McE. Bowman and trophies by the Aero Club of Canada and the American Flying Club ended at midnight, but the names of the winners will not be known until Tuesday or Wednesday. A great deal of work is involved in homologating the records, according to the Contest Committee, and it will be necessary to work day and night to complete them by that time.

Lawrence L. Driggs, President of the American Flying Club, under whose auspices the contest was conducted; Chance Vought, Roy Conger, and Major Archie Miller, members of the Contest Committee, expressed satisfaction last night over the race. Mr. Vought commented on the performance of the Liberty motor in the race and said the contest had added new glory to this all-American engine.

Unofficial records kept at Roosevelt Field show that Lieutenant L. W. Maynard, the clergyman-aviator, in a De Haviland, made the best time of the American entrants, flying the round trip in 7 hours 47¼ minutes. Lieutenant Dan B. Gish, who finished yesterday afternoon in a similar plane, came second, his unofficial time being 8 hours 23 minutes.

What is believed to be a new non-stop record was made by Major J. W. Simmons, who flew from Toronto to Roosevelt Field yesterday in a 400-horse power De Haviland-4, making the trip in 3 hours and 44 minutes. He said he averaged a speed of 140 miles an hour for the 520 miles he flew. He originally was an entrant from this end, but made such poor time to Canada that he decided to try for a non-stop record. Major Simmons's performance does not entitle him to any of the prizes, as the rules of the contest provide for stops at control stations between Toronto and Mineola.

Reports were received from Canada that all of the entrants from there had completed the race except for a few who had withdrawn. The logbooks and records of the Canadian contestants are being rushed to New York for homologation.

Army officers at the field said that the contest marked the end of the usage of the three aviation fields at Mineola. Orders have been received, it was said, to abandon the fields during this week and send the men to Southern aviation centres. There are 800 men at Hazelhurst, and their transfer to other places will continue until Oct. 1, when only four enlisted men will be left at each of the fields to guard property valued at approximately $30,000,000.

The prizes in the race will be awarded for both speed and reliability. As explained by Chance Vought, the award of the prizes for reliability will be based on the actual performance of the machines as against their theoretical performance in still air. Army contestants are barred by regulation from receiving money, but they may accept the trophies, if winners.

LAST OF CANADIANS FINISH.

Young, Simmons, and Parmer Complete Trip in Safety.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29.—At midnight, the international aerial handicap between New York and Toronto was finished. Mr. Edward Lowe, Jr., of the American Flying Club, who has been in charge of the Toronto control, expressed complete satisfaction with the results which have been achieved.

"Both in the number of entries and the distance covered," he said, "this has been the biggest thing of its sort ever attempted, and it has been highly successful. It will undoubtedly lend impetus to the progress of aeronautics on this continent."

As all of the New York entries had passed through the Toronto control during the previous days of the race, and all but three of the pilots who entered here had either completed their flight, or withdrawn their entries, the day was a quiet one at the leaside aerodrome. It was marked only by the arrival of the remaining three Canadian contestants, two of whom flew in from Buffalo during the morning, while the third reached here shortly after noon.

Lieutenant Wallace Young was the first to arrive, reaching the Toronto control at 11:50. He was followed eleven minutes later by Major J. W. Simmons, who had re-entered from this end after covering one-half of the course. Lieutenant O. S. Parmer, one of the original entries from Leaside, was the last to arrive, landing his Standard machine at 2:35.

During the day Major R. W. Schroder, who was the first of the pilots to finish at this end, left in company with Sergeant C. B. Coombs for Dayton, Ohio, on a non-stop flight to that city. Major Simmons, after completing his race here, left within less than two hours on a non-stop flight to New York.

Lieutenant Melville, who commands the big Caproni bomber, will not return to New York until some time tomorrow. He was forced to drop out of the race owing to engine trouble.

MAIL AVIATORS' RECORDS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Reports made by postal aviators to the Post Office Department show that flying across the mountains from New York to Bellefonte, Penn., has proved to be the most difficult route of the air mail service. This is in part due to the fact that the valleys and cities are blotted out by the early morning ground fogs, leaving only the tops of the ridges exposed as landmarks to aviators.

It is also due in part to the changeable velocity and direction of the winds over the 215-mile trip from Belmont Field on Long Island to Bellefonte in the heart of the mountains caused by the variety of topographical changes in valleys and mountains. The greatest wind velocities are found during the Summer time in that region. This is shown in the variations of speed of the fast planes of the air mail service.

Out of 101 trips thirty-nine were made at speeds ranging from 101 to 132 miles an hour, and thirty-nine trips were made at speeds between eighty-one and 100 miles an hour. There were only four trips in a period of nearly two months in which the wind was strong enough to hold the speed down to less than sixty miles an hour.

Miles Per Hour.	Runs.	Miles Per Hour.	Runs.

CARRANZA DENIES KNOWING ALTENDORF

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 29.—President Carranza has telegraphed to Ygnacio Bonillas, Mexican Ambassador to the United States, denials of the statements of Dr. Paul Bernado Altendorf, telegraphed here from the United States, that he had acted as intermediary between von Eckhardt, the German Minister here, and Carranza.

Dr. Altendorf never had any rank in the Constitutional Army, said President Carranza today. He said he had never seen Dr. Altendorf. During the war, as now, he said, he was only concerned with the pacification of his country. His only thought had been to place Mexico on a sound footing.

He asserted that he was unable to understand the attitude of the United States, as each day his country was improving. The bandits were being dominated and the general business condition was much better.

Speaking of the oil land situation President Carranza stated that the charges made against him of wishing to cut off the supply of oil were absolutely unfounded, as the export statistics showed a volume of shipments greater each month. During the war the shipments were only limited by the amount of available shipping. Many wells were not producing to full capacity owing to a lack of steamers.

International questions, the President said, would be fully treated in his message at the opening of Congress.

Catholic Archbishop of Mexico Declares Hostility of His Church.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 29.—Mgr. José Moray Del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico and the highest prelate of the Catholic Church in the republic, says in an interview published by El Democrata today that the Catholic clergy of Mexico strongly opposes armed intervention, and are seeking in no way to ally themselves with parties favoring intervention.

Excelsior, in an editorial today, sharply criticises the United States for its "vacillating policy" toward Mexico, which thus far, it says, has only given stimulus to attacks upon the Government.

ACCUSES VIVIAN GREEN.

Wife Answers Suit for Separation, Denying Threats.

Mrs. Emma E. Green, Vassar and Barnard student, and daughter of Felix Jellenik, retired lawyer, filed an answer in the Supreme Court yesterday to a suit by Vivian Green, head of the Realty Supervision Company, for a separation on the ground that he is afraid to live with the defendant because she made threats against him.

Mrs. Green denied making the statements alleged but said she once slapped her husband when he put her father out of their home when her father was just recovering from an operation. She alleged that her husband treated her cruelly and abandoned her on July 14.

UPROOTS TELEPHONE AFTER 35-MINUTE WAIT

Broker Tells Police of Benumbed Arm and 20 Cents Lost—Didn't Get His 'Party.'

A man who said he was Edward P. Myers, 52 years old, a broker, living at 242 West Seventy-second Street, was arrested last night on a charge of malicious mischief by Harold Bleicher of 70 East 106th Street, a salesman in a drug store at 384 Manhattan Avenue. Bleicher alleged that the broker had used abusive language while telephoning in the store and pulled the receiver from the phone with such force that the wires were torn from the telephone.

After placing Myers under arrest Bleicher took him to the West 123d Street Station, where Myers, who was well dressed, carried a gold-headed cane and wore a red rose in the lapel of his coat, denied that he had used improper language. He told the Lieutenant that he had been more than thirty-five minutes on the wire, trying to get a party at a hotel in regard to an engagement. He said he had been watching the clock directly in front of the phone booth window, and that he had put 10 cents into the coin box and had not "got his party." He said that after waiting fifteen minutes he decided to put another nickel into the slot. After waiting another twenty minutes he alleged the operator asked, "What number are you calling?"

Myers said he then decided to call for the telephone manager. After another wait of a few minutes, he said, a woman's voice on the wire announced that she was the supervisor. The broker said that after he had explained to her she hung up. He waited a few minutes more, he said, in the expectation that something would be done. While waiting his hand became tired and numb, and as his arm dropped he dragged on the receiver accidentally.

He emphatically declared that it was not intenionally done and that the wire must have been loosened. Myers a few moments later was released under $500 bail, furnished by John Tonjes, proprietor of the Colonial Hotel, 125th Street and Eighth Avenue.

KAHN WOULD HONOR MARCH

Will Lead the Fight to Make General's Rank Permanent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Two permanent American Generals will be created as the result of the war, in the opinion of Representative Julius Kahn, Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, who today announced that he would lead the fight to make General March a permanent General.

Opposition has existed among several Congressmen thus to honoring General March, based chiefly on their dislike of the attitude General March has assumed toward members of Congress. This feeling, however, was not well grounded and seems to have disappeared.

It is intended to make Admirals Sims and Benson permanent Admirals of the Navy, and two men in each branch of the service will be given distinctive honors because of their military activities.

Representative Thomas S. Butler, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, has declined thus far to report a bill to confer higher honors on officers of the Marine Corps. He is reported to be bitter against the service for personal reasons, but impelled by his friends in the Naval Affairs Committee, it is believed, he will finally agree to honoring at least the higher marine officer who was active on the field of battle.

$16,000,000 to be Devoted to Education as He Suggested.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 29. (Associated Press.)—The Belgian Government has accepted the proposal of Herbert Hoover, Director General of the Inter-Allied Relief Organization, that the final assets of the Belgian Relief Commission, amounting to about $16,000,000, be devoted to the creation of a foundation for the higher education of children of the workers and people of limited means.

The assets consist of deposits in Belgian banks and equipment and stores which have not yet been realized upon.

LIKED DRUM MAJOR BEST.

Warren Pershing Is Little Impressed by Kings and uQeens.

PARIS, Aug. 29, (Associated Press.)—Warren Pershing, the ten-year-old son of the American Commander in Chief, who will return to the United States with his father Sept. 1, has been privileged to meet most of the prominent leaders of Europe, including several Kings and Queens. This has made little impression on him, however, and he remains the same natural American boy as when he came across seas to join his famous father.

Warren wears a Sergeant's uniform and calls himself "Sergeant Pershing." While in uniform he strictly adheres to all the regulations pertaining to that rank.

After he had witnessed the peace parade in London, when he was received by King George, Queen Mary, the Dowager Queen Alexandra, and scores of other notables, a group of American officers engaged him in conversation. Warren had nothing to say about royalty, but suddenly his eyes brightened and he exclaimed: "That big Scotch drum Major with the dress on and the high thing on his head was the one I liked best!"

WARNS SERBIA MAY FIGHT RUMANIA

Jugoslav Foreign Minister Says Further Aggression in Temesvar Banat Will Be Resisted.

DEMOBILIZED MEN CALLED

And Rumanians Will Find Very Different Enemy from Bela Kun's Rabble, Trumbitch Says.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—A vehement protest against the Rumanian attitude in the Banat of Temesvar coupled with an outspoken warning that Serbia will meet further aggression with force, was made today by the Jugoslav Foreign Minister, M. Trumbitch. He said:

"I want to emphasise the fact that the Jugoslavs are in no wise animated by a jingo spirit in this matter. Since the termination of hostilities we have been and still are determined to abide by the decisions of the Peace Conference even should they be contrary to our desires. We have scrupulously observed the boundaries fixed by Paris and when in Banat the portion of territory we claimed was assigned to Rumania we promptly withdrew our forces behind the line of demarkation. We have done our utmost to restrain our soldiers from any aggressiveness in attitude, talk or action that might lead to undesirable incidents, and have enjoined a spirit of moderation on the press and public at home.

"The result seems to have been that the Rumanians have been merely emboldened. They have concentrated very large forces in Banat and seem to be making evident preparation for an attempt to occupy the whole of it. They have withheld rolling stock, barges and other material belonging to us, and the behavior of their troops in Banat, where they almost encircle our forces is frankly insulting. Bratiano lays claim to the Banat, and the Rumanians talk openly of seizing by arms what the conference refused them.

"Let them beware, our patience is nearly exhausted. If relying on superior numbers they try to put their threats into practice we shall resist them with armed force and bloodshed. We want to live at peace with our neighbors and no not want war, but we shall not hesitate to fight if the Rumanians try to wrest from us our territory.

Asked his opinion on the parallel between the position of M. Bratiano and the Italian leaders Sonnino and Orlando in May and June, M. Trumbitch replied:

"The parallel is the closest possible, even to detail of fact, in that like the Italians, Bratiano bases his unjustified claims on an obsolete secret treaty. When Rumania entered the war in 1916 the Banat of Temesvar was assigned her by France, England and Italy as part price of her collaboration. The Rumanian Premier had the audacity to advance this agreement as the basis of Rumania's right to the whole region.

"He was promptly told that the separate peace treaty Rumania made with the victorious enemy at Bucharest nullified the former agreement and that the Banat would be divided according to the just principles of nationalities. But, like the Italian Ministers, Bratiano was compelled to pursue a policy that was ever more aggressive to maintain his own position. The national appetite has been whetted by the defeat and plunder of the Hungarians. Now it would seem it cannot be satisfied save by the Jugoslav part of the Banat. If that be so the Rumanians will find a very different enemy from the undisciplined rabble of Bela Kun.

The Rumanians are said to have fifteen divisions concentrated on the L-shaped boundary line between their territory and that of the Jugoslavs in the Banat, so that they are in position to menace the latter, whose forces, only three or four divisions, are on two sides at once. Incidents have already occurred as the result of Rumanian aggressiveness, and even without a forward movement on the part of the Rumanians something may occur at any moment which will set a match to the powder barrel.

To avoid this the Jugoslavs asked that French or allied troops should occupy the boundary line, but it appeared there were none available. The Jugoslavs have stopped their demobilization, and even called up some classes that had already been released. Short of an actual conflict it is difficult to see how the situation could be graver.

To illustrate the Rumanian viewpoint, it is worth relating an incident that occurred when the Banat question was being discussed by the Peace Conference. The northeastern corner was assigned without protest by the Jugoslavs to Rumania, but both parties laid claim to the remainder. The conference decision was announced, dividing the territory pretty equally between them, the northern half to Rumania and the southern, which runs almost up to Belgrade, to the Jugoslavs. The Rumanian representative, M. Michu, repeated the demand for the whole region.

"What!" said President Wilson, sarcastically, "You want everything right to the gates of Belgrade?"

M. Michu speaks English, but perhaps not enough to appreciate the finer subtleties. At any rate, says my informant, his face lit up and, with the air of a man who at last has found a sympathizer to understand him, he replied heartily:

TELL WHAT TEUTONS STOLE.

3,705,148 Tons of Goods Taken from Rumania, It Is Said.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Rumanian authorities have discovered in Transylvania highly important statistical material from which it appears that the Central Empires, between Dec. 1, 1916, and Oct. 19, 1918, removed from Rumania 3,705,148 tons of merchandise, of which 2,161,605 tons were foodstuffs and the rest petroleum and raw materials, says a Havas message from Bucharest.

Hundreds of thousands of carloads were removed to Austria-Hungary alone, and it is pointed out that the figures quoted, which are said "certainly not to err on the side of exaggeration," concern only what is officially described as "exports." They do not include postal parcels which German and Austrian invaders sent home by the carload daily, nor what the army of occupation consumed.

"In view of this immense spoliation," the message adds, "the absence of Rumanian delegates from the Indemnities Commission and American protests against clauses in the new armistice with Hungary seem at least strange. The armistice does not restore one-fifth of what Hungary has stolen from us."

GENERALS TO TAKE TURNS.

Each Will Preside Over Allied Military Mission in Hungary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—An official telegram from Paris today states that upon the request of Italian Foreign Minister Tittoni the Peace Conference has decided that the Presidency of the Committee of Allied Generals in Budapest shall be held in turn by each of the four officers.

Premier Clemenceau moved that a peremptory order be dispatched to the Rumanian Government forbidding it to continue the removal of material out of Hungary. No action was taken, as Foreign Minister Tittoni reminded the conference that its message to the Rumanian Government with respect to the requisitions made by the Rumanian forces in Hungary had only reached Bucharest yesterday, and that, therefore, the Rumanian Government had not yet had time to examine and reply to it.

Advices from Rome today say the Italian press is still seriously concerned over the danger of a restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty in Austria and Hungary. These advices quote the Rumanian Premier, Bratiano, as declaring his country was hostile to the project to restore the Hapsburgs, considering it vital to the interests of the Rumanian people that such a consummation must not be permitted.

SEEKS TO OUST FRIEDRICH.

Heinrich, Budapest Business Man, Forms Rival Cabinet.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Thibune Co.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 27, (via Paris, Aug. 29.)—Tumultuous Budapest again is lifting its head after four months of Bolshevism, and a new popular rule seems on the threshold of power.

The new regime is organized under Franz Heinrich, a wholesale hardware dealer and business man of Budapest, who has been chosen by the liberals for Prime Minister. The proposed Heinrich Government was formed for taking over control of the nation from Prime Minister Friedrich, successor to Archduke Joseph, but Friedrich is proving more reactionary than the Archduke and obstinately refuses to give up his power. Nevertheless, the pressure on the Friedrich Government is increasing hourly, and the crisis seems at hand.

Last night, after announcement of the Heinrich Cabinet, Friedrich declared he would remain as head of the temporary Government. This morning his attitude had changed from stubbornness to defiance. He declares he has the nation behind him, and defies any party to remove him from the Ministerial chair.

QUESADA'S BODY HOME.

Former Minister to Germany to be Buried in Havana Today.

HAVANA, Aug. 29.—The gunboat Cuba, bearing the body of Gonzalo de Quesada, the first Minister from Cuba to the United States, arrived here today. Señor de Quesada was Minister to Germany, where he died nearly three years ago, but on account of the war his body could not be returned earlier.

The casket was borne from the docks to the City Hall on the shoulders of marines, escorted by several officials, including Vice President Nunez. The gunboat fired a fifteen-gun salute as the procession moved toward the City Hall. All flags in the city were flown at half-mast.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon with full military honors.

REPORT KRONSTADT AGAIN BOMBARDED

CAUCASUS TRIBE REVOLTS

Loss of Pskov Ascribed to German Intrigues and Disputes Among Anti-Red Commanders.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A heavy bombardment lasting two hours was heard in Viborg, Finland, on Aug. 27, in the direction of Kronstadt, the Bolshevist naval base near Petrograd, says a Helsingfors message today. It is supposed that British naval and air forces were engaged.

The British Admiralty has received no advices regarding the reported bombardment.

Successes on the fronts of Admiral Kolchak and General Denikin are claimed in Bolshevist wireless communications received here, one of which says:

"Thirty miles southwest of Medvieditzkaya our cavalry defeated an enemy division, capturing 2,000 prisoners, including the staff. Our troops are in pursuit. We have advanced thirty miles from Kamishin south.

"We have occupied Saharanata, on the right bank of the Ural River, capturing ammunition and rifles and one airplane. Our advance on Aktubinsk and Orsk continues."

The towns of Kupiansk, sixty-one miles east-southeast of Kharkov, and Pavlovsk, on the Don River, ninety miles south-southeast of Voronezh, on the front of General Denikin, have also been captured, according to another statement, which reads:

"The towns of Kupiansk and Pavlovsk have been captured. Following the capture of Pskov we advanced ten miles."

General Denikin's forces in the Caucasus are having trouble with the native population. It is claimed in a third Soviet wireless message which says that the town of Vladikarkaz, in the Central Caucasus North of Tiflis, has been captured by Ingush troops after fighting five days with General Denikin's forces. The Ingush are classified as a part of the Chechen population of the Caucasus, and number some 50,000 in all.

As regards the recent capture of Pskov, a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Helsingfors says it was due to German intrigues and lack of harmony among the anti-Bolshevist commanders. The correspondent's account of the affairs says that on Monday of this week General Judenich, the Russo-Esthonian Army leader, sent General Arsenieff, head of the pro-German and Monarchist Russian faction, to arrest the anti-Bolshevist guerrilla General Balakovitch who had been made a hero of by the people of Pskov. General Arsenieff did not succeed in apprehending General Balakovitch, the guerrilla chief escaping but seized the members of General Balakovitch's staff.

After this coup had been carried out, the account continues, General Balakovitch's troops refused to take orders from General Arsenieff and quit their posts, leaving a gap through which the Bolsheviki poured.

Charges of treason had been made against General Balakovitch, the correspondent adds, but no confirmation of the truth of the accusations had been obtained.

OMSK SENDS FOOD TO NORTH.

Large Supplies Sent to Archangel and Judenich's Army.

OMSK, Aug. 12, (Russian Telegraphic Agency.)—The Ministry of Supply of the All-Russian Government has sent to the Provisional Government of Northern Russia nearly 10,000 tons of wheat, more than 1,000,000 pounds of butter, and great quantities of other foodstuffs.

Large supplies of wheat, rice, and tea have also been sent by the Northern Sea route for the army of General Judenich, in command of the Russo-Esthonian forces operating in the Petrograd region.

The Carpathian Russians in Siberia have formed a volunteer corps and joined the Siberian Army. Many Czechoslovaks likewise have joined the volunteer forces and have asked to be dispatched immediately to the front.

More than 200 delegates attended the fifth extraordinary congress of the Siberian Cossacks, recently concluded. The congress approved the mobilization of the Cossacks up to the age of 55 years, and expressed its readiness to make all sacrifices necessary for final victory over Bolshevism. It adopted the following declaration unanimously:

"In this time of great trial for our native country we, the Siberian Cossacks, are placing all our strength at the disposal of Admiral Kochak, who is leading the Russian armies against the enemies of the Russian people and under whose leadership the Russian armies are fighting for the regeneration of a united, great, and democratic Russia."

Admiral Kolchak, the head of the Omsk Government, appeared before the congress and in an address thanked the representatives of the Siberian Cossacks for their display of patriotism.

Refugees who have arrived here from Turkestan declare that the country has been thoroughly devastated by the Bolsheviki. They report the cotton plantations destroyed and the population poverty-stricken.

WARSAW, Aug. 29.—The Polish Foreign Minister has decided to send representatives to all the Russian Governments except the Soviet Government at Moscow, it was announced today.

High Commissioners will be accredited to Omsk, the seat of the All-Russian Government of Admiral Kolchak, and to the headquarters of General Denikin, leader of the anti-Bolshevist forces in Southwestern Russia. Delegates will be sent to Armenia, Georgia, Esthonia, Livonia, and Azerbaijan, Persia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—General Denikin has sent a commercial attaché to Stockholm, where he will be charged with the duty of aiding the Russian Legation in stimulating trade between Sweden and the section of Southern Russia controlled by the Denikin forces where farming equipment is urgently needed. Recently a ship loaded with Russian products was sent to Gothenberg.

ANTI-RED TROOPS ROUTED AT PSKOV

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

REVAL, Aug. 27, (via Copenhagen, Aug. 29.)—Pskov, the most important city on the Baltic front, has been captured by the Bolsheviki after several days of heavy bombardment. The Russian White Guard line has been pushed back fifteen versts and the retreat is continuing. These are the troops that Kolchak expected would capture Petrograd before the end of September. Campaigning must stop then on account of the rain and cold, but, instead of advancing, the Russian White Guard is being driven in confusion in the opposite direction to Petrograd.

Russian officers say their soldiers mostly are deserters from the Reds, who are fearful of torture if captured by the Bolsheviki, and run away at the appearance of the enemy. The soldiers say they have no confidence in their officers and are afraid if they make a stand that the officer commanding them may have sold out to the Bolsheviki. Several late incidents confirm the reasonableness of this belief.

Colonel Stojakin, Chief of Staff to General Balakovitch at Pskov, was found guilty by a court-martial a few days ago of accepting a bribe of 1,000,000 rubles from the Bolsheviki to turn over a part of the line under his command to the Reds. Stojakin was executed by a firing squad. General Balakovitch is to be placed under arrest, charged with insubordination, but he is said to be thought implicated with Stojakin. There are officers who have deserted to the Bolsheviki on promises of high office and big estates in Russia.

The Russian White Guard is poorly armed and clothed, and is jealous of the Esthonian army, which has been well clothed by England.

I saw the Bolsheviki in good positions wherever I went, with plenty of ammunition, putting down a well-placed fire whenever they felt like it. The Esthonians and Russians said the discipline of the Bolsheviki was excellent. The Red troops are well officered and have plenty of machine guns, cannons, and ten armored trains. The Russian White Guards have now at their front four whippet tanks recently sent by England, but the soldiers declare that the Russians are so afraid of having the tanks captured that they keep them far in the rear.

I talked with Bolshevist prisoners, who looked fat and well clad. They say the Bolsheviki have drafted all able-bodied Russians into the army and compel them to fight. There are 100,000 Bolsheviki on the Narva-Pskov sector. Official reports by the general staff of both armies, issued today, say in the fighting before Pskov the Bolsheviki hung all their prisoners by the heels, stabbed them to death with bayonets, and disemboweled all the wounded.

RHINELAND IS ANXIOUS TO PART WITH GERMANY

Separationists, Disappointed at Delay in Centrum Convention, Now Want a Plebiscite.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, Aug. 25.—No little resentment has been aroused in the Rhineland by the announcement of the indefinite postponement of the National Convention of the Centrum Party at Cologne, at which was to have been aired the question of the establishment of a Rhineland State.

The political leaders in this section are still in favor of a separation from Prussia; and charge that the Centrum leaders and other sections are afraid of the issue. Charges that Erzberger is proving false to the Rhineland are expressed on all sides today by Rhinelanders, who say that the Bavarian and Berlin Centrists are not playing fair with the Rhineland.

The Centrum convention which was to have been held in August was postponed until October, and now come statements by the leaders in Berlin saying that plans for the convention are all off.

The action of the National Assembly in inserting in the Constitution the provision that no separation movement will be countenanced for two years has aroused much dissatisfaction among the political leaders of the Rhineland, where the Centrist Party predominates, and who charge undue coercion. The truth of the matter is that that part of the Centrist Party outside the Rhineland is acting with the other parties in trying to hush up the clamor for a separate Rhineland at this time because they eee danger in the divorce of this section from the rest of Germany. They fear France is working for a buffer State.

However, agitation has not ceased in the Rhineland for a separate State, and every day sees an apparent growth in the sentiment in this direction.

The latest demand of the separationists is for a referendum in the Rhineland on the question. Their opponents have been urging every one to wait until the convention of the Centrists. Now, that this convention has been indefinitely postponed, those who opposed the separation movement are called on for new reasons for quashing the movement.

Dorten's movement in June at Wiesbaden failed because Dorten was not a strong personality, because the French backed the movement, arousing suspicion, and because the British and American army commands opposed the movement. But the agitation now centralized at Cologne has well-known Rhineland politicians behind it, and appears much more solid.

HONORING GENERAL PERSHING.

The four votes recorded in the House of Representatives against the bill to confer upon the commander of the American Army on the battlefields of France the permanent rank of General were cast by three Southern Democrat and a Northern Republican, on the ground that no American soldier in the war should be so highly honored. These gentlemen must have short memories. After the war with Spain, rich in results and memorable for the downfall of Spanish colonial rule, the nation delighted to honor George Dewey by making him Admiral of the Navy for life with a substantial increase of pay. Sea power had won the war in Asia, but Manila Bay, although a decisive victory, was not such a triumph as appeals to the imagination today. Admiral Dewey gallantly accepted the risks of mine fields when he took his fleet in past Corregidor, but once he was in the bay the Spanish squadron was doomed. It is no disparagement of that splendid sailor to believe that the work done by General John J. Pershing in France looms larger and was of greater service to the nation and to the world.

As Representative Campbell of Kentucky said in the House: "General Pershing has demonstrated himself to be such a commander of men that this country cannot afford to bestow upon him too great an honor." It was not because General Pershing commanded 2,000,000 American soldiers in France that he deserves suitable recognition by his countrymen. His title to it was won by his timely skill in organizing and training his troops for the searching ordeal of battle, a work for which he was peculiarly fitted, and by his eminent strategical victories in the field, notably in the great Meuse-Argonne advance, which contributed as much to the defeat and capitulation of the enemy as the breaking of the Hindenburg line by our allies and expulsion of the Germans from Northern France. Great Britain honors her Generals with titles and grants of money, and France numbers her commanders among the immortals. It would be sorry treatment of our victorious General, who has written his name so high on the roll of fame, to deny him during the remainder of his life the rank he held in the Great War.

TAMMANY IS SCARED.

When Tammany does something that stirs public indignation and even disgusts many of the faithful in its own ranks, its usual and wise policy is silence. What is the use of trying to defend the indefensible? Having committed the gross blunder, if it be no more than a blunder, of refusing to renominate Judge Newburger, it is now guilty of the additional blunder of trying to justify itself by attacking him. When the first blunder, the first affront to the public conscience, was perpetrated, the Tammany explanation was simple and expressed in plain Tammanyese. Judge Newburger had held the job long enough. There was some talk about his age, but the real reason was not blinked. A Judgeship of the Supreme Court was merely a job, a piece of spoils to be assigned by the boss in the way that would bring the best returns to the "organization."

The community, whether Democratic Republican, or Independent, was sickened and angered by this attack upon the independence of the judiciary, this violation of the sound tradition and practice that Judges of proved integrity and capacity shall be renominated, this treatment of a great judicial office as the chattel and milch-cow of the boss. So fierce was the storm that Tammany quaked, lost its nerve, lost its head. Reasons for the unreasonable were sought. From the august and inviolable breast of Tammany jurisprudence comes a long statement which, probably, few of the voters of the First Judicial District, to whom it is to be sent, will take the trouble to read. It is a pretty enough piece of sophistry. Judge Newburger's pre-Adamite age of sixty-six is but lightly touched on. The main strength of the composer is given to the eccentric theme that Judge Newburger's record on the bench "is "bad and of exceptional and sur"prising carelessness and ineffi"ciency." One especially entertaining, one delightful passage in this Tammany apologia is too good, too imaginative, too airy-fantastical to lose:

> The real issue is whether the mere fact that a Judge has served a constitutional term of fourteen years and has managed to escape impeachment for malfeasance or incompetence entitles him to a life term of office regardless of his nearness to the age limit wisely fixed by our Constitution for his compulsory retirement, or whether it is not a public duty of political parties to discriminate between capable Judges and those of proved inefficiency or those who, by reason of age or other circumstances, should be required to give way to more competent men.

Even if this were not a breathless sentence its cheerful impudence would take the reader's breath away. Six former Justices of the Supreme Court, George L. Ingraham, Francis M. Scott, each of them a former presiding Justice of the Appellate Division; Samuel Seabury, sometime Judge of the Court of Appeals; David Leventritt, John W. Goff, Clarence J. Shearn, all Democrats, all but one organization Democrats, all nominated and some renominated by Tammany Hall, are a committee to promote Judge Newburger's re-election. These men, and the four bar associations, all advocating that re-election, are sufficient witnesses to Judge Newburger's fitness and efficiency, a matter, besides, of public knowledge. Possibly the sinecure keepers of the Tammany conscience might have found a flabbier method of fruitless attack and defense than is contained in this curious document. They could hardly have invented a better means of assisting Judge Newburger. They can make no effect on the public conviction of his competency. They are trying to throw dust in the eyes of the public, to set up a phantom issue, to divert attention from the real issue. The public knows what that issue is. It is not personal to Judge Newburger. It is the protection and independence of Judges. It is the continuance of a non-partisan judiciary.

STEALING THE VICTORY.

The Germans in the Baltic provinces, the German army that overthrew the Lettish Republic and threatened the Esthonian Republic, now say that they are going to stay. Marshal Foch has ordered them out; General von der Goltz, their commander, has procrastinated, continually promising to get out at some future date; now the soldiers say that they will not get out at all. The German landholding aristocracy, most reactionary of all Germans, and counting with all its supporters less than 10 per cent. of the population, is determined to hold those provinces for Germanism and Junkerism.

It seems that the Germans are also going to stay in Upper Silesia. By the first draft of the Peace Treaty this province, more than two-thirds of whose inhabitants are Poles, was to go to Poland outright. Brockdorff-Rantzau's protests won the concession of a plebiscite; fifteen days after the Treaty went into effect all German and Polish troops and officials were to be out of the disputed territory, and the Allies were to preserve order while all inhabitants had a fair chance to vote as to the disposition of the territory.

But the Germans would not wait for the vote. The district contains coal mines of great wealth and importance; most of the mine owners are German, most of the miners Polish. The Germans provoked industrial disputes which resulted in a strike. At once, under pretext of crushing a Spartacus rising—though the trouble seems to be almost purely a nationalistic quarrel—German troops were sent into the district—150,000 of them, according to Polish estimates. They have behaved in Upper Silesia as they behaved in Belgium; Poles were arrested everywhere and often shot without trial after arrest; Polish homes were invaded and ransacked, and women and children driven out to become refugees. The Poles, unarmed and unprepared, could make but little resistance; by massacre and terrorism many thousands of Poles have been driven to leave their homes and migrate across the border. The Germans evidently hope that they can drive out enough to make the vote safe, or that they can terrorize those who remain.

The Allies have demanded the withdrawal of the German troops and have spoken of the sending into the district at once of allied troops to keep order. But the German Government refuses; it points to the letter of the Treaty, which does not call for withdrawal until fifteen days after it goes into effect—that is, after three of the principal Allied Powers have ratified it.

This is simply a renewal of war. The allied armies have been in great part demobilized, and the Germans are counting on war-weariness to prevent any effectual attempt to stop them as they steal the victory which we won last year. Germans on the Baltic will mean the crushing of Lettish and Esthonian independence, a threat to Finland, and the cutting off of Poland and Lithuania from the sea. Germans in Upper Silesia mean the theft from Poland of a valuable coal supply, which in years past was the backbone of German industry, and the continued enslavement of many hundreds of thousands of Poles. Ever since the war ended the Germans have realized that a strong Poland was the principal barrier to German imperialism and German eastward expansion, and they have given up their other losses to concentrate all their strength on the mutilation of Poland. If they hold Upper Silesia and the Baltic they have half of Poland caught in a German nutcracker.

Poland is cut off from the major allies, and the Germans evidently hope that we will leave her to fight her own battles. The renewal of the blockade, the cutting off of all supplies from the Germans, might bring them to their senses. For the present outrages in Silesia the German Government is directly responsible; it professes inability to deal with the Baltic question, but pressure applied on the Government would show us very promptly if it has any real power, or if it must yield to the Junkers and army officers whenever they desire. We cannot afford to let Germany steal back the strategic points in Eastern Europe; if German plans succeed, the allied victory won last year will be partially neutralized this year by a really great German triumph. Germany can afford to lose Alsace-Lorraine if she can break Poland.

THE STEEL WORKERS' APPEAL.

The steel workers, or some of them, have proposed that the President intervene in their attempt to organize the steel trade. Mr. Gompers has talked to him on the subject, to what effect we do not yet know. This is before the expiration of their ultimatum to Mr. Gary, and before their case is made up. This prematurity is useful as affording an opportunity, without regard to the especial case, to inquire when it is suitable to ask the President to adjust troubles of that sort. It is clear that the President is busy, having both the League of Nations and Congress on his hands, not to mention the railway strikes and a tour of the country, when those subjects and others will be discussed. No doubt the President is first choice as arbitrator, when he can give such matters his attention. But when he is too much preoccupied to consider new business except at second hand, through the advice of agents, it may be that a second choice would be preferred, even by those otherwise preferring the President.

On the other hand, there are reasons why the President should not be troubled unnecessarily. Even perfunctory attention to minor affairs distracts attention from those of primary importance. Also, too ready and numerous applications to the President tend to detract from the dignity of the office, and embarrass the President in distinguishing the cases in which he is willing to intervene from others. A general rule of refusal is better because not discriminating, and because of its protecting the President from the necessity of refusals.

Affirmatively, the cases in which there is some justification for asking the President's good offices are those of novelty and difficulty, lack of experience or precedent by which to guide a decision. The steel trade dispute is not such a case. The President has no such duty toward the steel trade as toward the railways, and, if he were not already in concurrence with the railway situation, its novelty and proportions would distinguish it from the steel case. The President has no particular qualification for deciding what conditions of employment in the steel trade labor is justified in asking, and there are courts and precedents to give or guide decisions about the merits and law of the closed and open shop.

It is a disservice to both labor and capital to oust the courts from their oversight of the relations between workers and employers. It would be sobering to both to let them see that they must manage their own affairs according to the laws and customs of their trade, and cannot appeal to other authority to make special decisions in their favor. Both sides know their lawful rights, and should be left to them. Neither side needs sympathy or instruction, both being man size, and knowing very well what they are about.

LIBRARY EFFICIENCY.

The current Bulletin of the New York Public Library is a welcome reminder of the efficiency with which the institution is conducted. Through the present period of reconstruction, as through the five years of the war, it continues in its even way, building up the reservoir of knowledge and wisdom which, when all is said, is the chief difference between civilization and anarchy.

In a bibliography entitled "The War and After" the Bulletin lists volumes from all lands dealing with the accomplished facts of the recent past and the problems of the present. Such an assemblage of titles is invaluable to any one intent on keeping pace with current thought about the war and its results. Under headings such as "United States," "Great Britain," "Germany," are collected volumes of published documents and official reports.

Of interest to the special student is the second installment of a bibliography on the development of scenic art and stage machinery, which has been compiled by the Chief of the Technology Division, William Burt Gamble. There are separate sections covering the leading countries of the theatrical world and a section on the post-Elizabethan stage. When the bibliography is complete it will cover the entire world, ancient and modern, down to the Little Theatre and the Open Air Theatre.

An article on "Early American Comedy," by Elbridge Colby, is an admirable example of a librarian's helpfulness to the public. It is based on a list of American dramas published in a previous issue of the Bulletin, and it discusses the literary output of our theatre down to the outbreak of the civil war. For the most part, Mr. Colby warns us, American drama was tied in leading strings to the drama of the mother country, and is thus lacking in interest. The absence of copyright law told heavily against the native playwright, and his sorry plight was intensified by a provincial preference for plays of English life, which were often presented by visiting actors from London. In only two periods did the native instinct blaze forth. The era of the Revolution gave birth to a number of anti-English plays, such as "The Battle of Bunker Hill," by Brackenridge, and a farce, "The Blockheads," which was written by Mercy Warren, wife of General Warren, as a retort to Burgoyne's play, "The Blockade." Again, on the eve of the civil war two English dramatists resident here produced plays with an American scene and a distinct American flavor. "Dred; or, The Dismal Swamp," and "The Lottery of Life, a Story of New York," were by John Brougham. "The Poor of New York" and "The Octoroon" were by Boucicault. Of these, the only play to achieve distinct celebrity was "The Octoroon," which continued for some time in the repertory of Joseph Jefferson.

As to the total output of three-quarters of a century, Mr. Colby paraphrases a remark of Dr. Johnson's. If one is to avoid writing of it without personal antagonism to the authors, he must be careful to avoid reading the plays. It is admirable advice, and in giving it Mr. Colby fulfills one of the most useful functions of the librarian.

The continued efficiency of the library is the more noteworthy because of the fact that for years the available funds have been quite inadequate, and have lately been still further reduced.

SENATOR SPENCER'S IDEA.

Senator Spencer of Missouri, one of the "mild reservationists" on the Republican side, proposes a compromise on the Shantung award by which the Senate would adopt a resolution expressing its displeasure with that award, while still leaving it in the Treaty. Thus, Mr. Spencer holds, the Senate could go on record as strongly as it wished and still save the Treaty from the dangers which encompass it.

So far as actual results are obtainable, this would accomplish everything that the most blasting amendment could possibly do. Let the Senate amend the Treaty never so ferociously, Japan will still hold the Shantung concession if she chooses. Two other Powers have consented to her holding it; with them she can confirm herself in title without regard to anything the Senate may do. In any case, Japan holds the Shantung concession and cannot be dislodged from it except by her own consent, a consent which Senatorial language is every day making harder for that proud nation to give.

Therefore Senator Spencer's milder proposal would have all the effect that the most swashbuckling amendment would have. If that effect is none at all, that would not be Senator Spencer's fault. He knows well enough, it is apparent, that all the Republican Senators expect to do is to "go on record"; they are moved by no concern whatever for the fate of China, and are daily taking a course sure to make China's condition less pleasant for her. If there are Chinese who imagine this nation would go to war in behalf of the fragment of Shantung the Japanese wrested from the Germans, they are mistaken.

But Senator Spencer's proposal would have most of the defects of the mad amendment proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee. That is, it would offend Japan, without benefiting China or the United States. The Japanese are not fond of hearing their motives aspersed by formal resolution, as proposed by Mr. Spencer; no fonder than we should be of having the Japanese Diet adopt some such resolution about us. The tone of the Japanese press is proof enough of that:

> The United States Senate is acting wantonly over the Shantung question.—The Hochi.
>
> The attitude of the Republicans in the United States Senate is extremely indiscreet, and they are apparently trying to insult Japan without any proper reason. * * * It is as if Japan deliberately denounced America with regard to Mexican affairs.—The Yoredzu.
>
> If there were the shadow of Japan behind the American-Mexican troubles, how would the public opinion of America become excited! But the shadow of America is often to be seen behind the troubles between Japan and China.—The Osaka Asahi.
>
> The [Senate's] allegations are too excessive, and we fear that they may adversely affect our relations with America.—The Chugai Shogyo.

This is a brief of Japanese opinion about some speeches made in the Senate, not yet the authorized voice of that body. How will that opinion be changed if the Senate puts the whole body on record as proposed in the committee's amendment, or even in the milder proposal of Mr. Spencer to give Japan what she wants and yet assail her in a formal resolution?

There are two ways of dealing with Shantung without losing our dignity. One is to let the clause alone. The other is to declare war on Japan. Any other course will merely alienate her friendship without doing China any good, and with no possible benefit to our own country or the cause of humanity.

A CULTURIST IN ARGENTINA.

Baron von dem Bussche-Haddenhausen, an illustrious German diplomatist, turns up in Argentina, where he was German Minister before the war. He is full of morality, virtuous wrath, and propaganda. Himself one of the proudest monuments of German civilization, he boasts that that pure light will be relumed. Germany will recover "her old place of supremacy." "The Peace Treaty is a monstrosity and an imposition without precedent."

Speaking of monstrosities, it was in the garden of the German Legation at Bucharest, whence Baron von dem Bussche-Haddenhausen, German Minister to Rumania, had just fled on her entrance into the war, that was found, a little less than three years ago, under the eyes of the American Chargé d'Affaires, a German hoard. It contained boxes of explosives meant for the destruction of Rumanian bridges and buildings. It contained richer specimens of German humanity. These were vials of microbes intended to inoculate Rumanian cattle and horses with anthrax and glanders.

What an honor to Argentina is the presence of this humanitarian and zoophilist! To the Argentine cattle raisers and horse breeders, in particular, how "sympathetic" must that heroic and tender figure be!

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wage Demands on Every Side.

The custom tailors and bushelmen demand $40 for a forty-four-hour week. The Brotherhood of Painters demands $40 for a forty-hour week, refusing to appear on Saturdays or Sundays. The Upholsterers' Union offers to take as a compromise $9.25 a day; and if this fair offer is refused it threatens to demand $12 a day. The bedspring makers are out for $10 a week increase on their present high wages. Hitherto you could have your grave dug at $4.50 a day, at which price death was feared by many. Hereafter it will cost $6.

When the Amalgamated Sisterhood of Midwives is heard from, every living moment, from the cradle to the cemetery, will have its own individual trade to support. Meantime we are exhorted to speed up production as the only possible means of averting universal calamity.

Democratic Homage to Royalty.

"You can't expect much of Ottawa," they felt. It is an official, clerkly, middle-class city, more given to critical self-restraint than to popular demonstration. Yet, at the sight of the young Prince, Ottawa turned itself inside out in a riot of acclamation that all but disrupted the ceremonial program. Apparently there is something still in the appeal of royalty, something that touches springs of impulse deeper than our later-day democratic judgments often plumb.

The phenomenon would be less remarkable in any but a community with English traditions. As early as 1264, Simon de Montfort declared that the King should be "subject to law," and that "the generality" should have a hand in framing it. That was the far origin of the House of Commons. In every century thereafter the declaration was repeated, the fight renewed. Today the Crown is a mere symbol, at most an influence, and the House of Lords little more. Yet in a distant, self-conscious Dominion a young Prince looses a storm of crowd psychology. Are we in democratic America different? Not to our advantage, certainly. We have been known to crawl in by the coal-hole to witness the marriage of a millionaire's daughter to a sprig of European nobility. If the Prince strikes us as really a Prince, and worthy of our homage, we shall doubtless praise him, as the Canadians do, for being "democratic."

There seems to be something super-human in it. Maeterlinck describes how the attendants of a queen bee bow and scrape as they retire from her presence, crawling backward. The queen bee, to be sure, is a really important person, being mother of all the hive, the emblem of its future. Mankind has not even that excuse. Homage to royalty is not so much super-human as infra-apian.

Let us not forget, however, that such musings are merely academic. When the time comes we shall behave as irrationally as the Ottawans, and enjoy it as much. In their hearts thousands will envy the farm-boy in overalls and his sister in gingham who met the Prince at the tiny station of Manotick and gave him an apple.

War Prices and the Literary Output.

In normal times a book that sells a thousand copies generally pays for itself. Many a valuable study for which there can be no large public, and not a few first works of genius, have thus been possible. Today, even with the selling price considerably advanced, a larger sale is needed, for the cost of paper and of labor has advanced much further, so that the profit on each volume is reduced. The result, as The Saturday Review points out, can only be a lowering in the general quality of the literary output. Even the man whose talent would eventually be recognized by the great public will find his beginnings doubly hard.

For the English author, The Saturday Review finds a further hardship in the fact that American novels of adventure are winning a larger and larger market abroad. Novelists of London are following their brother playwrights in the manoeuvre of seeking their first public here, in the hope that success will eventually bring their work back across the Atlantic. But the hard luck is not all on one side. Since the prime of Howells and James, work of a certain quality and finish has had only a failing public in America. It was this among other kindred circumstances that made Mr. James an expatriate. Even Mr. Howells's kindly forbearance has not prevented an occasional word of impatience at the increasing vogue of rough writing. Long before the era of war prices, work of the kind that found a fair public in the days of Curtis, Warner, Aldrich and their fellows was vanishing, or had vanished quite.

This is perhaps a merely temporary and somewhat distempered view. Out of all the suffering and the sacrifice of the last few years, the heroism and the triumph, something surely will come. But it is well enough to be on our guard, realizing that things of the spirit also may go down in the chaos and sensation of what we call, with an optimism perhaps unwarranted, the period of reconstruction.

RAILROADERS IN SHIPYARDS.

Their Ability Higher Than Average, Experience Shows.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After reading your editorial of Aug. 25 entitled "New Basis for Wage Claims" I wish to protest your assertion: "If railroad men tried to transfer themselves to the shipyards to get the wages they say are current there, they would find they could not earn them."

As a railroad man of nearly ten years' experience I find that a large percentage of railroad labor is transient, one of the principal reasons being that like craftsmen outside of railroads have always received a higher rate for similar work and that such a differential has never been truly justified.

Since 1917 railroad labor has been more transient than ever, due to the enormous enlargement of the shipbuilding industry in this country, which drew as many if not more men from the railroads than any other industry. The munition and arms factories had already depleted other industries of their skilled craftsmen, leaving the railroads open to appeals of shipyards with their higher rates. To this add the drafting of men for the army and navy and you will see the heavy inroads made on railroad labor.

Thousands of craftsmen from the railroad shops and other departments of the railroads since 1917 have resigned their positions and got employment at the current rates in the various shipyards at their respective or similar crafts, and I know from actual facts that they not only made good but that a number of them raised themselves to foremanships in a short time, which is some proof of their ability which does not seem to be appreciated as it should.

During the latter part of 1918 and beginning of 1919, when it was found necessary to curtail the shipbuilding, many of the craftsmen who never worked for a railroad were lured by the increased rates and back pay given to the railroad men who stuck to their jobs when appealed to by their Government to help win the war. These outside craftsmen, that is the larger percentage of them, failed to qualify as railroad shopmen, although they did so at the shipyards.

Personally I sincerely believe that successful operation and maintenance of railroads demands as much if not more ability, from the lowest employe to the highest, than any other industry, for without it the future progress of this country would become stagnant.

W. R. JAMESON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On reading, in your issue of the 24th inst., the communication from J. M. W. Kitchen, M. D., under the caption, "Exhausted Fertility Will Increase Cost of Food Production," I notice a vital, and seemingly deliberate, omission which has characterized all articles appearing in the daily papers upon the high cost of living. I refer not only to the serious exhaustion of soil in the growing of tobacco, but also to the use of about 1,500,000 acres of the best soil and a large amount of labor in producing this poison, to the exclusion of the growing of foodstuffs, which constitutes as serious a loss of foodstuffs as though a like quantity were destroyed by an alien enemy, and, in justice to humanity, no distinction should be made. One should be constituted as great an offense as the other.

Selfishness is the basis of this and all other wrongs, including war. The latter will never be a thing of the past until the former is obliterated from human consciousness.

Then the gratification of perverted appetites will be acknowledged to be a crime against the race, and normal living will be enthroned in the individual life for the sake of humanity.

CHARLES G. PEASE, M. D.

No Help from Vegetables.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, Cyrus Miller, in your issue today says that, although "present prices are burdensome, people can get along, because vegetables are cheap and many persons have gardens." If Mr. Miller finds any vegetables cheap I wish he would quote prices. In the store near my home tomatoes are 20 cents a pound, corn 7 cents the ear, cauliflower (when obtainable) 40 cents a small head, and even the peddlers give only two very small "quarts" of string beans for 25 cents. Lettuce, 10 cents and 15 cents the smallest heads.

As for gardens, the former war gardens in this neighborhood have not been used this year at all; they are simply vacant lots. If they had been worth while, surely the people would have continued to work them. Vegetables, like most other things, are now a luxury; one can no longer consider that they "eke out" a meal. They add so much to the cost of same that they are not worth bothering with, unless a family happens to be extremely fond of them.

BROOKLYN HOUSEWIFE.

THE FRIEND WHO JUST "STANDS BY."

When trouble comes your soul to try,
You love the friend who just "stands by"!
Perhaps there's nothing he can do—
The thing is strictly up to you,
For there are troubles all your own,
And paths the soul must tread alone,
Times when love cannot smooth the road,
Nor friendship lift the heavy load.

But just to feel you have a friend
Who will "stand by" until the end,
Whose sympathy through all endures,
Whose warm hand-clasp is always yours—
It helps, some way, to pull you through,
Although there's nothing he can do.
And so with fervent heart you cry
God bless the friend who just "stands by"!

QUESTION PERSHING TODAY.

Committee to Ask About Alleged Attacks on Germans After Armistice

PARIS, Aug. 29.—The hearing of General John J. Pershing, Commander in Chief of the American Army in France, by the War Expenditures Investigation Committee of Congress, has been postponed until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. It is understood that, in addition to questions of a general character regarding the disposition of surplus stocks, General Pershing will be asked about attacks made on the Germans by some American troops the day after the armistice was signed, and some other features relative to military operations.

The committee yesterday inquired into the burning of $1,000,000 worth of aviation stock at Colombey-la-Belle and the destruction of motor vehicles at Romartin, of which the French have complained officially.

There seems to be a difference in estimation between French and American officials as to the value of the material broken up at Romartin. It was generally considered worthless by American army officers, while the French placed a certain value on it as junk. The committee has obtained evidence, it is alleged, indicating that the aviation stock burned at Colombey-la-Belle included material and machines of value.

The committee probably will spend several days examining in detail the bulk sale to the French Government of American goods, comprising $35,000,000 worth of food and $137,000,000 worth of clothing. Inquiry by the committee has disclosed some confusion in the powers of the Liquidation Commission headed by Edward B. Parker of Houston, Texas, and the mission headed by C. W. Hare, Director of Sales. The latter, although accompanied by a large staff of experts, is said to have no authority to sell any part of American Expeditionary Force stocks in Europe.

VOTES PERSHING WELCOME.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The Senate today promptly confirmed the action by the House yesterday in preparation for an official Congressional welcome to General John J. Pershing when the victorious commander of the A. E. F. returns to the United States. Without debate, the Senate, at Senator Lodge's request, passed the resolution adopted in the House creating a joint committee to arrange for the reception of General Pershing. Seven members are to be from the House and five from the Senate.

Vice President Marshall announced he will appoint the Senate members after consultation with leaders on both sides of the chamber. Senator Wadsworth, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, probably will be among those chosen.

The Military Affairs Committee also unanimously reported the bill conferring upon General Pershing the rank of General for life. This measure passed the House yesterday.

Senator Wadsworth will seek an opportunity to present it to the Senate within a day or two, and get action on it, so that it will be law when General Pershing returns. Mr. Wadsworth wants to be able to have the measure signed before President Wilson leaves for his cross-country trip on Wednesday.

The committee also discussed making permanent the rank of General Peyton C. March, but no action was taken.

VOTE MORE FUNDS FOR ARMY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The threatened crisis in the army which would have been brought about through a shortage in officers, if provisions of the Army Appropriation bill reducing the strength of the army should remain in effect, is believed to have been averted through the action of the House today in passing the Senate bill authorizing the retention of 18,000 officers on the active list of the army until 1920.

There are 9,500 regular officers on the active list, and the bill will permit the retention at an extra cost of $12,500,000 of about 8,500 officers who were appointed for emergency duty only. Without such legislation all emergency officers would have been discharged from the army by Sept. 30, 1919.

The cost of the plan which the army now has is $6,500,000,000, and if no legislation were enacted permitting the War Department to retain the services of about 8,500 emergency officers, it is contended it would have been absolutely impossible to take care of this plan. Certain branches of the service, notably the Medical Corps, which has some 35,000 convalescent and wounded soldiers to care for, and the air service would have been greatly handicapped, if not almost completely disorganized, if the legislation sought was not granted.

While the House, in passing the Senate bill today, made some amendments, they were not of such a character as to prevent an agreement when the bill is considered in conference.

ANSELL SEES BAKER UNFAIR.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Fostering of unfair and prejudiced investigations of army courts-martial practices through "packed" bodies of inquiry were charged to Secretary Baker and Judge Advocate General Crowder today by Samuel T. Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate General.

Resuming his statement before the Senate Military Subcommittee Mr. Ansell declared that the inquiries made by the American Bar Association Committee, Inspector General Chamberlain and the army tribunal headed by Major Gen. Kernan were "biased," and that recommendations in favor of the existing court-martial procedure were a foregone conclusion.

"They indicate the desperate efforts of the War Department to bolster up the present system," he said.

The American Bar Association Committee, Mr. Ansell asserted, was "hand picked," and "stacked" with men known to support the position of Mr. Baker and General Crowder. The board's report, he added, made statements in defense of existing army court practices which the War Department previously "was afraid to make," and it was approved "in toto" by Secretary Baker.

The witness told the committee he also refused to co-operate with the investigation of Inspector General Chamberlain because he believed the inquiry would be prejudiced. When he declined to participate he was told by the Inspector General, he said, that a report would be made to Congress that would "be very detrimental" to Ansell.

THOMAS DEFENDS RYAN.

Says Allegations in Alleged $5,000,000 Spruce Fraud Are Unjust.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—John D. Ryan, former Assistant Secretary of War in charge of aircraft production, was defended in the Senate today by Senator Thomas, Democrat, Colorado, from what the Senator said were insinuations in a report made to Secretary Baker by two Republican members of a Congressional subcommittee now in the West investigating operations of the War Department's Spruce Production Division.

The report alleged, Senator Thomas said, that approximately $5,000,000 of Government funds was squandered in the construction of thirty-eight miles of railroad for the Spruce Production Division and converted to the uses of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, in which Mr. Ryan is a Director. While the committee may have found waste of aircraft funds, Senator Thomas said, such innuendoes against Mr. Ryan were "unjust and unreasonable."

He read to the Senate a letter from Brice P. Disque of New York, a former Brigadier General in charge of the spruce division, which said Mr. Ryan had no connection with the construction of the Government road.

"I know positively," Mr. Disque said, "that Mr. Ryan had absolutely nothing to do with the negotiations leading up to the contract. I carried them on myself."

SAYS CONSORTIUM WILL HURT CHINA

Influential Japanese Banker Asserts Associated Powers May Throttle Republic.

FAVORS FREE LOAN SYSTEM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—An explanation of the attitude of Japanese opponents to the inclusion of Manchuria and Mongolia in the international consortium for China is contained in a statement just made in Tokio by Yuko Hamaguchi, President of a prominent Japanese bank and an influential member of the Kenseikai party, a translation of which was cabled to Washington today.

While there has been no official confirmation of the report received by the State Department, dispatches from Tokio credit the Japanese Cabinet, at the behest of members of the military party and over the objections of Foreign Minister Uchida, with having decided to insist that Manchuria and Mongolia be omitted from the consortium. The views expressed by Hamaguchi were received with keen interest here not only because of the latest reported developments at Tokio but also because the stand he takes is in alignment with those who are credited with having won a victory for the militarists in the Japanese Cabinet.

Hamaguchi states his opinions regarding Japanese aspirations in connection with the development of China and tries to emphasize his statement that the Chinese Government has not yet approved of the consortium.

He quotes a statement issued by the Kenseikai to the effect that "economic" loans should be excluded from the scope of the consortium; that Manchuria, Mongolia, and Shantung should also be excluded; that existing loans should be recognized if desired, and that the "economic" loans of the new group should be restricted to large enterprises, i. e., railways, canals, reclamation, &c.

The loan group has been organized, he asserts, to give financial aid to China for both political and economic purposes.

"As political loans have been legally proscribed," he continues, "no room is left for discussion, but in regard to participation in the economic loans, our party, having carefully investigated, has come to the conclusion that, on the whole, it must be opposed.

A Menace to China.

"Considered from the Chinese standpoint, there is a theory prevailing which insists that the new consortium will overthrow the spheres of influence and will contribute through the influx of capital to the development of China. Yes, but, one must see that there is a danger attached to this—danger that the great influence of the powers joined in the loans will naturally restrain the freedom of China, with the result that she will be put under joint supervision and incessant interference by the associated powers.

"This will not only threaten the independence of China, but will mean death to her. If the free loan system had been adopted among the powers whenever China was in need of loans, she could have made a contract with any of them on profitable conditions. In the case of joint loans, every nation loses its freedom of competition, and China will be forced to accept any offer of the loan group, whether it is disadvantageous or not.

"Viewed from the Japanese standpoint, the supporters of the joint loans insist that a country like ours, which lacks funds and has a comparatively high rate of interest cannot compete with a country like America, which has enormous wealth, and a low rate of interest; therefore, it is the wisest way for Japan to co-operate with other nations in financing China.

"My view is quite different, yet Japan is intimately related to China in language, customs, &c., to say nothing of their geographical and historical relations. Moreover, the thorough and prudent investigations by Japanese business men in China cannot be equaled. This advantage to Japan can, in the case of free loans, more than cover the lack of funds, and the low rate of interest mentioned above. Moreover, we shall be able, in the case of free loans to co-operate with American capitalists in our enterprises in China.

Sees Great Chance for Japan.

"I cannot accept the view that it is advisable to participate in the joint loans at the cost of our comparatively small rights of priority already acquired in China, and the acknowledgment of the greater rights of precedents like those of England. The rights of England are a gradual acquisition, a result of her efforts in past years. But, it was only after the China-Japan war that Japan began to pay attention to China; and, up to the beginning of the European war she was always suffering from lack of funds and could not afford foreign investment. Now that she has become somewhat opulent, it is time for her to play an active part in financing China.

"England, owing to the war, is now in an exhausted condition. She lacks funds and is hardly able to exercise her rights of priority in China. Japan must seize this opportunity. Her position toward China is not that of a creditor only. Her relation with China differs from those of other powers. Therefore, her motives in financing China must also be different from those of other nations. The other powers may aim at profits; Japan must not be contented with profits only; she must, first of all, have the noble purpose in view of promoting the common interests of China and herself for the sake of peace in the Far East.

"The interests of the powers in the political problems of China are almost in accord with one another. But this is not the case with the economic relations. For instance, there is a wide difference of desires among the associated powers concerning the building of railways in China. England wants to see railways built in the southern part, and Japan in the northern part.

"Thus, it is evident that, when considered from the interests of all the powers, the free loan system is better than joint loans. Our Government can hardly escape the charge of having blindly agreed to the proposal of America totally disregarding our special relation toward China.

"What Japan should at least have done is this: Previous to her participation, she should have made sure of the intention of China concerning the matter and sought an unreserved agreement with her. She should have cleared her attitude toward the consortium, negotiated with the other powers, and when she found that the joint loans might prove an obstacle to peace in the Orient, she should have opposed the scheme of forming the joint loan group."

SENATE CONFIRMS PALMER.

Sterling and Fall Defend Him Against Frelinghuysen's Attack.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—In an executive session which lasted two hours and a half the Senate tonight, without a record vote, confirmed the nomination of A. Mitchell Palmer to be Attorney General. Confirmation of Mr. Palmer's nomination terminated a fight which began last session and which grew out of criticisms of his administration of the office of Alien Property Custodian.

Most of the session tonight, it was understood, was taken up by Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey in an attack upon Mr. Palmer, during which the New Jersey Senator read extensively from testimony taken at the hearings in an effort to show Palmer was unfitted for the position. Senators Sterling of South Dakota and Fall of New Mexico, (both Republicans,) however, defended Mr. Palmer and explained that the committee's report was unanimous and absolved him of the charge made before it by the New Jersey Senator.

RUMELY INQUIRY GOING ON IN BERNE

SAYS DERNBURG ORDERED IT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Aug. 29.—Evidence is now being taken on commission before Francis Stewart, United States Consul at Berne, in connection with charges against Dr. Rumely as purchaser of The New York Evening Mail, and against the New York lawyers, Lindheim and Kaufmann, who advised Rumely in transactions with Dr. Albert, formerly German agent in New York and now German Under-Secretary of State.

It will be remembered that the charge against the defendants is that The Evening Mail was purchased by Rumely with money supplied by Albert, who was head of the German Government's propagandist organization in the United States. A further charge is that subsequently additional money advances were made to Rumely, who then bought The Evening Mail, and that the total amount put into the enterprise by Albert was more than $1,400,000. The promissory notes which were taken in return for Albert's money were nominally taken by a straw man named Lyon. The charge is that these notes were really a pledge of the defendants' indebtedness to the German Government, and that, this being the case, the defendants conspired to conceal from the Alien Property Custodian that they were in possession of German property and indebted to the German Government, and that in pursuance of this conspiracy they failed to report the facts truthfully to the custodian, and, in short, deceived him.

Lindheim and Kaufmann were Albert's New York lawyers, and, therefore, are defendants with Rumely. The United States courts allowed the defendants to get the evidence of certain witnesses in Switzerland by commission, and when it became known that Albert was to appear as a witness the American Government thought the matter sufficiently important to warrant Assistant Attorney General Brown going personally to undertake the examination of the witnesses. Mr. Brown is accompanied and assisted by Harold Harper, Assistant United States District Attorney for the Southern District of New York, who has been directing the preparation of the Government's case. Messrs. Harper and Brown reached Berne a fortnight ago, but were obliged to wait until the defendants' counsel, Fred Powell and Marvin Wyxe of New York, representing Rumely, and William Wemple and Arthur Says of New York, representing Kaufmann and Lindheim, could insure Albert's coming from Berlin to Berne to give evidence.

Albert's examination began Monday morning, continuing throughout the day. Early Tuesday his examination was resumed and concluded about 11:30 Tuesday night. The cross-examination by Brown and Harper was so searching that it occupied about twelve hours. Albert, giving his evidence in English, which he speaks fluently, admitted that he had advanced money for the purchase of The Evening Mail from funds in his hands—funds resulting from the raising of German loans in the United States and from certain other sources.

He said that he had advanced this money somewhat against his own judgment, but his objection had been overruled by Dr. Dernburg, who assured him that advancing this money was proper, and that Hermann Sielcken, the German-American coffee magnate, who had been living many years in Germany, would assume responsibility for the transaction.

Dr. Albert said he had never received any money or had any kind of communication with Mr. Sielcken and knew of no communication by Dernburg to Sielcken. All Dr. Albert knew or cared to know about the transaction was that Dernburg had told him to act as he did.

In cross-examination Albert was confronted with photographic fac similes and copies of letters, checks, &c., produced by Bielaski before the Overman Committee. He admitted that practically everything which was said about his endeavors to make the American public take the German point of view was substantially true.

In the course of the examination the United States Government ascertained many other facts connected with matters of great interest to the Alien Property Custodian.

During his examination Albert was perfectly courteous, but anxious to be released as soon as possible in order, as he said, to return to his important official duties in Berlin. A Zeppelin was ordered to be at the German-Swiss frontier to convey him to Berlin as speedily as possible.

Albert gave his evidence generally with great apparent frankness and directness, but explained that the matters about which he was examined happened so long ago, and that he had since passed through such troublous times, that his recollection of many details was necessarily very vague. Once he remarked that it was not unnatural that he should have entirely forgotten what he did with $1,000,000, which was the amount involved in a single transaction in New York, because since then, as German Alien Property Custodian and Director of Demobilization of German war material, he had handled such vast sums that $1,000,000 did not seem much to him.

Tomorrow Schultze-Gaevernitz, a former member of the German Reichstag, is expected to give evidence before the commissioner concerning his connection with the purchase of the Evening Mail.

Munaires Is Taken to Dry Dock.

The agents of the Munson Line announced yesterday that their steamship Munaires, which was rammed early yesterday morning off the Ambrose Channel by the Houston Line freighter Hortensius, had been taken to the dry dock for repairs. She had a large hole on the port side, which admitted water into No. 2 hold, but was not seriously damaged, the agents said. The Hortensius was only slightly damaged and anchored off Red Hook flats, Brooklyn, to await a survey by Lloyd's agents.

EXPECT WALES HERE NOV. 15

State Department Reports Visit Delayed by Program in Canada.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The State Department today announced that its information is that the Prince of Wales, who is to visit the United States before his return to England, may not arrive in Washington until the middle of November, on account of the extended program for his entertainment in Canada.

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—More than 20,000 persons assembled at the City Hall today in hopes of being among the few who would shake hands with the Prince of Wales during the public reception held at the Prince's request.

Long before the Prince was due the cheering began, and when his automobile was sighted the playing of several bands could not be heard above the din. As the car stopped before the building it was all the police could do to escort the Prince to the door, and immediately upon his entering, thousands of hands were thrust out for his grasp.

During the next hour 2,500 persons, old and young, had shaken the Prince's hand. When it became evident that all could not meet the Prince, Mayor Fisher closed the doors and announced that the Prince found it impossible to shake hands with everyone, but was coming out to speak to the waiting crowd.

The Prince appeared immediately, but the cheering was so spontaneous that he could not be heard, and while waiting for the greeting to subside, leaned over the rail and shook hands with all he could reach.

JUDGE RAY UNCONSCIOUS.

New York Jurist, 75, in a Serious Condition After Paralytic Stroke.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—George W. Ray, United States Judge for the Northern New York District, who suffered a stroke of paralysis at his home in Norwich Thursday, was in an unconscious condition tonight.

Dr. Edwin F. Gibson issued a bulletin at 9 o'clock stating that Judge Ray was somewhat better, although still in a serious condition. The paralysis affects the Judge's left arm. Judge Ray observed his seventy-fifth birthday Feb. 4 last.

Up to the hour of his attack he apparently had been in robust health. He is known as one of the hardest working jurists on the bench and intimates say he has not taken a vacation in twenty years.

GERMAN TRADE COMPLAINT.

Assembly Members Say We Enter Germany, but Bar Them.

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—Four conservative members of the National Assembly, among them Herr Sugenberg, a former confidential man for the Krupps, today asked the Government whether it was aware that Americans had been entering Germany soliciting trade, whereas Germans were to be excluded from the United States until after ratification of the Peace Treaty.

The interpellation set forth that while the United States officially was not viséing passports for entry into Germany, it nevertheless was finding ways to facilitate the passing of Americans through the Scandinavian States. The Government was asked what it purposed to do to bring about equality of treatment for Germans in the matter of trade.

OPEN LINE TO BUENOS AIRES

Former German Liner Will Be First Ship on New Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Passenger steamship service between New York and Buenos Aires will be established by the United States Shipping Board within ninety days, Chairman Payne announced today. The steamer Moccasin will be the first vessel operated.

The Moccasin is the former German vessel Prinz Joachim, a craft of 8,000 deadweight tonnage with a speed of twelve knots and a draft of twenty-five feet.

QUIT FRENCH SOCIALISTS.

Nectoux and Erlich Says Party Principles Are Too Near Bolshevism.

PARIS, Aug. 29.—M. Nectoux, Socialist Deputy for the Sceaux Arrondissment of the Seine, and M. Erlich, Socialist candidate for the Chamber of Deputies in 1914, have resigned form the Socialist Party, saying that on the eve of the elections they cannot advocate the principles of the unified party, which closely resembles Bolshevism.

FARMER HAS AVIATOR FINED.

Court Agrees That Flying Too Near a House Disturbs the Peace.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 29.—On a charge of flying his airplane within ten feet of the roof of a farmer's house Charles H. Levy was fined $25 and costs for disturbing the peace in a justice court at Dodson, Mo., today.

The complainant, Fred Hoenaman, a farmer living near a local aviation field, asserted that the aviator had scared his family and frightened his stock. While it was admitted that no statute law covered the case, Justice Si Farmer declared that it was his opinion the aviator had disturbed the peace of the farmer and his family. Levy stated he would appeal the case.

ASK FOR CHANGE IN PROHIBITION BILL

Bill Now Before Congress, He Says, Threatens Integrity of Tax-Collecting Agency.

Dr. Joseph J. Klein, a certified public accountant who has taken much interest in the framing and administration of national revenue legislation, is actively urging that the Volstead bill, which soon is to come up for final action, shall not be passed in its present form with the provision that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall secure evidence of all violations of the prohibition amendment and that such evidence shall then be employed by the Department of Justice in connection with prosecutions.

In a letter made public yesterday Dr. Klein writes that he feels "that such matters as the League of Nations, the high cost of living, and the attempt of several radical labor groups to force us into Socialism and Bolshevism by taking control of the railways and the major industries of the nation may cause us to pass by unnoticed the grave dangers inherent in the Volstead bill." The writer draws attention to a letter he sent recently to Senator Knute Nelson in which he summarized his obections to the legislation. This letter, which he said the Senator had promised to submit to the Judiciary Committee, follows:

I note that the Volstead bill as reported by the Judiciary Committee still provides for the joint enforcement of prohibition by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the Department of Justice. As I read the bill the Commissioner is charged with responsibility for collecting evidence of violations, a distinct police function.

Because of my sincere public interest in the administration of the Revenue Bureau I make free to address you regarding the said bill. May I not therefore point out to you, my dear Senator, the importance of not doing anything which may possibly undermine the efffectiveness of the Revenue Department? In common with the great mass of taxpayers, you and I are familiar with the recent accomplishments of the Revenue Department and with the high esteem in which the Commissioner and his associates are almost universally held by those acquainted with the ideals which animate the administration of the Federal tax laws. Accordingly, I feel free to urge you with all the power and persuasiveness at my command to use your mighty influence to the end that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and his bureau be not charged, directly or indirectly, with the duty of enforcing the prohibition amendment.

The primary function of the Revenue Bureau should be, in my humble opinion, to collect statutory revenue with the least possible irritation to the business community. This, all observers agree, has been accomplished by the present Commissioner and his staff. It would indeed be a pity to saddle upon the Revenue Bureau the police functions contemplated in the Volstead bill. You know, even better than I, that locally, along State lines, and even nationally, the enforcement of liquor laws has always led to friction, misunderstanding, lack of co-operation between the taxpayer and the collector, &c. The remarkable achievement of the Revenue Bureau in securing the hearty co-operation of taxpayers in the enforcement of the unprecedented tax measures since 1917 seems to be put in jeopardy by the proposed Volstead bill. May I not, therefore, urge you to do all within your power to bring about the absolute divorce between the Revenue Bureau as such, and the enforcement of the prohibition amendment?

In his public letter yesterday Dr. Klein concluded:

"I feel that all taxpayers should join in a movement to bring to the attention of their representatives in Washington the fact that, regardless of such taxpayers' individual opinions regarding the advisability of prohibition or the confiscation of private property, no 'joker' in the Prohibition Enforcement bill should be permitted to throw the Revenue Bureau into politics or to impair its universally recognized administrative efficiency."

3 FINED IN LIQUOR CASES.

Judge Warns That Jail Sentences Come Next—57 Plead Not Guilty.

Fifty-seven hotel and saloon-keepers, bartenders, waiters, and cashiers entered pleas of not guilty in the Federal District Court yesterday to the charge of violating the War Prohibition law, and their cases were set for trial next month. Three pleaded guilty and were fined $50 each.

One of the defendants said that he intended to keep within the law by mixing sherry with selzer to the non-intoxicating point.

"Your plea of selling seltzer and sherry does not go with me," said Judge Rufus E. Foster. "A mixture of claret and seltzer might be all right, but for disposing of such a concoction as seltzer and sherry you ought to be sent to jail."

One of the defendants said that he yielded to the plea of the Government agent for a drink, because the latter said he was nervous and needed it badly. Another said he had taken pity on a rain-soaked chauffeur and had given him whisky. These were not mitigating circumstances in the opinion of the Judge.

Those who were fined were Samuel Koller, manager of a café at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street; John Russell, a bartender in a café on Forty-fourth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, and Samuel Weisberger, a bartender at 162 Second Avenue. In imposing sentence Judge Foster said:

"The Wartime Prohibition law must be obeyed. I am going to fine you men $50 each, but remember that pretty soon I am going to send violators of this law to jail, no matter whether or not you are first offenders. If any of you come before me again I shall surely send you to jail. Don't allow yourselves to be misled by the appeals of nervous actors or wet chauffeurs."

Jury trials may be demanded by many of the fifty-seven defendants who pleaded not guilty.

WEDS WILLIAM MARTIN.

Hon. Amelia Sackville-West Marries Chief of Protocol in Paris.

PARIS, Thursday, Aug. 28.—William Martin, Chief of Protocol and Introducer of Ambassadors and Ministers at the French Foreign Office, was married today to the Hon. Amelia Sackville-West, daughter of the late Lord Sackville.

His bride is a member of the famous English family, the Sackville peerage romance attracting much attention in 1910 in a claimant's struggle for barony, with the riches and title of the family at stake, and also three years later, when the celebrated litigation over the will of Sir John Murray Scott, brought the family into the limelight of publicity. This later action was brought by the relatives of Sir John Scott against Lord and Lady Sackville, when $2,500,000 was at issue. The Sackville family won the case, the jury holding that no undue influence was exercised over the millionaire.

The late Lord Sackville had six children by the Spanish dancer, Pepita Duran, whom he socially recognized as his wife, but to whom he was never legally married. On his death his title and estates went to his nephew, the present Lord Sackville. For years Lord Sackville's youngest son, Henry, attempted to prove his legitimacy and the legitimacy of two of his sisters.

In 1881 Sir Lionel came to Washington as British Ambassador, bringing with him three of his daughters, one of them the bride of Mr. Martin, who were chaperoned by his sister, the late Countess of Derby. He remained in Washington until his unfortunate letter advising an Englishman to vote for Cleveland brought about his recall in 1888.

In the meantime one of his daughters, Victoria, returned to England and married her cousin, the present baron. Her sister, Amelia, married a French diplomat, M. Salanson, while the third daughter continued with her father and took her place at the head of his household after the death of the Countess of Derby. In the long litigation Victoria naturally took side with her husband, while Flora and Amelia supported their brother in his claims.

BELGO-DUTCH TENSION.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 29.—Although Belgian and Dutch relations are once again going through a most critical stage, owing to the crisis reached in the revision of the treaty of 1839 by the Commission of Fourteen in Paris, there is little to indicate this in the Dutch press. As is usual, when relations are strained and the situation is critical the Dutch papers refrain from much comment, having learned during the war that discretion is the better part of valor. The semi-official Nieuwe Courant, however, denies The New York Herald's report that there is a question of a casus belli.

Nevertheless, strained relations have been observed by people crossing the frontier during the last week, and many business men have postponed their trips on both sides of the frontier.

SUMMER SCHOOLS CLOSE.

1,000 Took Child Study Federation's Health Courses.

The five Summer health play schools which have been run under the direction of the Federation for Child Study at Ethical Culture School, Hudson Guild, Hamilton House, Stuyvesant House, and Madison House, will close today. One thousand pupils, 90 per cent. of whom are in better physical condition than when the schools opened, have attended the sessions.

According to those in charge of the schools, most of the children were suffering from malnutrition at the beginning of the Summer, and a large percentage are now up to normal weight, and with the exception of a few who suffer from enlarged tonsils and adenoids, or where home conditions have been of the very worst, every child is several pounds heavier than he or she was eight weeks ago.

The Federation for Child Study announced that it will resume the Summer health play school work next year on a larger scale, and will devote its energies to arousing the country at large to the need of such health play schools, not only in Summer but all year around.

Blodget-Welling Engagement.

Mrs. Samuel C. Blodget of East Greenwich, R. I., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Lucy Randolph Blodget, to Lindsay Howe Welling, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brenton Welling of 55 East Seventy-sixth Street, this city. Mr. Welling is a graduate of Columbia, Class of '15, and was a sergeant in the Ordnance Department with the American Expeditionary Forces. No date has been set for the wedding.

EX-SENATOR GOFF MARRIES HIS NURSE

CEREMONY IN NEW YORK

Former United States Senator Nathan Goff of West Virginia was married in this city on Thursday at noon, according to telegrams received yesterday by his relatives in Clarksburg, W. Va. The former Senator is 79 years old, and his bride is Miss Catharine Penny of Carboncar, Newfoundland, who has been attending him as nurse. She is about 40 years old and has resided in Rutherford, N. J.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William Hamilton, at the First Place M. E. Church parsonage, 158 Summit Street, Brooklyn. The couple are staying at the Hotel Commodore.

Mr. Goff's wife died last January, and since that time he has been in poor health and was attended by Miss Penny. They left Clarksburg on Wednesday for this city.

His first wife was Miss Laura Despard of Clarksburg, and they were married in 1865. His family consists of two sons, one of whom, Dr. W. P. Goff, is a physician in Clarksburg, and the other, Guy D. Goff, a lawyer practicing in Milwaukee, Wis.

Nathan Goff served in the civil war and was mustered out with the rank of Major. In 1867 he was appointed United States District Attorney, in which office he served until 1881. He served in Congress and ran twice for Governor of West Virginia. He was Secretary of the Navy in the Cabinet of President Hayes. In 1913 he was elected Senator. The former Senator is wealthy, having inherited much and added to it by investment in West Virginia coal and oil lands.

HANSON TIRED OF HIS JOB.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Aug. 29.—While the resignation of Mayor Ole Hanson yesterday had the elements of surprise for most of Seattle, those who are close to him might easily have predicted it a month ago. It had been known for a long time that the routine of his office was irksome; that he had no taste for the drudgery of signing municipal bonds and ordinances, and that he would much prefer a lecture tour wherein he could meet new audiences and perhaps achieve new successes.

Ever since Ole Hanson sprang into sudden fame during the sympathetic strike of last February, the City Hall in Seattle has been the Mecca of many pilgrims, who desired to see Seattle's celebrity. Hundreds of letters are received daily from admirers throughout the country. Some have urged him to run for President, some for Vice President, while others have asked him to take the lecture platform, so that the millions who could not come to Seattle could hear him speak and shake his hand.

A short time ago an Eastern publishing house executed a contract with him to write a book on Americanism as opposed to Bolshevism. In a building a block from the City Hall the former Mayor has a private office, where he pursues his literary work.

The Mayor's health has not been robust, but of late he has been steadily improving.

Service Men Seek College Courses Offered by K. of C.

More than 2,000 applications, it was announced yesterday, have been received by Supreme Secretary William J. McGinley of the Knights of Columbus at the New Haven (Conn.) headquarters of the K. of C. for the 100 scholarships offered by the Knights to American veterans of the war. By mail from every State in the Union and by telegraph from the Far West and the Pacific Coast, it was said, ex-service men of all denominations are entering their names in the race to obtain a full course of higher education in one of the forty-one universities and colleges offered by the Knights.

Up to and including Sept. 1 the K. of C. will receive further applications. After Monday the process of selecting the winning candidates will begin by announcing to the applicants the time and place of their examination for the institution they have selected. Fifty per cent. of the applicants desire courses in some form of engineering. Fifteen per cent. desire college academic courses, 10 per cent. mining courses, 10 per cent. foreign service courses, 5 per cent. agricultural courses, and 10 per cent. medicine and law, which latter courses are not comprised in the K. of C. offer.

Anna Held Jewels to be Sold.

An exhibition and sale of jewels, costumes, and personal effects of the late Anna Held will take place in the Waldorf-Astoria beginning Tuesday. Charles F. Hanlon of San Francisco, Miss Held's personal attorney for the last twenty years, and Thomas Keough, an attorney of this city, are in charge of the exhibit. It is arranged in accordance with the actress's will, which provided that they be sold and the amount realized be held in trust for her daughter, Lianne Carrera, until she reaches the age of 25. Miss Held's total estate was valued at $250,000, and a great part of this was jewels, works of art and such which she collected during her lifetime.

alleviate the situation, since they in turn would be ever subject to the same conditions which the present managers believe would make theatre operation and play production too hazardous to be longer attractive."

Asked as to the reply of Mr. Gompers, Mr. Hopkins was noncommittal. The statement of the managerial position, he said, had not been made public previously owing to the desire of the managers to present their case first to Mr. Gompers.

Shubert Theatres Give Up.

All plans to reopen two Shubert theatres in this city with independent attractions next week were abandoned yesterday. It had been announced that John D. Williams would offer "Up from Nowhere" at the Comedy Theater, and that Walter Hast would present "Scandal" at the Thirty-ninth Street. Events of the last forty-eight hours, however, indicated unmistakably that houses operated by members of the Producing Managers' Association would not be permitted to open.

In the afternoon an enthusiastic meeting of the Actors' Equity Association at the Lexington Theatre was addressed by Wilton Lackaye, William Farnum, Charles C. Shay, Frank Bacon, Francis Wilson, John Emerson, George Nash, Ed Wynn, and others.

Mr. Wilson speaking of the new contract offered to the players, said: "It leaves out the one important thing that would make it worth while—the power to enforce it. So far as I can discover—and I am not blind—to enforce the contract rests with the managers. That would deny us the right of collective bargaining."

The Actors' Fidelity League, in a statement issued last night, touched upon this point and said that at a meeting of its Board of Directors yesterday the possibility of each of the contracting parties posting a bond as a guarantee of faithful performance was discussed. Clauses incorporating this provision will be read tonight at a general meeting of the League at the Hotel Biltmore, to be presided over by George M. Cohan.

Charles C. Shay, at the Equity meeting, hinted that members of unions might not attend theatres if the managers endeavored to reopen them with non-union crews.

"The strike is won," he said. "All the managers are attempting to do at present is to bluff you. If they intend to place before the general public the performers represented in the alleged Fidelity League, they had better settle up pretty quickly, because if they don't they will not only have to employ nonunion actors, nonunion stage hands, nonunion musicians and mechanics, but they will have to see to it that they get non-union audiences."

All Laborers Together.

"Many persons did not understand why we joined the American Federation of Labor," said Wilton Lackaye. "The intellectual allows himself to be cheated out of his salary; the laboring man insists on getting his wages. I have no patience with those who pose as intellectuals. We are all laborers, but we don't want graduates from the Bowery to attempt to give us lessons in equity and courtesy."

Announcement was made that the Equity ball on Thursday night had netted the association $15,000, which was inclusive of a $5,000 donation from William Farnum. Emma Dunn, the association said last night, had announced her complete sympathy with the Equity policies.

Ethel Barrymore, who had been called for rehearsals by Charles Frohman, Inc., on Monday, said yesterday that she had informed Alf Hayman, general manager of that company, that she would not rehearse until the strike was settled. She is appearing regularly in Equity entertainments.

In front of many of the theatres of the Producing Managers' Association notices have been posted, printed on black paper, reading as follows: "This theatre is closed because of the action of the Actors' Equity Association in forcing its members to violate their individual contracts with the managers." With nearly all the theatres closed, sidewalk strike attractions have been growing nightly fewer and are now confined to occasional speakers setting forth the Equity cause from automobiles.

The Stage Writers' Protective Association, which came into existence as a result of the strike, announced yesterday that it would hold a meeting at the Hotel Astor next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

TO OPEN CHICAGO THEATRES.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 29.—Defying the Actors' Equity Association, three of Chicago's theatres will open tomorrow. One, the Blackstone, is downtown and the other two, the Imperial and Victoria, are in the outlying districts. The Blackstone, under heavy guard and with nonunion actors, will give a performance despite the strike of stage hands, bill posters, musicians, and actors. The outlying houses have a special dispensation from the unions and will open without difficulty.

This leaves nine legitimate theatres still dark, with possibilities of ending the dispute between producers and actors apparently far off.

The Actors' Equity Association will draft its loveliest members for picket duty and send them to the Blackstone to march up and down the sidewalk with "unfair" banners.

TO ANSWER CONTEMPT CHARGE

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 29.—Vice Chancellor John R. Backes, holding court at the Hotel Traymore, today issued an order directed to Local No. 77, International Association of Theatrical Stage Employes and Moving Picture Operators of the United States and Canada, to show cause why officers should not be punished for contempt on account of alleged violation of an injunction issued by him last Saturday restraining executives and members from influencing others to strike.

The order is returnable tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the Chancery Chambers. The contempt order was issued on the court's own motion upon presentation of an affidavit by Frederick E. Moore, Vice President of the Nixon Amusement Company and manager of the Apollo Theatre. Manager Moore charged that the members of the local order violated the injunction in that they induced stagehands to walk out during a performance of John Cort's musical show, "Listen Lester," on Tuesday night.

During the performance stagehands, it is asserted, deserted their posts and necessitated the taking of their places by the manager and members of the company, so that the play could be continued.

The anti-strike injunction issued by Vice Chancellor Backes was the first of its kind in the country.

PHILADELPHIA HOUSES CLOSE.

Two Theatres Decide Not to Open Season Monday.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—As a result of the strike in New York, two Philadelphia theatres scheduled to open their seasons next Monday will remain dark. The Garrick Theatre, which was to show "La La Lucille," and the Adelphia, with "Toby's Bow" as the attraction, tonight closed the advance sale of seats, withdrew their advertisements, and will refund money received in the advance sale.

In theatrical circles the opinion was expressed that it is unlikely any legitimate attraction will be shown in Philadelphia until the strike is settled.

Washington Theatre Still Dark.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The Shubert-Belasco Theatre, which was closed last night, when actors, musicians, and stage hands joined the Actors' Equity Association in its fight against the Producing Managers' Association, was still dark tonight. The players, headed by Norman Trevor, are still in the city, hoping that through some possibility matters will be arranged.

GERMANS STILL PLAN TO ANNEX AUSTRIA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—A diplomatic cablegram from Paris today stated that an examination of the new German Constitution had disclosed that Article XX. embraced all the territories of German-speaking peoples in Europe and therefore applied to German Austria. The article provides that Austria may have a certain number of representatives in the German Assembly, proportionate to the Austrian population.

The French Government, according to information received here, recommended that an immediate protest be despatched by the Peace Conference to the Berlin Government, but the Conference decided to refer the German Constitution to the several delegations for careful study.

The question will be brought again before the Conference by the French delegation, which insists that the Conference should interpose objections to the challenged article.

HENRY STUYVESANT DIES AT RYE AT 82

Henry Stuyvesant, 82 years old, a direct descendant in the fifth generation of Peter Stuyvesant, Director General of New Amsterdam under Dutch rule, died yesterday at the home of his nephew, Richard T. Wainwright, at Milton Point, Rye, N. Y.

Born in New York City on the original site of the old Stuyvesant homestead, Mr. Stuyvesant spent his early boyhood in Rye, where he went to school. He was engaged in the brokerage business in New York City for many years, and in the civil war was Paymaster of the United States ship Crusader. During the latter years of his life he lived in retirement at his home in Forest Avenue, Rye.

The funeral services will be held on Sunday at St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, Tenth Street and Second Avenue, this city. He will be buried in the vault under the church where Peter Stuyvesant and many of his ancestors are interred.

Surviving are his widow, who was Miss Kate M. Sproulls of New York; one sister, Mrs. Margaret B. Wainwright, Rye, N. Y.; three nephews, Richard T. Wainwright, Lieut. Col. J. Mayhew Wainwright, and Lieutenant Stuyvesant Wainwright, U. S. N.

Mme. Margaret Howard.

Mme. Margaret Howard, for many years a widely known modiste, died Wednesday night in her apartment at the San Remo Hotel, Central Park West and Seventy-fourth Street, at the age of 75 years. She retired from business some years ago when she sold her brownstone house at Thirty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue to B. Altman & Co. In this house for years Mme. Howard had directed her business. Her firm was known as White, Howard & Co. Since retiring she had lived at the San Remo. Her estate is estimated at nearly $1,000,000. She had no living relatives. Solemn requiem mass will be said in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament today and interment will be in Woodlawn.

John Miller.

John Miller, President and Treasurer of John Miller Co., importers and manufacturers of furniture at 516 to 520 East Seventeenth Street, died yesterday at Northport, L. I., where he was spending the Summer, in his 62d year. Mr. Miller had been ill only five days. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Pauline Miller, and several children. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from his late city home, 7 Livingston Place, and interment will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Rear Admiral Thomas C. McLean.

UTICA, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Rear Admiral Thomas Chalmers McLean died at his home in Utica tonight. He was born Oct. 25, 1847, near this city, and was appointed a midshipman Sept. 21, 1864. He retired from continuous naval service Oct. 25, 1909, but during the recent war served as an instructor.

TECHNICAL UNION'S PLEA.

San Francisco Workers' Pay Higher Than in New York.

According to an announcement made yesterday by members of the Union of Technical Men of New York City, they are to have the advice of the San Francisco Local of the International Federation of Engineers and Draftsmen in their fight to compel the Board of Estimate to give a $500 a year increase to every member of the union in this city. Officials of the San Francisco union yesterday sent notices to this city that the San Francisco officials had just adopted a wage scale for technical men employed in that city in which assistant engineers are to receive $250; surveyors, $225; draftsmen and inspectors, $200; field assistants, $175, and assistant chemical engineers, $200 per month.

The New York City technical men say that the lowest paid technical worker in San Francisco is now receiving $2,100 a year, while the average salary of all technical men in New York City is but $2,084.

ONE LARGE INNING ALL GIANTS NEED

NEHF PITCHES FINE GAME

Sherrod Smith tamed the Giants so effectively for six innings at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon that only nineteen would-be batsmen strode forth from the dugout. In the seventh the Giants arose en masse and thumped the twisters of the big southpaw to various sections of the Flatbush field. Eleven Giants toed the plate in this one session, and they nicked Ebbets's best Sunday pitcher for seven hits and six runs, enough to win the ball game with plenty to spare. The score was 6 to 1.

Smith specializes in pitching the Dodgers to victory on Sundays, and he went through those first six frames as if he was laboring under the impression that it was Sunday. The seventh indicated that somebody had apprised Sherry of his mistake, for he fell back into week-day form in that session. He recovered quickly and set the Giants down hitless in the last two frames, but that tornado of base hits in the seventh buried him and his comrades.

That seventh frame was sad for the Brooklyn fans in more ways than the one mentioned. The Flatbush rooter goes to the Giants-Dodgers battles first to see the Giants lose, second to hoot at Benny Kauff, and third to hand the razz to Heinie Zimmerman. All this pleasure faded out in the same inning, as Benny and Heinie were lost in the big shuffle that produced the victory for McGraw's men.

Benny's batting average these days is shrinking like sweet corn before a hired man even against right handers. Against the southpaws Kauff at times borders on the state of helplessness, and that was his condition when he faced Smith in the second and fifth innings. Benny went out on strikes each time, while the Brooklyn fans howled with glee. The score was tied and two Giants were gone when Benny's hitting turn arrived in the seventh, and McGraw decided that the little centre fielder should not fan again. Lew McCarty was sent to the plate as pinch hitter for Benny, and he delivered with a single that kept the rally in motion. Lee King did the running for McCarty, and finished the game in centre field, where he made one of the prettiest muffs of the season in the eighth inning.

Zim Gets Worst of Debate.

Zimmerman went out of the picture under marching orders. Heinie was on first base in the seventh when Frisch hit a hopper toward second base. The ball bounded away from Johnston and Ivy Olson scooped it up as Zim tore into the bag. Bob Emslie, hanging over the play, shot his right hand upward, thumb extended, denoting that Heinie was out. Zim took off his cap and threw it earthward with all the disgust that he could summon on such short notice. Up went Emslie's hand again, this time with index finger pointing to the clubhouse. Heinie hung around second base to spill a lot of spare conversation that he didn't think he'd ever need again, then made his way to the New York dugout. At the end of the Giants' half of the inning Zim took his position at third base as if nothing had happened, and Emslie promptly repeated the marching orders. So Zim went. Kauff, the other Brooklyn target, was gone and so was the old ball game. It was a sad afternoon for the Brooklyn fans after that.

Art Nehf southpawed the Dodgers to subjection and batted them there as well. The little left hander was the victim of a peculiar play in the fourth inning when Myers scored from first base on a single by Konetchy, a pop fly dropping between Fletcher and Kauff in centre field because Benny did not want to collide with Fletcher. It would have been an easy catch for Kauff, but Fletcher ran for it, and Benny had to stay back. This run kept the Dodgers on the heavy end of the score up to the seventh, when Nehf delivered the big punch of the game. It was a double to the right field wall with the bases covered, all three runners scoring on the hit. There was no uncertainty left in the pastime after that southpaw turned this wallop into the box score.

A spectacular play by Frank Frisch in the seventh inning was the fielding headliner of the game. Otto Miller started a prospective hit toward right field with two out and the Fordham Flash made a dash toward first. As his legs were not propelling him fast enough to bring him in the ball's path, Frisch made a dive, snagged the ball in his gloved hand, and then went down. He was up in a flash, shot the ball along to Chase, and the throw beat Miller to the bag. Frisch got as big a hand for the play as Jimmy Johnston did when he hit over Burns's thatch in the opening inning for a triple.

Nehf Lets Out a Notch.

Nehf had to do some fancy flinging in the opening frame. After Olson had been retired, Johnston hit to the score board for a triple. Nehf set Tommy Griffith down on strikes, and Zach Wheat's effort was a roller to Fletcher.

Neither team threatened again until the Brooklyn fourth, when the Dodgers' lone run was manufactured rather cheaply. Griffith reached first on a slow roller to Fletcher. Zach Wheat fanned, and Myers forced Griffith at second, Frisch to Fletcher. Konetchy followed with a pop fly behind second as Myers started for second. The ball fell between Fletcher and Kauff, and Myers continued to run, getting a hairline decision on the play at the plate. Konetchy got one base on the hit, and pulled up at second on the throw-in. He reached third on Zim's error of Kilduff's hot grounder. Pete stole second, and both were left when Miller flied to Young.

The Dodgers did not get a hit after Konetchy's trick single in the fourth. The Giants went out with monotonous regularity up to the seventh, and then the big smash occurred. Young singled to left. Fletcher flied to Myers, and Zim bounced a single off Konetchy's glove, Young going to third. Frisch forced Heinie at second, Johnston to Olson, while Young hurried home with the tying run. This was the play on which Zim got the gate. McCarty, batting for Kauff, singled to left, sending Frisch to second. King ran for McCarty, and he hurried to third on Chase's double to centre, Frisch scoring on Hal's drive. Gonzales was purposely passed to bring up the weak-hitting Nehf, and the southpaw answered the slur on his batting ability by hitting to the right field wall for two bases. King, Chase, and Mike, the Cuban, dashed in on the hit. Burns scored Nehf with a single to centre. Young got his second hit of the inning, a single to left, and Fletcher ended it all with a grounder to Olson.

PIRATES WIN ON ERRORS.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis today by 5 to 3 in a loosely played game. Sherdel and Miller both pitched well, but errors behind them were the cause of most of the runs. Sherdel was responsible for one run and U. Miller's misplay for another. Carey dropped a fly ball that let a runner get to third, followed by Bigbee's muff of a fly from the next batsman. Miller passed two men in the first inning and they both scored on sacrifice hits and a single.

Curves and Bingles.

Said Emslie to Heinie in the seventh inning: "You're out." Said Heinie to Emslie: "You're crazy, Bob, I ain't out." Then came some cap throwing and more noise and Bob said to Zim: "Now you're out twice, Heinie. Take your hat and drag yourself to the clubhouse."

Nehf fanned in the sixth inning and again in the ninth when there was no real incentive for a hit. Between times he toed the plate in the seventh and doubled to right. That's picking the spot, all right.

King ran for McCarty in the seventh and for Smith's drive in the eighth. Benny's successor got under the long hoist and then let it drift through his fingers for an inglorious muff. The ball rolled along and the big pitcher easily made two bases on the error.

Young was so peeved when the third strike was called on him in the fourth that he tossed his bat high in the air. Wilyum Klem, who seldom stands for any reflections on his umpiring, was looking the other way and Young escaped a sentence to the bastile. Later he had the distinction of making two clean hits in the same inning.

Manager John McGraw announced that he had added no Indians to his team. The statement was the result of a report sent out from Fargo, S. D., that Joe Guyon, who formerly played football with Jim Thorpe at Carlisle, had a signed contract to play with the Giants. McGraw declares he has made no effort to get Guyon.

Frisch got a clean hit to right the first time he faced Smith, but failed to hit safely on any of his three subsequent trips to the plate. Frisch's hit was the only clean one off Smith up to the big seventh inning. Fletcher got the other, a slow roller, in the first frame.

Konetchy got a complimentary steal in the ninth inning, no play being made for him, as the Dodgers were trailing by five runs. Early in the game the Dodgers tried two steals on Gonzales, but the Cuban's wing was working well and both efforts resulted in failure.

Al Baird had not been in the game a minute when Konetchy hit down the third base line. Baird made a fine stop and then followed with a low throw to Chase. Hal made one of his feature plays, digging the ball out of the ground and saving Baird from an error.

Strike-outs went in pairs at Ebbets Field. Young, Kauff, Griffith, and Nehf all carried their bats back to the bench on two different occasions, or threw them ahead in disgust. Wheat, Konetchy, and Chase were satisfied with one strike-out apiece.

The Giants will be guests at Ebbets Field today and tomorrow, and the Dodgers will return the call next week, with games at the Polo Grounds on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

YANKS AGAIN TRIM WASHINGTON TWICE

Quinn and Thormahlen Pitch New York to 4 to 1 and 5 to 1 Victories Over Senators.

For the second time in two days, yesterday afternoon at the Polo Grounds, the Yankees captured both ends of a double-header at the expense of Washington. Quinn, in the first game, and Thormahlen, in the second, pitched a masterly brand of ball and well deserved their victories of 4 to 1 and 5 to 1, respectively. The bargain offering attracted a good-sized gathering which had its reward in the snappy playing of the home nine in both games. Baker's two-bagger with the bases filled in the fifth inning of the first was the batting feature of the matinee.

The two newcomers in the Washington line-up, Ellerbee at short and Harris at second, both gave a satisfactory account of themselves. Their hits were the main factor in Washington's only run of the second game. Harris made an exceedingly harrowing throw in this same encounter, but the fielding of both, aside from this, was impressive.

The first game went four innings without a score. Up to that time Erickson, who was doing the honors for Washington, had pitched a brand of ball that was about as good as Quinn's, although his gift to Fewster and his hitting of Peck had helped to fill the bases for the Yanks in the opening inning. Pipp's single, after Baker had lined out, contributed importantly toward this situation. Erickson tightened then, however, struck Pratt out and retired Lewis on a grounder to Joe Judge.

The Yanks concentrated all their run-getting in this game in the fifth inning. The first run was largely a donation of the Washington battery. With Bodie down, Erickson passed Ruel, and that athlete journeyed to second on a passed ball and to third on a wild pitch. Quinn singled his catcher home.

Fewster followed with another one-base blow and Erickson again inserted a base on balls. This meant that every sack was tenanted. Baker thereupon applied a sizzling two-bagger to left and three runs came across.

The Yankees could easily have applied the whitewash brush in this encounter had they so desired. Washington's only run was scored in the ninth inning. Milan walked and was forced at second by Rice. The Yanks then permitted Rice to steal second and third without making any motion to disturb him and, from that station, he scored when Leonard came through with an infield hit.

Washington's Errors Costly.

Senatorial errors of omission and commission were a decisive factor in the outcome of the second game. Huggins' men earned their first run, but Washington helped them materially in manufacturing the others.

Shaw did not pitch the finished article of ball that Thormahlen turned in, but his work was far from shoddy at that. He passed two Yanks in the initial frame and one each in the two succeeding innings, but he had sufficient control to prevent a score. New York scored its first hits and its first run of the game in the fourth. Pratt singled to right and when Lewis followed with another single the Yankee second baseman legged it successfully for third. Bodie's long sacrifice fly to centre brought him home.

New York made another tally in the sixth. Pipp was credited with a lucky tangle going after his long fly to right tange going after his long fly to right centre. Milan slipped and fell on his face in just the proper position to prevent Rice from making the catch without doing injury to his teammate, and the latter, in jumping over his prostrate comrade, jumped likewise out of the way of the flying ball. It would have been a difficult catch in any event, however. Pipp was held on third while Pratt was being thrown out, but scored a moment later on Lewis's out to second. Bodie followed with a single but was caught off first and run down.

The Yanks landed two more in the seventh as a result of a sudden fit of wildness which descended upon the Washington infield. Shaw extended the compliments of first base to Hannah, and his teammates promptly demonstrated that they would not permit themselves to be second in any matter of courtesies. Thormahlen placed a dinky little bunt in front of the plate, and Judge and Foster made a mad scramble for the ball. The latter saw it first, and heaved it yards over the head of Harris, who ran over from second to cover the initial bag. By the time Harris had recovered the ball Hannah had counted and Thormahlen was making motions like a man having designs on third base. Harris piled an erratic Ossa upon a misplayed Pelion by throwing past third, and Thormahlen followed his battery mate over the platter without further ado. The next three men were retired in order.

Fifth and last of New York's counters came in the eighth when Pipp, whose batting orb was in prime condition, obliged with a rattling double. Pipp annexed third while Pratt was being put out by Judge, and rolled home on Lewis's sacrifice fly to left field.

Senators' Only Run.

The Senators' only run of the nightcap was counted in the second inning. Ellerbee singled and his fellow novitiate, Harris, sent him to third with a double. Gharrity's long fly gave Ellerbee ample time to cross the plate.

It looked for a brief interval in the sixth as though Thormahlen were about to weaken. With one out, the Yankee boxman passed Milan and hit Rice. Shanks popped up an easy foul to the catcher, but Thormahlen suffered another touch of wildness and walked Foster. This filled the bases, but there were two out and Thormahlen clamped down the lid by forcing Ellerbee to knock out a grounder which Pratt handled finely. In the following inning Gharrity and Shaw hit safely for Washington, but again Thormahlen tightened and the next two men were easy outs. Ellerbee started Washington's ninth with a safe hit, but the three men who followed were helpless to shove him along.

LEAFS WIN IN NINTH.

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—In a weird and listless game here today the Leafs defeated Newark by 6 to 5. The visitors scored three runs in the first inning and managed to stay in front until the eighth, when the locals tied it up. In the ninth, with two out and three on bases, Billy Purtell hit safely, scoring Whiteman with the winning run.

BISONS BADLY BEATEN.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Jersey City had a batting feast today, pounding out 21 hits, which netted 18 runs, while Schacht held the Bisons scoreless. Ryan started the game for Buffalo, but was taken out in the fifth and was replaced by Marshall, whose offerings seemed to please the Skeeters even more than had those of Ryan.

League Leaders Tie Score in Eighth and Win in Ninth, 3 to 2.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29. — Staging eighth and ninth inning rallies, Chicago took the first game of the series from Cleveland, 3 to 2, it being Cicotte's twenty-sixth victory of the season.

Chicago tied the count in the eighth. Leibold walked and took third on E. Collins's single to right. Weaver hit a low liner to right that Smith caught inches off the ground, plunged headfirst into the turf, and then arose in time to double Leibold at the plate. Jackson and Felsch followed with doubles that scored E. Collins and Jackson. Schalk scored the winning run in the ninth on his pass, Cicotte's sacrifice and Leibold's single.

EBBETS IS SUED AGAIN.

Daubert Claims Brooklyn Ball Club Still Owes Him $500.

Jake Daubert's claim against the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club for $2,150, which he alleged to be due him as an unpaid balance of salary, has come up again. Daubert's suit was first brought into court on Feb. 27 last and was then postponed until March 3, the defendant having agreed to settle, it was said, before that date, on the understanding that the suit be dropped. Yesterday, however, Albert Klose, as assignee of Daubert's claim, began a second suit against the Brooklyn club, summons and complaint having been served upon Charles H. Ebbets somewhere in Flatbush. In the new action it is asserted that Daubert agreed to accept $1,500 in settlement of his claim, $500 upon his signing with the Cincinnati team, $500 on May 10, and $500 on June 10. The June 10 installment, according to the plaintiff, has not been paid and Klose demand it.

WINS POWER BOAT RACE BY SECONDS

Miss Detroit III. Leads Miss Detroit II. in Thrilling Clash for Gold Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Aug. 29.—After what was undoubtedly the most thrilling speedboat race ever witnessed anywhere the Miss Detroit III., driven by Gar Wood and representing the Detroit Yacht Club, won the first heat of the Gold Cup Race on the Detroit River today from the Miss Detroit II., with "Doc" Sanborn at the wheel, by two seconds.

There were four entries for the event, but the Eleventh Hour had pump trouble—appropriately enough, at the last moment—and the Miss Belle Isle broke her camshaft, and neither was able to start, leaving the two Miss Detroits, both powered with twelve-cylinder Packard aviation motors, to fight it out, and they surely fought every inch of the way. Never during the thirty miles the boats traveled was there more than fourteen seconds separating them, and the greater part of the time they were only three or four seconds apart.

The course was fairly smooth along the Belle Isle shore, and rather rough on the Detroit side, which curtailed their speed considerably, and fast time was out of the question. But what was lacking in speed was more than made up for in closeness of competition.

The boats got over the line only a fraction of a second apart and for the first two laps were on practically even terms. Then the Miss Detroit III., which appeared to make the turns better than her rival, picked up a slight advantage, but in the sixth lap the Miss Detroit II. pulled past her rival and was two seconds ahead as she crossed the line for the seventh lap, the sixteen miles having been traveled in 21:04, or at the rate of 42.50 miles an hour.

Right after this the Miss Detroit II. started missing on one or two cylinders, and the larger boat crept ahead until, at the eighth lap, she had a lead of eighteen seconds. Mechanician Smith finally got the Miss Detroit Power Boat Association entry working properly again and started to cut down this margin, making the best time on the ninth and tenth laps, and going ahead. The Miss Detroit III. went to the fore again on the eleventh at the lower turn, and from then on it was a merry race.

On the final lap the Miss Detroit II. tore loose for the fastest two and one-half miles of the race, negotiating the course in 3 minutes and 8 seconds, and all but picked up the lost ground on her rival, the 1918 champion crossing just two seconds ahead. Her time was 41 minutes and 37 seconds, and her speed 43.1 miles an hour. The best lap speed of Miss Detroit II. was at the rate of 47.8 miles an hour.

Leigh C. Merrill, at the wheel of the Pirate, won the first ten-mile heat in the handicap cabin cruiser race for the Sallan Trophy. His time was 1:05:01, an average of 9.25 miles an hour. One heat of every race will be run tomorrow and Monday.

Thousands of persons lined the shores of the Detroit River to witness the race, while hundreds of pleasure craft were anchored around the two and one-half-mile course.

BRAVES DIVIDE WITH PHILS.

Boston Drops First Battle, 4 to 3, but Comes Back for a 6 to 4 Victory.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Philadelphia and Boston today divided the first of their two double-headers, the locals winning the first game in the twelfth inning, 4 to 3, and losing the second, 6 to 4.

Callahan's single won the first game after Paulette's double, Tragresser's safe bunt, and an intentional pass to Pinch-hitter Cravath had filled the bases. The first four Boston batters hit safely against Cantwell, who made his first big league start in the second game. After that he pitched fairly well until the closing inning, when he weakened. Williams's home run with two on bases in the fifth gave the locals a lead they could not hold. Meusel hit safely in both games, making sixteen straight games he has done so.

ANZAC MERMAIDS CANCEL THEIR TOUR

The swimming carnival to be held this afternoon at Rye Beach will lack the presence of the two Australian mermaids, Miss Fanny Durack and Miss Mina Wylie, whose tour of the country, under the auspices of the A. A. U., has been cancelled. The antipodeans will not compete again in this country, it was announced last night. Both swimmers declare that they are disappointed with the reception given them here, and object to competing in scratch races with American swimmers.

The meet this afternoon will decide the national 880-yard swim. Besides this title event, five cup races and diving contests are scheduled. Miss Charlotte Boyle, Miss Ethleda Bleibtrey, and the Smith twins are among the prominent mermaids who will contend for honors. The swimming carnival is being held by the Rye Beach Club and has the sanction of the A. A. U.

While the meet will lose some interest through the absence of the Australian waterwomen, both Miss Durack and Miss Wylie have been defeated this season by American mermaids in swimming contests. The crux of the trouble between the Australian swimmers and the A. A. U. is that the foreign mermaids did not wish to compete in races where American women started from scratch, the first conflict between the wishes of the A. A. U. and the desires of the Australians occurring in Chicago earlier in the season.

In Chicago the Australians were booked for several time races against Americans and refused to swim. The next day handicap events were staged, and the antipodeans entered. At Philadelphia Thursday the officials had arranged a swim where Miss Bleibtrey and Miss Boyle were to start from scratch against Miss Durack. The latter objected, asking that she be allowed to give them a handicap. This was refused, and the Australian did not race, although Miss Bleibtrey and Miss Boyle gave an exhibition swim.

Later in the evening Miss Durack was to swim against Miss Eleanor Uhl of Philadelphia, but when she appeared at the edge of the tank she was hooted by the gallery. Declaring the attitude unsportsmanlike for an audience, Miss Durack paddled up and down the tank several times and then jumped from the water, refusing to race.

Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary of the A. A. U., who was directing their tour of the country, was in communication with the swimmers yesterday. He says they will not compete again in this country and that their visits under A. A. U. auspices to the South and West have been canceled.

Herman Myer, Chairman of the Registration Committee of the Middle Atlantic Association, suspended the two swimmers from appearing in his district and reported the suspension to Rubien, asking him to withdraw them from further meets in this country.

MURRAY TO COACH AGAIN.

Former Successful Fencing Master Will Return to Columbia

James Murray, veteran fencing coach of the New York A. C., and for twenty-three years director of the foilsmen at Columbia University, will return to Morningside Heights this Fall, according to announcement made yesterday. Murray left Columbia in 1917 after the discontinuance of all sports, and last year was engaged in business activity that would not permit his coaching. Costello, another New York A. C. coach, substituted for him. Negotiations for Murray's return were completed last week and a new contract was signed.

Murray has had exceptional success with the Columbia swordsmen and has turned out more than a dozen intercollegiate championship teams, and such individual title holders as Louis Mouquin and M. J. Bloomer. Bloomer was last year's team captain, will succeed himself this season, and is expected to retain his intercollegiate title. Forster, another member of last Winter's championship squad, will return to his Columbia studies this month, and Coach Murray regards these two youngsters as a promising nucleus for the team.

JONES'S HIT BEATS BROWNS.

Victory Puts Tigers in Tie with Indians for Second Place.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 29.—Jones's hit into right field bleachers, with two runners on base in the fourth gave Detroit a 5 to 2 victory over St. Louis today and tied the visitors with Cleveland for second place. It was Jones's first circuit drive since joining the Tigers, and the third successive time that the Browns have been beaten by a home run, sixteen of which have been made here in the last twelve games.

Shocker allowed only five hits, but four of these came in the fourth when Detroit made all of its runs.

Murchison Files His Transfer.

Loren Murchison, formerly of the St. Louis A. A., filed his transfer to the New York A. C. with the Registration Committee of the A. A. U., which met last night. The committee also took up the appeal of A. G. Desch, who competed for the Paulist A. C., in 1918, winning the medal in the junior metropolitan low hurdles event. He was later found ineligible and his prize withheld. The appeal was not passed by the committee, but Desch declared that he would carry the matter to the annual meeting of A. A. U. managers.

MARINE RIFLEMEN WIN HIGH HONORS

CALDWELL, N. J., Aug. 29.—The 1,000-yard target tests of the National Team Match today wound up the shooting events which have been going on at the navy rifle range here for several weeks. The honors of the final event went to the marines, who were closely pressed by the American Expeditionary Force, with the cavalry riding hard behind and the infantry just behind the horsemen.

Despite the fact that the high score of the day went to Lieutenant Lloyd Spooner, an A. E. F. warrior, the consistent marksmanship of the entire marine team was such that it brought the national trophy to the "leathernecks" for the third consecutive time. Their final score was 3327, 47 points ahead of their nearest competitors, the A. E. F. team.

The Hilton Trophy, prized because of its historic associations, went to the Connecticut civilian team as leaders of the class next below the winners of the national trophy. Their score was 3,216.

After a short struggle with the Camp Custer (Reserve Officers' Training School) team the Presidio team of San Francisco emerged from the smoke of the firing victorious in its class and secured the Soldier of Marathon Trophy, awarded to the highest team of schools and colleges. The winners' score was 3,107.

The scores:

BROOKES HAS HARD BATTLE

Three of the greatest tennis matches of the season were played yesterday afternoon within the grand-stand inclosure of the West Side Club at Forest Hills in the fourth round of the national singles championship, and for over five and one-half hours a crowd of 8,000 spectators sat enthralled by the nerve-racking encounters on the turf below them. All three of the featured matches ran to five sets, the climax being reached when William M. Johnston defeated Gerald L. Patterson of Australia, 6—2, 3—6, 6—4, 4—6, 7—5.

Just previous to this epic struggle William T. Tilden, 2d, had eliminated the Japanese terror, Ichiya Kumagae, at 6—4, 6—1, 1—6, 4—6, 6—2, while in the first match of the day Norman E. Brookes, the only Australian left in the tournament, barely pulled out a victory against Charles S. Garland, with the sets scored 1—6, 2—6, 6—1, 6—2, 7—5.

On the outside courts, National Champion R. Lindley Murray disposed of Conrad B. Doyle in straight sets, and Richard Norris Williams 2d, took the measure of R. V. Thomas without undue difficulty, after unexpectedly dropping the opening session. Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, surprised some of the knowing ones by a four set triumph over Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston, while Walter Merrill Hall was hard pressed to win from T. R. Pell in similar fashion. Maurice E. McLoughlin advanced to the round before the semi-finals at the expense of P. L. Kynaston, and thus completed an octet of the greatest tennis players of modern times, surviving the field of 128, which started play for the national title last Tuesday.

A Thrill in Every Rally.

Although there have been far better exhibitions of tennis on the West Side Courts, it is doubtful whether any match has ever before thrilled an American crowd as did the Johnston-Patterson contest. Not even the famous Brookes-McLoughlin battle of 1914 aroused the intense excitement of this heroic affair, for that classic of the courts was practically decided by the result of the opening set, whereas yesterday's match hung in the balance literally until the completion of the final rally. The great final of 1916 between Johnston and Williams, which still must rank as the supreme example of perfect tennis, did not offer the emotional surges that prevailed yesterday, for it lacked not only the international touch, but also that agonizing frequency of inexcusable errors which will always keep the tennis fan, like the baseball fan, on the edge of a hard bench in a frantic condition, half way between heart failure and a nervous breakdown.

Calm consideration of the actual playing of those five frenzied sets reveals the fact that neither winner nor loser can be credited with unusual skill on the technical side. Johnston certainly played better this year when he defended the Longwood Cup against Williams and when he defeated Kumagae in straight sets at Newport. As for Patterson, he was far below the form which he had shown on the previous day against Washburn, and it was only his amazing courage and the repeated faltering of his opponent that made five sets necessary before a decision could be reached. Johnston led at 4—1 in the fourth set, with his own service to come, having twice broken through Patterson's cannon-ball delivery. Yet with two opportunities to serve out the set and match, he failed to put over the winning punch, and actually allowed the fighting Australian to take five games in a row for the set, losing his service three times in succession on the way.

Again in the final set, when Johnston had broken through for a lead of 5-4 and had 30—love in his favor, with only two points needed for the match, he was unable to score again, evidently waiting for an error on Patterson's part, which the Australian stubbornly refused to make. It was only through some bad volleying that Johnston was able to break through again, and this time he threw away a lead of 40—15 on his own service, flubbing a half-volley and then watching a fast drive go past him to the side-line for the deuce score. A fine lob, however, put him once more within a point of the match and this time the luck of a bad bound forced Patterson to drive into the net for the final point.

Luck a Vital Factor.

Although the little Californian outplayed his opponent almost two to one in the early stages of the match, he had so little to depend upon in the pinches that it is doubtful if he could have won without these very definite breaks of luck. He will have to show far more of his real ability if he is to dethrone Champion Murray this afternoon, for the latter, like Patterson, is a fighter to the last ditch, but with added assets of a stroke assortment and a speed which the Australian does not yet possess.

Patterson was an in-and-out player yesterday. He made some astonishing shots, usually when they were most needed, and he also made some of the maddest errors imaginable. His overhead was far from reliable and he again and again netted short lobs which are usually a set-up for him, besides hesitating to trust his full strength to the business of killing the ball, with the result that Johnston was usually able to return his smashes. Patterson's service was by no means unplayable, and his forehand drive depended on accuracy rather than speed for scoring purposes. On his backhand he was inclined to play safe, but brought off several of his unique looping wallops, the sudden drop of which was very disconcerting to Johnston's volleys.

Patterson showed his accustomed agility in covering court, but at the net he threw away far too many volleys after he had put his racquet squarely on the ball. During his spectacular pull up of the fourth set spectacular tennis was overwhelmingly impressive, but in the rubber, when he really had more than an even chance to win, with Johnston weary, nervous, and far from confident, he made fatal mistakes of execution on the very shots that had previously put him in a commanding position. Had Johnston won the match in four sets, as he should, with the last scored at 6—2 or 6—3, the real superiority of the American would have been easily apparent. But as it was the Australian's wonderful fighting qualities made him seem at the finish actually the equal of his conqueror, and perhaps it is best that the verdict should remain thus.

Johnston Wins Opening Service.

Patterson was wild at the start and Johnston won his opening service after trailing 30—40. The Australian also came from behind to win his delivery, and they continued to alternate up to 3—2, with Johnston always having a slight edge in his favor. The break came in the next game, the American making it 4—2 with a clean pass and a beautiful lob to the base line, which Patterson drove blindly into the net. Johnston reached 5—2 in spite of the dismal flubbing of a volley and a half volley, and then saw the set in his hands at 40—15 on his own service. But an error and Patterson's good volley made it deuce, and it required a net corder and an out to give Johnston the set, 6—2.

After dividing the opening games of the second session Patterson broke through by fooling Johnston three times in succession with his fast dropping back hand loop drive off service. But Johnston also broke through, after getting the worst of an important decision on the side line, passing his rival cleanly, fore and back hand. A double fault, called on a near ace to the centre line, deprived Johnston of another service win, and Patterson rushed ahead to 4—2. One more division of service made it 5—3, and then the Australian broke through for the set, 6—3, dropping one into the corner which Johnston misjudged and then winning with a net-cord volley and two good drives.

Californian Recovers Quickly.

The Californian came right back by upsetting Patterson's service for the opening game of the third set. But the Australian equalized when Johnston missed two easy shots overhead and guessed wrong on a drive which clipped the side-line. The players then won alternately on service up to 3-all, when Johnston, after recovering some hard smashes with splendid steadiness, broke through with a series of fast drives which Patterson was utterly unable to volley. He served a love-game for the 5—3 lead, and the set point came up when Patterson trailed at 30—40 with a double fault. But the Australian pulled out this game with a huge smash, only to see the set go at 6—4 on a fine volley by Johnston.

After the rest period the American found and wasted his great opportunity. Patterson won his opening service, although netting an easy smash in the process, and Johnston, after replying in kind, got his first break on a backhand placement to the exact corner of the court, a ball which might easily have been called in or out. Proceeding to 3—1 on service, he again broke through with a clean pass, after helpful errors by Patterson. Then, with the match crying out to be taken home and put to bed, Johnston stopped in his tracks, while Patterson began the uphill fight that saved the set and almost brought him victory. Johnston lost his service when he missed an easy volley, misjudged a low lob to the corner, and then drove outside. Patterson came one game nearer on his own delivery, and then, leading at 30 love, Johnston failed to come to the net on a good serve to the centre line, thus losing a sure opening for the volley which might have decided the match. He then rushed in blindly on some far less favorable deliveries, and was cleanly passed three times in succession for the break which squared the set, 4 all. Patterson advanced to 5—4, and they struggled through a long deuce game for the decision. Johnston twice saved himself, but put himself in the hole for the third time by messing up an easy smash. A great passing drive settled the affair in Patterson's favor, squaring the match at 6—4.

Close Decision Favors Patterson.

Johnston had an early chance to break through in the rubber, leading Patterson at 15-40 on the Australian's second service. But he again had the worst of a close decision, and eventually threw away the game on errors. At 3-all Johnston again had his rival in trouble, with love-forty called against his service. This time the Californian broke through when Patterson volleyed out, and he made it 5—3 with a love-game. Errors brought Patterson up one step nearer, and then, after leading at 30-love, Johnston once more allowed his service to slip away from him, the games going to 5-all, with everything square. Patterson, however, continued to mis-hit his volleys, and Johnston broke through again for the odd game, and quickly reached the match point at 40—15. Here another panic seemed to seize him, for he failed to make a comparatively easy half-volley and then saw the points deuced with a sideliner. A fine lob to the base line, however, saved the situation, and when, in the next rally, Johnston's volley bounded low down the middle of the court, Patterson lunged wildly forward at the skidding ball and drove it into the net for the set and match, 7—5.

Garland Plays Splendid Tennis.

For two sets yesterday afternoon it seemed that the young collegian, Charles S. Garland, was to have the honor of eliminating Norman Brookes, the great Australian veteran. The Yale man had the same flawless game working that won him the Meadow Club Challenge Cup at Southampton last week. On the other hand, Brookes was distinctly off form at the start, making an astonishing number of errors against the mechanical perfection of Garland's tennis. His volleys were uncertain and his ground strokes often failed to carry out his intentions. Garland, however, was using more speed than usual, aceing his opponent with well-placed serves and passing him again and again at the net, by cleverly disguising the direction of his shots. It was only after being within one set of losing the match that Brookes succeeded in solving this exceedingly effective game, and he did it by increasing both the speed and the angular sharpness of his volleys. At that, the loser made a wonderful pull-up in the final set, carrying the games to 5—4 after trailing at 4—2, and threatening to win even after the veteran had tied it up at 5-all. A slight variety of play might have made all the difference at this stage. But Brookes knew Garland's game by heart after the first two sets, and his eventual victory was merely a question of the correct execution of the shots which he knew would win.

The first set was over in jig time, Garland hanging up a 6-1 score while the spectators were still lingering over their luncheon and filtering into the stands. He took the second almost as easily at 6-2, but after that Brookes assumed command and exactly reversed the scores. In the rubber the veteran broke through by fine volleying in the opening game, keeping his lead up to 4-2. Then Garland won his service at love, and broke through in turn without allowing his opponent a point, twice passing him cleanly off service. The Yale man led at 5-4 on his own delivery, but Brookes equalized and then upset Garland's srves for the deciding game and the match, 7-5.

Kumagae at His Best.

Ichiya Kumagae played the best all around tennis of his career yesterday against William T. Tilden, 2d, and, after losing the first two sets, came on with a rush to tie up the match and give the Philadelphian some exceedingly uncomfortable moments before he could claim a five set victory. The Japanese star was not only remarkably steady and speedy with his ground strokes as always, but volleyed and smashed with a skill and abandon which had never before characterized his game. Many of his kills from mid-court were of the most spectacular kind, and he forced Tilden to his limit before his streak could be stopped.

The national runner-up of last season was inclined to be careless, especially after having two sets in hand, and practiced strokes in the back court instead of going in and finishing the points as he eventually had to do. He did some sensational serving, and introduced his fastest drives late in the match, after driving his opponent all over the court with well placed chops. One of these cannonading drives, landing several feet inside the court, was called "out" on an inexplicable decision, but the rest scored as often as they were visible to the eyes of the linesman.

One Bad Set for Williams.

Richard Norris Williams, 2d, suffered a spell of his typical wildness yesterday in his first set against R. V. Thomas, but after he had settled down to his super-game and got the one bad set out of his system he never gave the Australian a chance. Thomas worked desperately in the final session of the match, and succeeded in carrying the games to deuce, but this was the limit of his resistance once the ex-champion got started.

Those who realized that Wallace Johnson has this season been playing some of the best tennis of his career were not greatly astonished at his upsetting the old reliable Niles of Boston in a four-set match. The speed and accuracy of the New Englander were too much for Johnson in the opener, but after that the chop strokes of the winner became more and more effective, Niles fading away completely in the last two sets.

Hall's victory over Pell was well earned, a brief streak of wildness accounting for the only set tallied by the backhand expert, who took this one session at love. McLoughlin had little trouble with Kyanston until the third set, which the young Long Islander carried to 8—6. Murray also smothered Doyle without difficulty, finding his chops amenable to volleying and covering the ground with his accustomed kangaroo jumps, to the complete discomfiture of the Washingtonian.

MRS. WIGHTMAN A WINNER.

The champion won her bracket yesterday by defeating Mrs. Edward Raymond, 6—3, 7—5, while Miss Bjurstedt eliminated Miss Marion Zinderstein, 6—3, 6—8, 6—3, turning the tables on the young Bostonian who had deprived her of her crown in the women's national tournament last June. In the second set of this match the contestants made the remarkable record of losing their own services consistently through twelve games. Miss Zinderstein eventually won the set by capturing her own delivery, but threw away all chance of winning the match by her old habit of double-faulting, after being in the lead 3—1 in the rubber.

In the final round of the doubles today Mrs. Wightman and Miss Zinderstein will face Miss Bjurstedt and Mrs. S. F. Weaver.

Ex-Champion Will Meet Mrs. Fisk for Western Women's Title.

DETROIT, Aug. 29.—Mrs. F. C. Letts, Jr., Chicago, champion of the Women's Western Golf Association in 1916 and 1917, will strike to regain the title tomorrow, when she plays Mrs. Perry Fisk, Dekalb, Ill., in the final of the Western at the Detroit Golf Club.

Mrs. Lets and Mrs. Fisk became finalists by scoring one-sided victories today over Miss Dorothy Higbie, Chicago, and Mrs. Harold Foreman, Chicago, respectively, in the eighteen holes semi-final. Both matches ended on the thirteenth green, 6 and 5, the Letts-Higbie contest when Mrs. Letts won the hole with a 25-foot putt and the other when the hole was halved in fours.

Although the weather was the best of the week the playing was far below the average. Effective approaching and putting by the winners were the only redeeming features. It was in these departments that both matches were decided, both Mrs. Foreman and Miss Higbie tossing away holes repeatedly by poor short work.

Forest Park Golf Tournament.

STARTLING IS FIRST IN UNCAS HANDICAP

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Richard F. Carman's Startling was in a running mood here today and with the aid of a light impost showed his heels to a field of fleet sprinters in the Uncas Handicap at six furlongs. Startling led the way home for S. C. Hildreth's Lord Brighton and F. D. Weir's Old Rosebud. The latter, after finishing third, was disqualified for a foul committed on the backstretch and the position was awarded to H. Perkins's George Starr.

While this race was not down on the card as the feature of the day it proved the most interesting contest, as it brought out a number of old favorites, some of which had not been seen in many weeks. Lord Brighton, of which much was expected this season, really ran his first race, for on his previous start he had been left at the post. Old Rosebud, which always has a big following, had not raced since the meeting at Empire City, and the Beach Stable's flags, which had been awarded the top weight for the event, had not raced since the running of the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park, when he finished second to Lanius. The others which went to the post today were Crank and Blue Laddie.

The presence of so many crack racers so confounded both players and layers that for a time there was no real choice and the public was permitted to make its own favorite. Finally so much support came for Flags that he became the choice, but there was strong support for every horse in the race.

Flags's Impost Too Heavy.

Flags had been asked to carry 130 pounds and this proved too much for him, though with a more alert jockey he might have managed the weight and won. S. C. Hildreth had scratched Lucullite and depended on Lord Brighton, and this colt ran a remarkably good race. At the finish he was gaining on the leader and would have been the winner in another few strides. It was his first chance this season to show his speed and he indicated that he will live up to his reputation made last year as a two-year-old.

It was with some difficulty that Starter Cassidy got these sprinters away from the post. Old Rosebud was particularly fractious and would not line up. When he finally was ready he got off to a flying start and showed his usual speed. Flags was off last, but Jockey Burns rushed him up among the leaders while going through the back stretch, and this despite the fact that his mount carried the top weight. Flags responded gamely, and by the time the horses were turning into the stretch he had caught Old Rosebud and was only a few inches behind him. He was forced to go wide to make the turn, and at that point the weight told on him and he began to slow up.

Startling in the meantime had been rated nicely through the early part of the race, and coming through on the rail overtook both Old Rosebud and Flags. Startling moved away to a lead of two lengths in the stretch, but before Ensor realized it Lord Brighton came from the back of the field and, racing as though he was much fresher than the others, threatened to take the race. Ensor had to resort to his whip to hold Startling at top speed and beat out the Hildreth colt.

Old Rosebud was third, half a length in front of George Starr. However, making the first turn out of the backstretch Old Rosebud had moved on Crank and bumped the latter so badly that Crank was nearly thrown to the ground. Old Rosebud was disqualified for this foul and George Starr was placed third.

Thunderclap a Winner.

The Hoosic Falls Handicap, which was listed as the feature of the card, brought only four starters to the post, and was won quite handily by the Oneck Stable's Thunderclap. R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Thunderstorm was second, with W. R. Coe's Athlone third. F. D. Weir's Tetley, which had finished second to Purchase and defeated Hannibal a few days ago, proved that that excellent showing had been rather accidental by coming in last today.

Thunderclap won this mile and quarter test carrying the top weight of 126 pounds. His victory was due largely to the fine ride of Jockey Fairbrother. Athlone was rushed into the lead at the start and Fairbrother was content to trail last. Athlone and Thunderstorm alternated in setting the pace through the backstretch with Tetley running third. Fairbrother did not make a move on his mount until he was turning into the stretch, when he gave his horse his head and let him go as he liked. Thunderclap swept past the others, and at the head of the stretch had taken the lead after going to the outside. From there to the wire it was a gallop for him, and he proved himself much the best in the race.

Truly Rural Outruns Germa.

Harry Payne Whitney's Truly Rural won one of the best contests for two-year-olds that has been seen here this season. This was the sixth event of the day and the race was run in the fast time of 0:58 3-5. Of the nine starters G. W. Loft's Germa was the favorite but the filly had an outside post position and, failing to get away ahead of the others, she could not get into the lead at any time. Truly Rural, which had won a race early in the meeting at a time when her stable mate, Wendy, was supposed to be the best in the test, raced into the lead at the first turn and made a game finish. W. R. Coe's Star Court was close at the heels of Truly Rural and it was not until the wire was reached that the Whitney filly managed to make the victory certain. There she pushed her nose over to win by a narrow margin. Captain Herschler was third. Germa tired in the last furlong and ceased to be a contender.

E. R. Bradley's Porte Drapeau won the fifth race at a mile. After coming in quite an easy winner he still was so full of running that he went around the course again before he could be pulled up. This was a race for maidens, three years old and upward. P. G. King was second and Wilfreda third.

LU PRINCETON WINS FROM MABEL TRASK

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Lu Princeton made the fastest mile of the season, equaling his record of 2:02 in winning an exhibition trot from Mabel Trask, also from the Cox Stable, at the Grand Circuit races at the Readville track today.

Mignola won his second race of this meeting and his ninth consecutive victory this year when he captured the President Stake. Cox took Mignola into the lead at the word in each heat, and held command for the entire mile. In the last two heats Geers was only a neck back with Don de Lopez.

The two-year-old trotting division of the American Horse Breeder Futurity went to Dudette, the property of Frank G. Jones of Memphis, Tenn. In both heats Geers laid the filly within hailing distance of the leaders to the home-stretch and had the speed to win by a close margin from The Great Miss Morris in 2:11½ and 2:10¼, respectively.

Prince Pepper, owned by D. B. Burnham of New York, took the first two heats of the 2:17 pace in 2:12¾ and 2:09¼. In the final heat Hyde was pocketed, and in the last eighth Murphy went to the front with Clifford Direct in 2:08¾.

Murphy piloted Doctor Nick, owned by A. H. Cosdon of Southold, N. Y., to victory in the 2:24 trot, and to a record of 2:07¾ in each of the first two heats. McDonald took the last heat with Baron Cegantle by a few inches from Frank Watts in 2:07½. The summary:

MORE FIRST PLACES FOR MISS VAUCLAIN

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 29.—The champion classes were the feature of the closing day of the Newport Horse Show, which has been regarded as one of the best ever held here.

The most spectacular winner of the championship ribbons was Miss Constance Vauclain of Rosemont, Penn., who also figured prominently the first two days of the show. She won the championship hunters with Arbite and took the reserve in the same class with Ennisthorpe. Her two entries in the champion harness classes swept the field, The Whip getting the championship and Lady Dilham the reserve. Her pair of bay mares, Dragon Fly and The Wasp, received the title over Miss Wannamaker's team, and this event closed the day a triumphant one for Miss Vauclain.

Besides the championship classes, Miss Vauclain won the first prizes for hackney horses, gig horses, ladies' single with vehicle, first and second prizes in the small harness horse class, and she also received second in the light hunters. Miss Vauclain was constantly applauded, and in most of the classes she drove her own entries.

Mrs. F. P. Garvan of Park Avenue, New York, was a prominent winner in all of the pony events in the show, taking three championships and one reserve. Hamilton Flame and Dianthus and Tissington Belle and Brown Belle were her pairs and Chestnut Blossom won the saddle pony championship.

Walter H. Hanley of Providence had an entry, Driftwood Blaze, that attracted great admiration and won two first prizes and the championship for saddle horses. Among the other big winners were Miss Eleanora Sears, Isaac Clothier, Jr., Mrs. Joseph Sylvester, and N. A. Barrows, who had a handsome horse, Paddington, in the ring.

The awards:

Class 23—Shetland Ponies in Harness.—Won by Mrs. F. P. Garvan's Silver Tips; Mrs F. P. Garvan's Silver Tips II., second; R. S. Moore's Bobbie, third; Misses Chases' Priscilla Trip, fourth.

UNITED HUNTS MEET TODAY.

Good Racing Over Jumps Promised at Belmont Park Terminal.

Some of the most interesting timber-topping of the season is promised this afternoon at the United Hunts race meeting at Belmont Park Terminal. There is a well-balanced card of six events both over the jumps and on the flat. A number of excellent 'chasers will be seen under silk. The double event, over the three-mile course, will have a bearing on determining the champion of the year over timber and brush. Always a trying course, the Terminal is one which calls out the best qualities for which horses are bred, and as those whoch have been nominated indicate—the subscription is $500 each, with all to go to the winner—a stellar test may be expected.

Must We Ratify Treaty To Save the World?

At the now famous White House conference with the Committee on Foreign Relations President Wilson emphasized the moral obligation resting upon the Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty as it stands.

THE LITERARY DIGEST of August 30th cites numerous leading newspapers which have taken up this question with ardor. "The first, the imperative duty of this country," says the Jersey City Journal, is to make the Treaty effect and then "to join the other civilized countries of the globe in an honest effort to make peace lasting," and the Philadelphia Inquirer maintains that America "can never return to a sane basis until the Peace Treaty is disposed of and actual peace is brought about." The opposition view is voiced by the Hartford Courant, which feels that while "benefit all around" should result from the conference the Senators will not be "stampeded by the President's plea for urgency." Senator Lodge hints at delays in his statement that "we all respect and share" the desires of those who want a Peace League, but "some of us see no hope, but rather defeat, for them in this murky covenant."

LANDLORD TERMED 'CZAR OF NEW YORK'

MANY TENANTS PROTEST

Dr. Bernard Stattman of 290 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, was called yesterday the "most arbitrary, most unreasonable, and most junker-like landlord in New York City," by Captain Charles A. Goldsmith, mediator for the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, after a hearing which brought forth indignant protests from the doctor's tenants in houses at 546 Fortieth Street, and 339-345 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. The Captain, who during the many months he has been hearing cases of distress brought down upon tenants by profiteering, has earned a reputation for a calm judicial attitude mixed with good humor, lost his temper for the first time yesterday, and after requesting the women present to leave the room so that he might give free rein to his vocabulary, proceeded to tell the doctor many things.

The case of Dr. Stattman was before the committee for the third time, and for the tenants of the Eleventh Street house, it was settled by the doctor giving way to the committee, when it was pointed out that the Lever act prevented a landlord from distressing the relatives of a man in the service. However, in the cases of those not protected by the law the doctor was not willing to forego the increases which he had ordered. When he told one tenant that she might stay until the first of October and then move, offering this "as a concession," Captain Goldsmith spoke of the doctor as "the Czar of New York who was willing to let some people live." Finally, Goldsmith became exasperated, and declared that there was no use trying to do anything with the landlord outside the court. In previous hearings it was developed that Dr. Stattman had taken possession of the Lincoln Place houses on Aug. 1, and that he had immediately raised the rents from $10 to $18 a month, and that on his investment he was due to make 23 per cent a year.

One of the tenants is H. B. Dobbs, an investigator for the United States Revenue Office. He says he intends to fight the case to the limit. Charles H. Griffiths, former Assistant United States District Attorney, has been engaged as counsel by the tenants. In the meantime, notes of violations of building laws are being taken by a representative of the Tenement Houses Department, and Captain Goldsmith has threatened that the assessment on the houses will be raised from $80,000 to $126,000. The houses have been sold ten times within the last three years and the rents have been raised three times within the last year, the present figure in some cases averaging more than $13 a room.

Charging that the tenants of his house had taken it over for themselves and were not only managing it, but collecting the rents, Abraham Levow of 215 West 111th Street complained yesterday in the Harlem Court against three of the women tenants in his apartment house at 1,294 Park Avenue. He said that they had formed themselves into a co-operative organization and had told him that neither he nor the janitor might have any further connection with the house, that they refused to allow him to enter the premises, and that they collected and kept the rents. The women brought into court on a summons obtained by the owner gave their names as Mrs. Sarah Wieser, Mrs. Mollie Brietman, and Mrs. Fannie Belzer. After listening to the landlord's charges the lawyer for the defendants asked for an adjournment until Sept. 4. This was granted by Magistrate Charles E. Simms.

In telling his story to the court, Levow said that the women prevented him from entering the premises, prevented plumbers from going into the apartments to make repairs, and collected rents amounting to $300 which he had not seen. The whole trouble, he said, resulted from the fact that the landlord served a dispossess notice on one of the tenants. This roused the other tenants who held an indignation meeting and elected Mrs. Wieser chairman, and the other two women officers of a tenants' organization. Following the organization meeting there was held a parade, Levow told the court, at the end of which he alleged the tenants marched into the premises of the janitor, crying, "The Bolsheviki are in control." On this occasion, according to Levow, the tenants said the landlord and janitor would have nothing more to do with the building and they would run it to suit themselves.

HOLIDAYS HIT HOTELS.

Managers Report General Exodus for Labor Day Vacation.

The big hotels of New York last night reported a general exodus of patrons bent on getting away for the holidays. At the McAlpin, Waldorf-Astoria, Vanderbilt, Majestic and other hotels the house count fell off more than half.

During the temporary lull the hotel managers are making ready for the biggest rush back to town in history on Tuesday. Thousands are closing their Summer homes early this year on account of the difficulty of getting housing quarters. The hotels expect to be swamped, and the New York Hotel Association has asked all hotels out of the city to request prospective visitors to New York to wire ahead for reservations.

"I believe that the hotels of New York will do the largest business in history this Fall and Winter," said Copeland Townsend of the Majestic. "The restoration of steamship travel, the influx from South America, and the high cost of living, which is driving thousands out of apartment houses, are responsible for the new conditions."

Governor's Clemency for Convict.

ALBANY, Aug. 29.—Governor Smith today commuted the sentences of three men who are serving long prison terms for murder. The recipients of clemency are Philip Ruppert, convicted in Brooklyn in 1907; Joseph Marcantano, convicted in Brooklyn in 1908, and Charles F. Wilson, whose death sentence imposed by the Onondaga Supreme Court in 1895 was changed to life imprisonment by Governor Morton.

McGOVERN'S GYMNASIUM

McGovern's system of physical training results in perfect restoration to health and vigor. Many men rejected by army surgeons were rendered sound and fit by Mr. McGovern.

In his gymnasium there is every facility for scientific body-building and reducing. Boxing, wrestling, fencing, handball, and other sports are provided.

Dr. A. L. Arnold, Jr., Assistant Surgeon U. S. Marine Corps, writes: "I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the wonderful work that you have done in reclaiming rejected applicants. It has been a great source of help to me to know that I had some place where I could send men who were under or over weight or with flat feet where they could, by proper exercises, etc., become desirable men for the service. I have had applicants gain 20 pounds under your instructions, and others lose an equal amount. I have had men come back to me with good, serviceable feet after a few weeks under you."

Dr. A. R. Alfred, Medical Director, U. S. Navy, certifies: "Mr. Arthur A. McGovern has been very efficient and faithful in the physical training of applicants rejected on account of slight physique. We have enlisted many such men who have been brought up to the required standard for the United States Navy through the earnest and efficient work of Mr. A. McGovern."

FELIX WEINGARTNER COMING

Felix Weingartner cabled yesterday from Vienna that he would accept, under conditions yet to be settled by letter, the invitation of Otto Goritz and the Star Opera Company to conduct a "special classic music festival" at the Lexington Theatre in the Spring of 1920. Mr. Weingartner, who has dropped the German "von" from his name since the revolution, visited this country in the seasons of 1904-05 and 1907-08, leading concerts in New York and the West, and opera in Boston.

Mr. Goritz has asked the famous conductor's wife, who was Lucille Marcel of New York, and is a popular singer abroad, to appear here with the new German opera company, which is starting rehearsals next week for a Fall season. Should the plans for the Spring be realized also, it is proposed to produce Weingartner's operetta, "Dame Kobold," as well as his latest serious opera, "Cain and Abel."

Irving N. Mitchell, 21 years old, was before Magistrate Cornelius Huth in Yorkville Court yesterday on a charge of grand larceny in the alleged forgery and uttering of a cashier's check for $700. Thomas G. S. Hooke, manager of the Belmont Hotel, who made the complaint against the young man, alleging that he had cashed a worthless check at his hotel on Aug. 15, said last night that friends of young Mitchell had reimbursed the hotel for the amount of the check and that the hotel would not press the case, final hearing in which was continued until Sept. 8. The young man's father and mother are in Belgium, where Mr. Mitchell went on business last January.

Vatican Choir Sails for New York.

Eighty members of the Vatican and other Roman choirs sailed from Naples yesterday for New York, according to a cable dispatch to the St. Gregory Musical Society of this city. The message told of a farewell address to their leader, Mgr. Casimiri, written by Gabriele d'Annunzio. The party will reach here about Sept. 10 and will open an American tour on Tuesday evening, Sept. 16, at Carnegie Hall. Plans are now being made for a public reception on their arrival.

DRUG CURE STARTS STRIKE OF ADDICTS

GO TO ANOTHER HOSPITAL

To the many strikes that enliven New York another was added yesterday. Eight voluntary patients at Riverside Hospital, the city's institution on North Brother Island, went on strike because they believed that the hyoscin treatment for the cure of drug addiction was harmful to them. When this became known Dr. John W. Crawford, resident physician at the hospital, delieverd a short talk to them on the beneficent effect of the treatment. This did not change their opinion and they made a united and noisy demand that the treatment cease. As one way out of the difficulty the protestants were all taken to the Morrisania Court, where, before Magistrate Curran, they were charged with disorderly conduct in that they failed to obey the rules and regulations of the hospital.

The protestants described themselves as William McCarthy and David Simon of Brooklyn, Emil Meyer of 1,742 Broadway, Harry Pollack of 182 Claremont Avenue, Charles J. Kuehn of 134 West 113th Street, Rudolph Propisil of 407 East Seventy-second Street, John Flynn of 308 East Seventy-fifth Street, and Thomas Nichols, a negro, of 79 West 134th Street.

Dr. Crawford told Magistrate Curran that from some unknown source the eight heard that the treatment was doing more harm than good and as proof they cited that one man got broken eardrums from it. Knowing that drug addicts were susceptible to such propaganda, he said, he had separated them from the other patients and had sent for Dr. Arthur Braumlich, Acting Director of the Bureau of Hospitals of the Health Department, to reason with them. Both physicians made an appeal but the patients refused to listen to reason, and then it was decided to segregate and arrest them.

Drug addicts who come to Riverside Hospital do so voluntarily, and they are obliged to sign an agreement to take the treatment offered before they are admitted to the institution. This Dr. Crawford explained, and he said the eight patients had not only violated their agreement but they had disturbed the peace of the other patients.

Dr. Crawford told the Court that the hyoscin treatment was a mild form of twilight sleep. The treatment counteracts the effect of the drug and the patient enters into a semi-coma which sometimes lasts for forty-eight hours. It takes thirty-eight days in which to effect a cure. While the court proceedings were in progress the patients became restless and it was evident to the physician that they were in need of a "ration" of morphine. Dr. Crawford telephoned to Lincoln Hospital for a supply, and a doctor came and gave each an injection. Later in the afternoon the patients again exhibited signs of restlessness and Dr. Crawford again called upon Lincoln Hospital. He could not get more of the drug, and Fordham Hospital was appealed to and the supply obtained.

The patients had a chance to explain. Kuehn, who said he was an actor, and a member of the Actors Equity Association, told the Magistrate that he took advantage of the actors' strike to be cured, adding, "since I wouldn't be earning money for some time."

Propisil, who said he was a former soldier, having been a member of Company G, 305th Infantry, stated to the Court that he became a drug addict as the result of being gassed during the Argonne drive.

Dr. Crawford asked that the men be sent elsewhere for treatment, because, he said, "if they are sent back to the Riverside Hospital they will have a disastrous effect on the other patients."

Magistrate Curran committed all but the former soldier to the workhouse hospital for treatment under Section 439 of the Public Health Code, which relates to the disposition of drug addicts. Propisil went back to Riverside.

URGES STUDY OF PHARMACY.

Miss A. Rudolph Sees Profession for Women in It.

Pharmacy is the ideal work for women, according to Miss Adelaide Rudolph of the New York College of Pharmacy, who spoke before the American Pharmaceutical Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday. Miss Rudolph urged that the young women of the country be encouraged to take up this profession. She reviewed the history of the activities of women in the work.

Robert P. Fishel, another speaker, advocated courses in salesmanship in schools of pharmacy. He declared that modern economic conditions demand this, and even asserted that it might be desirable to have music at the soda-water counter.

STATE STREET SALE INVOLVES $6,000,000

BIG FRONTAGE OBTAINED

Large Plot Faces Battery Park—Heavy Demand for Lower Manhattan Sites.

One of the largest and most important real estate transactions of the year in the business section of Manhattan south of Brooklyn Bridge was closed yesterday when the Chesebrough Building Company, of which Robert A. Chesebrough is President, sold to Henry L. Doherty & Co., the Chesebrough, Battery Park, and Maritime Buildings facing Battery Park. A couple of smaller parcels of realty are included in the deal, which, according to Joseph P. Day, who negotiated the entire transaction, will involve about $6,000,000. Whether the Henry L. Doherty Company purchased the property as an investment or whether it represented other interests could not be learned yesterday.

Since the signing of the armistice space in the financial district and south of it to Battery Park has been at a premium. Every loft and office building has been leased at an advance in many cases 50 per cent. over pre-war square foot prices, and still the demand is far greater than the supply with little or no construction in progress. Bonuses are being offered to real estate men to find space at any price, which has had the effect of creating an active speculative market, and values have risen accordingly.

In addition to this, there has been a strong buying movement by large firms for their own occupancy. Many business houses have purchased as permanent homes the buildings they have occupied on leasehold for years.

"I have made a contract to sell my majority interest in the stock of the company to Henry L. Doherty & Co. at $200 per share, less $4.50 per share commissions and an expense of 4 cents per share for stock transfer taxes. Delivery is to be made and the price paid on Oct. 1 next. I made it a condition of the contract that the purchaser would also buy, upon the same terms, the stock of all other stockholders who care to sell, and I venture to advise that you accept the offer."

The property disposed of consists of the ten-story Chesebrough Building at 17 and 19 State Street, corner of Pearl Street. It occupies a plot fronting 146.6 on State Street, 108.3 on Pearl Street, and has an irregular rear line of 133.9 feet.

The Battery Park Building, an eleven-story structure at 21 to 24 State Street, fronting 107.10 feet on State Street, 129.3 feet on Bridge Street, and 117.7 on Pearl Street, and the Maritime Building, in the rear of the Battery Park Building, fronting 114 feet on Pearl Street and 88.1 on Bridge Street. This structure is of the modern office type and is separated from the Battery Park Building by an open court running through from Pearl to Bridge Street.

Last month the Henry L. Doherty & Co. interests purchased through Joseph P. Day the holdings of the Patrick J. Dollard estate at 10 and 11 State Street and 10 to 14 Pearl Street and the intervening property at 12 Pearl Street, also sold by the Chesebrough Company. With the acquisition of these properties Mr. Day's clients assembled in this block a large possession, having a frontage of 231.10 feet on State Street, 159.5 feet on Pearl Street, and an east line of about 137 feet, the plot being triangular in shape and forming the better part of the block on which stands the South Ferry Building. The property at 12 Pearl Street was used to protect the light and air of the Chesebrough Building.

BRAZIL LAND, CATTLE AND PACKING COMPANY.

(Incorporated in the State of Maine, U. S. A.)

To the Holders of An Issue of 5 Per Cent. First Mortgage Bonds Secured by Trust Deed Dated 1st November, 1911, Between the Company and Empire Trust Company.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to the provisions of the Second Schedule to the above-mentioned Trust Deed a Meeting of the Holders of the Bonds thereby secured (hereafter referred to as "the Bonds") will be held at Winchester House, Old Broad Street, in the City of London, on Wednesday, the 15th day of October, 1919, at 12 noon, for the purpose of considering and, if thought fit, passing Extraordinary Resolutions as defined by the said Second Schedule, to the intent that the said Resolutions shall be binding on all the Bondholders, whether present or not present at the Meeting, to the following effect:—

1. Approving and adopting a Composition Agreement (hereinafter referred to as "the Composition") between the Company, the Brazil Railway Company, the Bondholders, certain Creditors and the Shareholders, and directing the execution thereof on behalf of the Bondholders.

2. Approving the appointment of the Law Debenture Corporation, Limited, as Trustee of the said Trust Deed in succession to the Empire Trust Company who have resigned or propose to resign.

3. Authorizing the creation of Prior Lien Bonds of the Company to an amount not exceeding £287,500, together with such further amounts as may be necessary (i.) with the "available profits" of the Company, as defined by the Composition, of each of the financial years ending the 31st December, 1919, and 31st December, 1920, to pay the interest on the Prior Lien Bonds, and (ii.) to pay the French fiscal charges and taxes (other than those assessable against the holders of Prior Lien Bonds of the Company as holders or owners thereof) to which such of the Prior Lien Bonds as for the time being are owned by the Brazil Railway Company or form part of the collaterals of any of its Bond issues would be subject if originally issued in France. Such Prior Lien Bonds to rank as a first charge upon all the assets charged to secure the Bonds in priority to the charge created by the above-mentioned Trust Deed, and postponing the security for the 5 per cent. First Mortgage Bonds to the security for such Prior Lien Bonds and authorizing and directing the Trustee to concur in the execution of a Trust Deed to secure such Prior Lien Bonds in the form of the draft already prepared, which will be submitted to the Meeting subject to such modifications (if any) as may be authorized or approved at the Meeting.

4. Authorizing and directing the said Law Debenture Corporation, Limited (hereinafter referred to as "the Trustee"), to execute a Supplemental Trust Deed modifying the above-mentioned Trust Deed, securing the 5 per cent. First Mortgage Bonds and postponing the mortgage or charge contained in such Trust Deed to the mortgage or charge contained in the Trust Deed securing the Prior Lien Bonds, and authorizing the Trustee to do all such other acts and things as may be necessary or desirable for carrying the Composition into effect.

5. Providing for the indemnity and protection of the Trustee in giving effect to the Composition, and authorizing the Trustee to consent to modifications of the documents referred to in paragraphs 3 and 4 above.

6. Ratifying and approving the acts of the Empire Trust Company as Trustee under the Trust Deed securing the Bonds and in the Receivership proceedings in America.

7. Generally providing for the modifications, alterations and compromises of the rights of the holders of the Bonds and of the Coupons attached thereto against the Company and against its property which are contemplated by the Composition and the said Supplemental Trust Deed as the same are respectively submitted to the Meeting, and either with or without any such modifications therein as are authorized or approved by the Meeting.

8. Authorizing and directing that the Receivership proceedings in America be terminated, and the Receivers' acts and accounts be approved, and that such Receivers be discharged, and restraining any Bondholders from commencing any suit or proceeding to foreclose the security created by or to enforce the trusts of the said Trust Deed dated 1st November, 1911, or otherwise in connection with the Bonds held by him until after such date or the happening of such events as the Meeting may fix.

Copies of the Composition and of the drafts (subject to modification) of the Supplemental Trust Deed and Trust Deed securing the Prior Lien Bonds above mentioned may be obtained on application at the office of Messrs. Binder, Hamlyn & Co. (London Agents of the Company), 80 Bishopsgate, E. C. 2.

The principal features of the Composition are:—

1. The provision for the Company of $1,300,000 U. S. gold coin by the purchase by the Brazil Railway Company from the Company at a discount of 5 per cent. of Prior Lien Bonds of the Company.

2. The cancellation of the interest accrued prior to and unpaid at the 1st January, 1917, the conversion of the interest at 5 per cent. per annum on the Bonds and accruing on and after the 1st January, 1917, into cumulative interest payable out of "available profits" of the Company as defined in the Composition and the conversion of such cumulative interest by halves into fixed interest, the extension of the date of maturity of the Bonds to the 31st December, 1968, and their amortization by means of a cumulative sinking fund commencing in 1922, and payable out of such "available profits" as aforesaid.

3. A participation by each Bond in the "available profits" of the Company until such Bond matures or is redeemed.

4. The issue to the Trustees for the Convertible Debentures of the Brazil Railway Company (who hold as part of the security for such Debentures £1,150,000 of the Bonds aforesaid) of Profit Sharing Certificates or other instruments entitling them, as from the date of redemption of each of such £1,150,000 of Bond, and until the whole of the Convertible Debentures aforesaid are redeemed, to receive the participation in the available profits aforesaid which the holder of such Bond would have been entitled to if it had not been redeemed.

5. The conversion of certain unsecured liabilities of the Company into 6 per Cent. Cumulative Preference Shares of the Company.

Galli-Curci Amends Divorce Papers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, the grand opera singer, today filed an amended bill in her suit for divorce in the Superior Court, alleging new charges of infidelity against Luigi O. Curci, her husband. In her original bill Mme. Galli-Curci alleged cruelty and later, in an amended bill, she accused him of infidelity.

Julius Einstein Estate $1,273,031.

The estate of Julius Einstein, manufacturer, who died on Feb. 26, was appraised yesterday at $1,273,031, which went to his wife, four daughters, and three sons. He had $1,172,774 in stocks and bonds, of which $819,621 was the value of 3,825 shares of J. Einstein Inc., $64,262 the value of 200 shares of the Commonwealth Manufacturing Company, and $64,571 the value of 626 shares of the Einstein Manufacturing Company.

The will of John N. Golding, realty dealer, who died Aug. 16, disposes of an estate of more than $200,000. He gives $3,000 to Greenwood Cemetery and $11,000 to Edwin Thorne, of 27 Cedar Street. His sons, Robert N. and John N. Golding, got a fourth of the estate, and his daughter, Mabel, received half. The will provided that if his children died before him a sixth of the estate was to go to Mrs. Catherine K. Blake, wife of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, and a sixth to Phoebe K. Thorne.

Two Ratner Wills Filed.

Two wills by Abraham Z. Ratner, who was in business at 234 Fifth Avenue, exporting goods to Mexico, and died Aug. 14 last at Hastings, N. Y., were filed in the Surrogates Court yesterday. The last will, dated Dec. 4 last, and leaving the entire estate to Jose B. Ratner, brother, of 314 West 100th Street, was filed by an attorney. The other will, executed May 7, 1914, in Mexico City, left $25,000 to the brother and the residue to Mrs. Florence Ratner, widow of 1,169 Sixty-fifth Street, Brooklyn, five daughters and a son, who were not mentioned in the other document.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY.

To David Solomon; Louis Solomon and his heirs, devisees and personal representatives; Mrs. Louis Solomon, wife of said Louis Solomon; Henry Solomon and his heirs, devisees and personal representatives; and Mrs. Henry Solomon, wife of said Henry Solomon.

By virtue of an order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Emma Claus, executrix and residuary legatee under the last will and testament of Christian Gruber, deceased, of the City of Jersey City, in the County of Hudson and State of New Jersey, is complainant and you are defendants, you are required to appear, plead, answer and demur to the bill of said complainant, on or before the second day of October, 1919, next, or the said bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to quiet the title to the following described lands and premises, situated in Jersey City, Hudson County, N. J., viz.: ALL that certain tract or parcel of land and premises, situate, lying and being in the City of Jersey City, in the County of Hudson and State of New Jersey, bounded as follows: Commencing at a point on the easterly side of Brunswick Street distant forty feet northerly from the intersection of the northerly line of South Sixth Street with the easterly line of Brunswick Street and running from thence northerly along the easterly side of Brunswick Street a distance of fifty-eight (58) feet and one inch to the southwesterly side of Newark Avenue or Turnpike Road; thence southeasterly along the southwesterly line of Newark Avenue or Turnpike Road a distance of forty (40) feet; thence a southwesterly course a distance of forty-two (42) feet in a straight line to the place of beginning. Being part of block numbered 247 lying on the westerly side of said Turnpike Road or Newark Avenue, and which lots are more particularly described on a map made by Clerk and Bacot in 1850 of a part of the property of I. B. Coles Estate, lying south of Brooks Street and west of Jersey Avenue as lot No. 33, in block 247. And you, David Solomon, and you, Louis Solomon, and you, Henry Solomon, are each of you made a defendant because you claim or are alleged to claim some right, title and interest in, or encumbrance upon, the said premises, or some part thereof, as one of the sons and one of the heirs, devisees or personal representatives of Sarah Solomon, formerly of the City, County and State of New York, who formerly owned the said premises and conveyed the same to said Christian Gruber by deed dated on or about February 22, 1862, in which deed Isaac Solomon, the husband of Sarah Solomon, did not join; and you, Mrs. Louis Solomon, are made a defendant because you claim or are alleged to claim some right, title and interest in, or encumbrance upon, the said premises, or some part thereof, as the wife of said Louis Solomon; and you, Mrs. Henry Solomon, are made a defendant because you claim or are alleged to claim some right, title and interest in, or encumbrance upon, the said premises, or some part thereof, as the wife of said Henry Solomon; and you, the heirs, devisees and personal representatives of Louis Solomon, are made defendants because the said Louis Solomon was a son of said Sarah Solomon, and you claim or are alleged to claim some right, title and interest in, or encumbrance upon, the said premises, or some part thereof, as one of the heirs, devisees or personal representatives of said Louis Solomon; and you, the heirs, devisees and personal representatives of Henry Solomon, are made defendants because the said Henry Solomon was the son of said Sarah Solomon, and you claim or are alleged to claim some right, title or interest in, or encumbrance upon, the said premises, or some part thereof, as one of the heirs, devisees or personal representatives of said Henry Solomon. The object of said suit is that the said complainant may be decreed to have a perfect title to the said premises, and that you, the said defendants, have no estate, interest in, or encumbrance upon, the said premises or any part thereof.

You are further notified that if you claim any right, title to, interest in, or encumbrance upon said lands, you are required to answer the said bill of complaint, but not otherwise.

Dated, August 2, 1919.

PORT CHESTER, Aug. 29.—A fortune of more than a million dollars was left by Mrs. Susan F. Colgate, widow of James Colgate, one-time New York banker, according to an appraisal of her estate just completed by Transfer Tax Appraiser W. C. Clark of Westchester County and filed with Surrogate George Slater of Port Chester. Mrs. Colgate was 103 years old when she died in her country home on Ravine Avenue, Yonkers, last Spring.

The estate, consisting of real estate, stocks, bonds, and bank deposits, is appraised at $1,066,140. She left two children, who share most of the estate. Mrs. Colgate's husband was one of the bankers who helped to finance the civil war for the Union side.

Belgian Honor for John Moffat.

NEAR END OF BONUS WORK.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The War Department today announced that bonuses have been paid to 1,574,052 persons who were discharged without it. The work of paying these bonuses was about 98 per cent. completed on Aug. 20, at an outlay of $94,443,120. Payments on this account began the first week in March, reached a maximum of $15,922,800 (265,380 bonuses) in the week of April 19-26, and have rapidly declined since that time.

Out of a total of 25,079 army contracts and claims all but 4,062 were reported on Aug. 9 as liquidated. The liquidations represented $1,807,652,000, or 48.1 per cent. of the aggregate of $3,757,673,000 of suspended contracts.

Suspended army contracts awaiting liquidation amount to $1,950,021,000, of which $1,505,804,000, or 77.2 per cent., are ordnance contracts. Assuming that future liquidation in each bureau can be effected at the same rate of cost as has obtained in the past, payment of about $273,101,000 will be required to obtain relinquishment of these contracts.

Brown Gains in Popularity.

While the various garment manufacturers still show a preference for navy, brown has made fast gains on other popular colors and bids fair to become second choice to navy with the third favorite far behind. In coats, suits, and dresses this color has made big progress in the later offerings of the manufacturers, and has met with equal favor from the retail buyers. While there is a large sprinkling of brighter colors, there cannot be said to be any one outstanding shade among the number.

Printcloth Sales Fairly Active.

In spite of the fact that many of the important factors in the local gray goods trade either did not come to their offices at all yesterday, or spent most of their time in cleaning up odds and ends in order to get away for the week-end, a fair-sized business was put through in printcloths. Prices were not as strong as they were earlier in the week, and second hands dominated the selling, which was for spot and nearby deliveries. The sales reported included 38½-inch 60-48s at 13¾ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 16 cents, 39-inch 72-76s at 21 cents, and 39-inch 80 squares at 25 cents. The last named, at the price given, was regarded as the best bargain of the day, considering the scarcity of nearby goods of this construction at any price. Narrow printcloths were quoted by second hands on the basis of 10½ cents for 27-inch 64-60s.

Rough Diamond Prices Higher.

Prices on rough diamonds received in this country are rising so rapidly that buyers of the cut stones are having trouble in keeping track of the advances. It was said yesterday that practically every shipment of "rough" received here is quoted higher than the one preceding. This is due to the apparent scarcity in the producing centres of fine "rough" from which the larger sizes required in this market—three-eighths of a karat and upward—can be cut. The finest diamonds available, both cut and rough, come to this market, with the result that prices in the United States are said to be higher at the moment than in any other leading country in the world.

Strike Helped New York.

Saward's Journal will say today that, so far as the distribution of hard coal is concerned, developments during the month now closing favored the local market at the expense of certain other sections, notably New England. As production has continued heavy, compared with the average of earlier months this year, the city dealers have been able to speed up deliveries to some extent. Of course, New York has not received all the coal that was prevented from reaching the Eastern market by transportation troubles, but enough of it has been diverted here to make some difference. The tidewater bituminous market is dull, but not weak. Shippers report that while it requires some little effort to sell coal, when it comes to buying they find that tonnage at the piers is not being sacrificed.

Not a Manipulated Strike.

Reports were rather current among cutters-up that the recent silk strike at Paterson was more or less of a manipulated affair. It was stated that the manufacturers who took orders at lower prices than they found goods could be made were eager to find a way to break these contracts for more profitable ones, and the strike clause was hit upon to afford a release from such bargains. Inquiry among the manufacturers, however, met with an indignant denial of such rumors, and it was said the strike was the result of a contest started between two different unions, one of a more radical sort than the other. It was stated, furthermore, that some of the early orders had been figured on costs that were too low, but that the manufacturers did not consider this a ground for asking more.

Heavy Gray Goods Sell.

The heavier constructions had a pretty fair day in the local gray goods market yesterday, though in the aggregate the volume of business done was not really large. As with printcloths, prices were off in some cases, and second hands were the principal sellers. Fair-sized sales of 5.50-yard sheetings were made at 12⅞ cents, while at 19 cents 40-inch 56-60 3.60-yard sheetings moved in a fair way. For 3.95-yard drills 18 cents was paid. While no sales were reported, 30-inch seven-ounce osnaburgs were quoted at 18½ cents, and were regarded as a good "buy" at that price. Fine-yarn cloths showed nothing out of the ordinary. Among the business done in the clothing numbers were sizeable sales of 43-inch 64-104 3.85-yard four-leaf twills at 36 cents.

Conditions Suit Credit Men.

Credit men have ample reason, it seems, for being pleased and well satisfied with present conditions. The desire for merchandise has been such that the list of discount takers has grown to proportions that many of them never expected to see. Buyers have found that, if they stand all right with the credit office, there is more of an opportunity to get goods that otherwise might be denied to them. For this reason special care has been taken to meet bills promptly, and not only that, but to get payments in within the ten day period, thereby obtaining the discount. It was stated by the credit man for a large commission house yesterday that more progress has been made in teaching customers to avail themselves of cash discounts in the last six months than could have been done in that many years or more.

Four Seasons for Needle Trades?

There are indications that the garment trades may follow in the steps of the millinery dealers and provide themselves with four seasons a year. A strong sentiment exists among them favoring a trial of a mid-Winter showing in company with the milliners, who have decided on this innovation. The success of the mid-Summer exhibit of the milliners did not pass unnoticed in the garment trade, and there are houses which, it is said, would be willing to see the year divided into four instead of two seasons. One of the arguments put forward yesterday for such a division was based not only on the additional business that might ensue, but emphasized the stability which would be obtained from having employes working the year around.

Every Order Includes Plaids.

Practically every order received by the local ribbon houses includes a fair showing of plaids. In some cases the bulk of the shipment is of these desired designs, while in others one-third or a quarter of the assortment is given over to such styles. Second in favor at the present time seem to be the metallic effects, in gold and silver flower designs. One of the novelties brought out by a prominent concern consists of a tapestry ribbon that bears a close resemblance to batik work, which is in vogue.

Met the New President.

About eighty of the stockholders of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation met Norman H. Bacon, the new President, yesterday at a luncheon given in his honor by the corporation at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Charles S. Porter, former President of the corporation, and now Chairman of the Board of Directors, presided, and in a brief post-luncheon address reviewed the growth of the corporation since its organization. In the course of his talk he called attention to the large part played in this growth by the efforts of William Zobel, the General Manager, who continues in that capacity. Mr. Porter then introduced Mr. Bacon, who briefly spoke of his relations with the international fur industry in connection with his former position as Fur Trade Commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Company in Canada. He also told of his recent trip through Europe, and commented especially on the optimistic attitude of the business men of Belgium. Seated at the "honor" table with Mr. Bacon were Stephen Brooks Rosenthal, Joseph Steiner, Charles S. Porter, William Zobel, Milton Schreiber, and A. E. Prouty.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Declines in Those of Foodstuffs a Feature of the Week.

The revisions shown in Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week leave little doubt that the Government's campaign against the high cost of living is bearing real fruit. In the foodstuff quotations, for instance, there are listed nearly three times as many declines as advances, and many of the former are shown by edibles of real importance. The list as a whole shows fewer changes than for some time. Only 47 of the 313 items quoted show levels different from those of last week, and of these 32 are declines. Last week there were 39 declines in a total of 69 changes.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and for the corresponding week a year ago:

As indicated above, 14 of the week's 19 changes in the foodstuffs were downward. The most important change in the local market for provisions was the drop of 85 cents a barrel in the price of Spring patent flour. Winter "straights" flour was unchanged from the level reached in last week's decline. Ham prices were unchanged here, and the same appeared to be true of bacon, in spite of the large quantities of the latter that were disposed of here during the week from the Government's surplus holdings. At Chicago there was a solid decline in the major provisions for the first time in many months, if not for a year or more. The drop in live sheep, which amounted to 50 cents a hundred pounds, was about the smallest registered there.

Three of the five advances shown in foodstuffs this week were registered by the dairy products. In the best grade of butter listed there was a rise of 1¼ cents a pound, but the under grades did not change. Cheese was not revised either, but high prices were quoted on eggs. Nearby fancies were up 3 cents a dozen, while the best Westerns moved up a cent.

In the fresh fruits listed the only change was a break in fancy apples. Dried fruits showed no changes whatever. The fluctuations in the vegetables consisted of a drop in choice medium beans and a decline of $1 a barrel in the price of new potatoes. The latter, however, are still 75 cents a barrel above the 1918 price at this time.

The tea list continued unchanged, and has now shown no revisions for several weeks. On the other hand, both of the basic grades of Brazilian coffee were nominally weaker. In the spices there was a rise in Zanzibar cloves, and declines in black and in white Singapore peppers. After two successive declines common syrup recovered 2 cents a gallon.

Long rye straw contributed the only advance in the grains list, the feature of which was the sharp drop in corn, due to a combination of several causes. Other declines were shown by oats, rye, malting barley, and prime timothy hay. Neither advances nor declines were indicated in the leather list, but in the hides declines occurred in five of the ten grades quoted on. These were the same grades that dropped last week, and consisted of No. 1 country steers, heavy cows, buffs, kips, and calfskins. The last-named again broke 5 cents a pound.

The metals changes were limited, and consisted only of a rise in furnace coke for prompt shipment, and declines in spelter and tin. The combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils contained four advances and four declines. The features in the former were the rises in refined camphor and quicksilver, although the latter is still below the corresponding 1918 level. In the declines the feature was a break of 3 cents a gallon in linseed oil after a rather steady and prolonged rise. The changes in the naval stores consisted of a gain of 65 cents a gallon in resin and a rise of 6 cents a gallon in turpentine. Japanese raw silk declined. Jute was higher here, under the influence of a record quotation of £75 per ton at London.

The week brought few changes in the textiles. Gray cottons fluctuated more or less, but wound up about where they began. Transactions in woolens and silks were of little interest. In the burlaps there was the peculiar situation of heavyweights being firmer than the lighter goods, which declined. The strength of the former was attributed to South American buying of heavy burlaps in this market because of financial difficulties in doing business with Calcutta.

The above figures are averages for each field, thus, Pennsylvania Crude, part of the Appalachian Field, averaged in 1917—$3.25, and in 1918—$4.00 a barrel.

Stocks of oil in this country continue to show depletion; foreign demand in the world's readjustment will undoubtedly draw urgently on American supplies. The continued increasing world demand for oil overtaking production and storage stocks can only result in a gradual increase in the price paid for crude and its refined products, with the consequent enhancement in oil properties of both proven and producing acreage.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

President Wilson's Firm Labor Stand and Other Factors Make Stocks Buoyant.

With a strong array of favorable developments to help it on, the stock market yesterday advanced with more force than had been experienced for several weeks. The labor outlook had taken on a new complexion over night and as uncertainty over the attitude of workers on the railroads and in steel plants had been the major influence to depress quotations for some time, it was not surprising that traders took the constructive side. An active opening brought price increases extending from 1 to 4 points and more, with certain of the railroad issues vieing with industrial stocks in the power of their upturn. In subsequent dealings there was some backing and filling, but the tendency was distinctly forward, and many stocks closed at their best levels of the day. Oil shares were especially prominent in the transactions of the afternoon, net gains among them being larger than elsewhere.

Besides news that railway shop union leaders were united in favoring a ninety-day test of the movement to reduce living costs, the market community had in the morning the stimulating information contained in President Wilson's firm support of Director General Hines's peremptory order to striking rail workers in Southern California. The Government's decree that the striker either return to work in a specified time or suffer the application of the law confirmed the earlier impression contained in the President's offer to the shopmen a few days ago, that the Administration had undertaken a vigorous campaign to break the circle of rising wages and costs of necessities. More than that, the fact that railway brotherhood leaders were supporting the President in the plan for a test period in which strikes should be eliminated lent cheer to the financial district and seemed to have a beneficial effect upon the investment market, as distinguished from the speculative market. Railroad bonds were firm, though not very active, and one or two convertible issues recorded a strong tone. The appeal of steel union men to the President to intervene in the situation which has arisen between them and the Steel Corporation lent additional point late in the day to the position of the Chief Executive in current labor controversies, and comment of the Street reflected a great deal of relief over the entire labor horizon.

Other important events of stock market import were the dismissal by the Circuit Court of California of certain Federal suits over petroleum lands, and the report of the Petroleum Committee to the Mexican Senate on foreign participation in oil land ownership and leases south of the border. These were decided factors behind the day's advances of Southern Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and other shares. The California court contended that the charge of fraud laid against the acquisition of oil lands by the Southern Pacific Company and other concerns had no basis in fact, thus ending the initial stage in a famous action at law. Presumably, the Government will appeal, but speculators paid small attention to this end of the matter yesterday. The Mexican investigators of the oil situation suggested that the Government not seek to nationalize lands held by foreign corporations prior to May 1, 1917, when the new Mexican Constitution went into effect. This proposal, if accepted by the Mexican legislators, should go far to remove a cause of friction between foreign petroleum producers and the Mexican authorities, as most of the holdings of the older established corporations, American and European, would be cleared of litigation.

The foreign exchanges moved irregularly, weakness developing only in lire rates. Call money ruled at 6 per cent.

Public Buying Power.

A break in the market such as that of some three weeks ago has in the past usually caused a sharp curtailment in public buying power and a consequent lack of interest marketwise over a considerable period. There is no denying that the toppling of the bull market of this year saw a closing out of many accounts with heavy loss, but in brokerage houses it is asserted that the curtailment of buying power was not by any means as seriously impaired as might be expected. Most accounts were not overextended, and with heavy margins up the selling was engendered rather by fear of a greater recession than because of necessity. In many cases where margin calls were made the response, it is said, was far more than ample for the requirements. As a result the position of the public with regard to taking on further commitments is strong. In yesterday's market there was some good buying from this source.

Dividends Recovered.

Six active issues which were selling ex dividend more than made their dividend loss in yesterday's trading, and several of them accomplished this with the opening sale. The stocks were Southern Pacific, American Smelting Refining, United States Steel, Ajax Rubber, California Packing, and Norfolk & Western.

Mexican Petroleum Strong.

Mexican Petroleum and Pan American Petroleum were two of the strongest issues in yesterday's market. The former advanced 12⅝ points and the latter 4⅛. Aside from the general market strength, there was a special reason to be found for the sharp upturn of these two issues which lay in the more favorable news from Mexico City as to the prospective oil bill which will be submitted to the Mexican Congress. From the rather meagre dispatches received yesterday it appeared that the confiscatory features of other bills had been withdrawn and that Mexico was prepared to acknowledge the rights of foreign promoters of oil development to the land which they held prior to the adoption of the new Mexican Constitution in 1917.

Retail Stores Recovery.

A recovery of slightly better than 4 points in United Retail Stores, one of the most recent of the Whelan enterprises, was the most pronounced gain that this issue has made since the bears began their attack on the Whelan group after the departure of George J. Whelan for Europe. There are reports that some of the shorts may find themselves in a merry battle when Mr. Whelan returns from Europe early next month. The difficulties in which the shorts were placed after their bear attack on United Cigar Stores when it was selling in the neighborhood of 130 are still fresh in the minds of market followers.

American Can Rumors.

Whether the advance was predicated on rumors or whether the rumors were called forth by the strength in the stock, the fact remains that American Can gave a quite unexpected display yesterday by moving up better than 5 points. There were reports afloat that the Directors might act favorably on a common dividend at their next meeting. The same sort of rumor has been circulated many times before, but in each case have proved to have no basis in fact. It remains to be seen whether the new one is of the same stripe.

Southern Pacific the Feature.

Southern Pacific was an outstanding feature yesterday, as the result of the dismissal of the Government suits by the Federal District Court in Los Angeles. At the opening it seemed that the majority of brokers on the floor of the Stock Exchange wanted to buy stock, and the opening quotation—the stock sold ex-dividend yesterday—was 20,000 shares from 103 to 105, a substantial overnight advance, with trading on a heavy scale. Realizing sales served as a check on the forward movement, and the stock closed at 102⅞, with a net gain of 7 points. At the same time Southern Pacific convertible 5 per cent. bonds, which closed on Thursday at 101¾, opened up yesterday and in the early trading sold as high as 107½, later easing off to 105, the net gain for the day being 3¼. While profit-taking served as a fair check on the advance of the stock, confusion regarding the news of the dismissal of the Government suits was misinterpreted in some brokerage offices, and for a time it was not generally clear that the most important case against the company, covering more than 160,000 acres of valuable oil lands in California, had been disposed off. It was officially explained later that the case, which has been appealed to the United States Supreme Court, covers only 6,300 acres and is comparatively unimportant, was not related to the court action of yesterday.

Rail Shares Gain.

The railroad shares as a group reflected the general improvement in sentiment on the railroad situation yesterday, most of the issues showing net gains of from fractions to more than 4 points at the close. Aside from Southern Pacific, which moved independently, the bulk of the rail stocks sold higher as the result of the firm stand of the Administration on the strike situation in the Far West. This, probably more than any other thing, was a tonic for the railroad issues, and, while there was undoubtedly a fair amount of professional activity, gains were well maintained throughout the day.

The Cummins Bill on Regulation.

The next important development expected in the general railroad situation is the reporting of the Cummins bill for remedial legislation under which the carriers may be turned back safely to private operation at the end of the year. This is expected early next week, and railroad bankers and operators are awaiting its appearance with considerable interest, as it is generally believed that it will contain a great many of the constructive suggestions which have been made before the House in Washington for the reframing of railroad laws.

Crucible Steel, which was up 10 points yesterday and about 25 on the week, apparently attracted a good deal of short selling on the rise, for late yesterday afternoon, after the close of the market, this stock, after lending first at 2 per cent., and then flat, finally went to a premium of 1.256 of 1 per cent., which is to say lenders of the stock demanded 39 cents a day for its use. As it happens, however, stock lent last night was for use for four days, so the lenders who got the premium rate will be enriched by $1.56 for each 100 shares if the stock is returned on Tuesday.

Dullness in the Banks.

Bank officers were about the scarcest persons in the financial district yesterday. Very few of them put in an appearance at all, and most of those who did come down town left early for the country or seashore. Most bank officers look for unusual activity next month and thereafter throughout the Fall and Winter, and a lot of them were determined to make the most of the Labor Day holiday, expecting it to be the last they will have for some time. The banks will be open today, as usual, and will be closed on Monday, but despite today's opening it is not believed that any great amount of business will be transacted.

Sterling Bills.

Sterling exchange was a shade easier yesterday and dealers were inclined to predict a general lowering of rates next week mainly because of the absence from the market in recent days of any considerable volume of grain and cotton bills. Most of the sterling for sale this last week has been in the form of bankers' bills, and the dealers believe that the grain and cotton bills have been accumulating. Grain shipments for the week, according to Bradstreet's, amounted to 8,448,644 bushels for wheat and flour and 128,929 bushels for corn, a slight increase for the former and a very considerable increase for the latter over the previous week. Cotton shipments also increased substantially on the current week.

Petroleum Co. Shows Surplus.

The General Petroleum Corporation in its report for the year ended June 30, 1919, shows a surplus of $2,448,578 after all charges and Federal taxes. This is the equivalent of $15.40 a share on the common stock after provision for preferred dividends. The report of a year ago showed $3,762,491, or the equivalent of $26.22 a share for the common stock. The 1918 report, however, made no allowance for Federal taxes.

ADAMS EXPRESS CO. HARD HIT BY WAR

AWAITS ACTION BY HINES

The Adams Express Company has issued a statement containing an income account for the year and a half ended with June 30, 1918, which shows a net deficit after the deduction of all charges, amounting to $7,895,869. The previous report of the company covered the year ended with Dec. 31, 1917, and showed a deficit at that time of $1,884,543. In 1916 the company showed a surplus after all charges amounting to $1,838,485. In his remarks to stockholders William M. Barrett, President of the company, said in part:

"On Jan. 1, 1918, the United States Government took control of the operation of all of the important railroad systems in America. The year 1917 was very unprofitable for express companies, and particularly so for this association, because of its territorial situation in the section in which there was the greatest congestion on railroad lines over which it operated, substantially 70 per cent. of its business being carried on in this zone, in which the rates prescribed were the lowest, and the expense of conducting the express business the highest.

"The American Railway Express Company has not yet paid a dividend, and this report was delayed in the hope that some definite statement could be made as to the value of American Railway Express Company stock, which constitutes a large and important item of the assets of this association. The new company has lost money during each month of its operation, and recently the Director General directed that the wages of all employes of the American Railway Express Company should be increased, which will still further increase the losses. Under the agreement made with the Director General, the latter assumes any loss in operation while the contract is in force, but no provision has yet been made for making any allowance to the new company for the use of the property in the express business. The contract which the new company made with the Director General continues only so long as the Director General operates the railroads, and it is contemplated that the American Railway Express Company will continue in the express transportation business after that time, under contracts to be negotiated with the railroad companies.

"The net amount of stock in the American Railway Express Company which this association will receive on account of the assets turned over by it and the Southern Express Company is $6,627,929 par value of the stock. This is the amount of stock remaining after deducting the shares of stock of the new express company, which this association agreed to transfer and assign to the Director General in settlement of the claims made by him for railroad facilities and services furnished during the first six months of 1918."

Touching upon the acquisition of the Southern Express Company by the Adams Express Company, Mr. Barrett said:

"The situation making necessary the consolidation of all of the express business of the four important American associations and companies into one company came at a most unfortunate time for this association, which had purchased as of Jan. 1, 1916, the entire capital stock then outstanding of the Southern Express Company for approximately $8,000,000. The Southern Express Company during the year 1916 earned approximately $1,878,000, but no compensation for the earning power of the Southern Express or of any other company was allowed in the arrangement under which the assets of the several express associations and companies were, under the direction of the Director General, turned over to the new American Railway Express Company."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The quarterly report of the Vulcan Detinning Company for the three months ended with June, 1919, shows a net income after taxes and other charges amounting to $62,444 as compared with $45,999 in the corresponding 1918 period. Sales for the quarter were $429,296 as compared with $429,161 in the same 1918 quarter.

Stockholders of the Stutz Motor Car Company have authorized an increase in the capital shares, which may be issued from 75,000 to 100,000 shares of no par value. Shareholders of record Sept. 17 will have the right to subscribe for the new stock at $100 a share, at the rate of one share of new stock for every three shares of old stock held.

The Equitable Trust Company has been appointed transfer agent of the Boone County Coal Corporation.

The National City Bank has announced the opening of a new branch at Porto Alegre, Brazil, the sixth branch office of this institution to be opened in that South American country.

Directors of the Standard Bank of South Africa have declared an interim dividend of 14 per cent. a year, less income tax.

The Guaranty Trust Company has been appointed transfer agent for the American Ship and Commerce Corporation.

At a meeting of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company Thursday a semi-annual interest instalment of 3 per cent. was declared on the adjustment bonds and an annual instalment of 6 per cent. on the income bonds, payable Oct. 1.

Irving G. Jennings, Assistant Secretary of the Metropolitan Trust Company for the last three years, resigned yesterday to become business director of the Glass Containers Association of America, recently formed by manufacturers of glass and allied lines.

COTTON MARKET LISTLESS.

Yesterday was easily the dullest session of the cotton market seen thus far this season. The trade took absolutely no interest in the market, and the ring operators, who had pretty well evened up on Thursday, were inclined to do nothing in the way of making new commitments. As for price movements, there were none to speak of. The extreme range of the most active option, which happened to be January, was 25 points. This option opened at 31.95, sold up to 32.00, went to a low for the day of 31.75, and closed at 31.80@31.84, for a net loss on the day of 10 points from Thursday's closing bid. May fluctuated over an extreme range of 10 points, and at the close was 2 points up in the bid.

Yesterday's dullness was natural, in view of the fact that both the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges will not again open for business until Tuesday morning, when there will be only one hour of business before the Department of Agriculture publishes its Aug. 25 crop report, giving condition and estimated yield.

The ring guess is somewhat below the estimate which some of the leading private authorities have figured. The Journal of Commerce, which put out its estimate yesterday, made the condition 64.9, and Norden & Co. figured the condition at 63.4. The lowest estimate thus far to come out was that made by Norman Mayer & Co., which placed the condition at 60.

Exports yesterday were somewhat better than expected, totaling 33,828 bales, making the total for the week 124,132 bales, against 86,969 bales moved out last week. It is expected that exports will now quicken again, after having gone off somewhat during the early part of the month, as more ships are said to be available. That the exchange market is hampering cotton exports is now generally discredited by well-informed trade operators, who contend that England and the Continent will have to take American cotton, even though exchanges go lower than they have been. Incidentally, a good part of the American cotton sold for export this season has been sold in sterling, which puts the loss of a low rate on the American exporter and not on the European importer.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Dec.	31.90	32.05	31.82	31.85@31.88	31.95

Liverpool cables: Spot cotton was quiet at 19.10d for middling. Sales, 4,000 bales, of which American 3,000. Imports, none. Futures opened quiet, 3 to 8 points off, and closed dull, 8 to 9 points off on the day. Prices: September, 19.49d; October, 19.68d; December, 19.89d; January, 19.97d. Manchester: Yarns and cloths were dull.

Paper Board Earnings Grow.

The annual report of the United Paper Board Company, Inc., for the year ended May 31, 1919, shows a net profit of $188,110 after provision for taxes, charges, and depreciation. This was the equivalent of $1.01 a share on the common stock after providing for preferred dividends. The report of the previous year showed earnings of 57 cents a share.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Opinion of substantial factors that efforts being put forth to avert strife in the railway and industrial divisions would meet with success was the basis of strong support in the market yesterday, most of the active issues netting gains of from 3 to 11 points. Crucible Steel was bid up 9¾, Bethlehem Steel B 3¼, and United States Steel 2½. Mexican Petroleum was marked up 11½ points and Royal Dutch 2¾. Studebaker was best of the motors, gaining 3⅞. Southern Pacific, on a favorable oil land decision, was bid up at the outset about 7 points to 104.

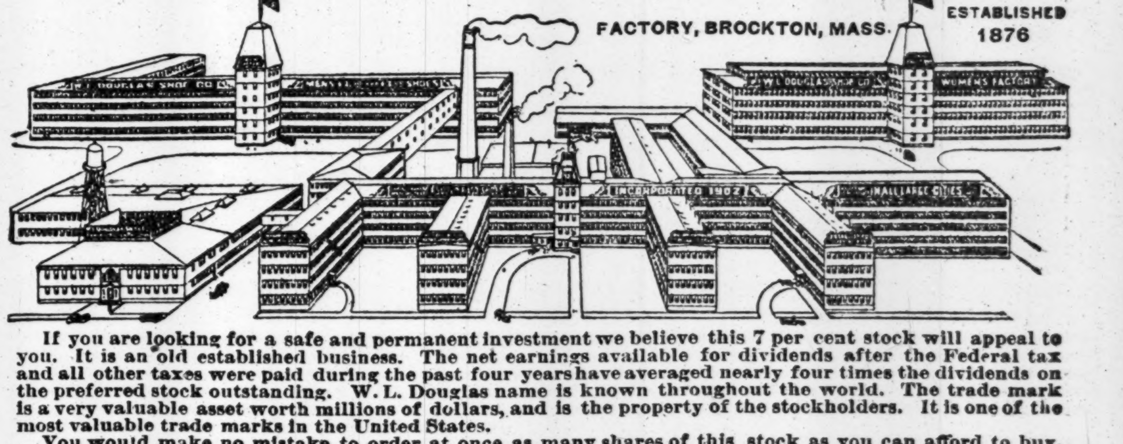
Dividends have been paid regularly for the past seventeen years. Payable January 1st and July 1st. There is no better 7 per cent investment in the United States.



If you are looking for a safe and permanent investment we believe this 7 per cent stock will appeal to you. It is an old established business. The net earnings available for dividends after the Federal tax and all other taxes were paid during the past four years have averaged nearly four times the dividends on the preferred stock outstanding. W. L. Douglas name is known throughout the world. The trade mark is a very valuable asset worth millions of dollars, and is the property of the stockholders. It is one of the most valuable trade marks in the United States.

You would make no mistake to order at once as many shares of this stock as you can afford to buy, price $100.00 per share. If you care for more particulars fill out the coupon and mail at once. Application will be made to have this stock listed upon the stock exchange.

This company owns and operates 106 W. L. Douglas shoe stores located in the large cities. W. L. Douglas shoes are also sold by over 9,000 shoe dealers in the United States.

The past few years our shoes have been more extensively advertised than ever before. Stamping W. L. Douglas name and the retail price on the bottom of the shoes before they leave the factory has saved the wearers millions of dollars, and guarantees them the best shoes in style, comfort and service that can be produced for the price.

A great demand for W. L. Douglas shoes has sprung up in leading countries in Europe and Asia. Our domestic business has increased so that our sales have actually doubled in four years. In 1915 the sales were $8,069,628.41 and in 1918 $16,660,343.46. The past six months' business was at the rate of over $20,000,000 per year.

In common with other great businesses we need additional capital to meet the urgent requirements of increasing domestic and foreign trade. The new conditions of business also demand more capital. The cost of labor and material has nearly doubled so that twice the amount of capital necessary under the old business conditions is now required.

STATE ECONOMIC PLAN.

Labor Head Would Make Living Costs Stoop to Wages.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Holding that wages should be kept at their present level and the cost of living be hammered down James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor, has suggested to Governor Smith a new economic and industrial policy similar to that which Federal authorities and national labor leaders are considering in Washington.

The Governor, Peter J. Brady of the State Reconstruction Committee, and Mr. Holland had a long conference here during the State Federation's convention, just brought to a close. Mr. Holland favors a speedy settlement of the strikes now in progress throughout the State on terms that are fair to employer and worker, and urges that all future demands for higher wages be held in abeyance for six months, pending a united effort by nation and State, with the co-operation of organized labor, to hammer down the cost of living.

Before adjourning the federation placed the responsibility for rioting and disorder in the recent strike at Rome on the State Constabulary and adopted resolutions calling for an amendment to the law either abolishing the constabulary or placing it upon a purely military basis.

The federation also passed a resolution supporting the efforts which are being made to organize a news writers' union.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The trade reviews of the week just passed do not agree completely on general business conditions. Dun's Review says that there has been a reversal of sentiment, and that recessions in important lines have been in evidence due to labor unrest, price agitation, and the political situation. Bradstreet's says that, while there are more cross-currents in the general trade, some of the currents are in the direction of improvement.

Dun's Review says:

> Neither in volume nor in value is new business, as distinguished from activity on past orders, what it was a month ago in some important lines. Seasonal factors only partially explain the recession, for it is not primarily the result of natural influences, but rather of artificial and unwholesome conditions that find clear reflection in the existing political unsettlement, in the high-price agitation, and in the widespread unrest of labor. These are elements that have wrought an unmistakable reversal of sentiment within recent weeks, and, replacing the previous general and confident expectation of uninterrupted commercial expansion, there has come increasing hesitation and caution, and growing doubt about the future in some quarters. The change of feeling is concretely manifested in various ways, and prices plainly show it. Yielding tendencies have seemed strange after many weeks of almost unbroken advances, yet some markets have turned sharply against holders, and not a few buyers, believing that the reaction will be extended, are deferring new commitments wherever possible.
> That new business in some important trades and industries is not what it recently was becomes increasingly evident, but bank clearings continue of remarkably heavy volume. This week's total of $6,886,772,706 at sixteen leading centres in the United States, while 8.3 per cent. smaller than that of last week, is 13.9 per cent. in excess of the figures of this week of 1918 and 32.2 per cent. larger than in the like period of 1917.

Bradstreet's says:

> There are more cross-currents in the general trade, industrial and labor situation, but, unlike recent previous weeks, some of these currents are in the direction of improvement. The President's stand on the subject of railway wages, the evidences elicited of popular support of his action, the access of what might be termed sober second thought among labor men, and some really definite reductions in prices of foods at wholesale, have made for slightly more optimistic feelings as a whole. These developments are not, all of them, what might be termed full formed as yet, and there is enough labor unrest, coupled with some very serious strikes, to cloud the situation, but it is felt in some lines that while a possible countrywide steel works strike impends, the outlook is not so disturbed as it was one or more weeks ago. Of the current week's actual trade developments it may be said that past and current labor disturbances and the country-wire campaign for lower prices have had a slightly more perceptible effect upon trade in wholesale lines and in retail trade, where local strike troubles, as in Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, and some other centres, have operated to tie up local trade for the time being.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for axeman, Grade B, will be received until 4 P. M. on Sept. 10. Candidates must be at least 18 years of age on or before the closing date for the receipt of applications. The subjects and weights of the examination will be: Experience, 2; technical, 7; citizenship, 1. A qualifying physical examination will be given. There are several vacancies in the Board of Water Supply at $1,000 a year for service outside the city.

United States.

The new naval ordnance plant at South Charleston, W. Va., is now about to begin the manufacture of armor plate and forgings for guns of large calibre, entirely new lines of work for Government plants. The South Charleston plant is a $19,000,000 enterprise, occupying more than 200 acres of land. It will be ready for making armor and heavy forgings as soon as the assembling of the necessary working force can be completed. Disturbed labor conditions incident to the war have been responsible for a delay in getting the work started. The new plant is equipped with every modern appliance for the manufacture of its specialties, and will turn out annually 50,000 tons of armor plate, guns, projectiles, and miscellaneous ordnance forgings. Engineers, metallurgists, and mill and machine shop men will be interested in the positions which are to be filled in the supervisory and subordinate forces. The commission has announced for this plant the need of a Superintendent of melting shops at $5,000 a year, a Superintendent of forge shops at $5,000 a year, foremen of heat treatment of armor plate at from $10 to $14.40 a day, foremen of heat treatment of large guns at from $8 to $12.56 a day, foremen of 14,000-ton presses for armor and large calibre guns at from $11.84 to $13.28 a day, foremen of small guns at $8 a day, and foremen of heat treatment of projectiles at $8 a day. Applicants will not be given scholastic tests in an examination room, but will be rated on their training and experience and their physical ability. Detailed information and application blanks may be obtained from the commission, Washington, D. C., or from the Secretary of the local Board of Examiners at the Post Office or Custom House in any of 3,000 cities. Journeyman workmen and helpers should apply direct to the Labor Board at the South Charleston plant.

Will for Probate.

MEYERS, AUGUSTUS, 314 Riverside Drive, leaves $15,000 each to his daughters, Florence Burgess Meyers and Elizabeth M. Meyers, and $10,000 each to his sons, Augustus L. Meyers, Howard H. Meyers, Herbert E. Meyers and Clarence W. Meyers. Minor bequests are made to several nephews and nieces, after which the residue of the estate is bequeathed to the widow, Elizabeth Meyers. The deceased, who was about 75 years of age at the time of his death, was an officer in the Union Army during the civil war and prominent in Grand Army circles. He was a globe trotter, having made four trips around the world.

Postmaster Patten announces that mails of the following dates—Melbourne, Aug. 5; Sydney, Aug. 6, and Honolulu, Aug. 10—which arrived at San Francisco per steamer Sonoma, were dispatched east on Aug. 25, and are due in New York today.

Education Notes.

There will be a meeting of the Board of Education probably on next Wednesday. The regular meeting will be held on Sept. 10.

It will cost $4,102,090 to put the new teachers' salary law into effect in 1920. This amount will be divided among 20,971 women and 3,200 men teachers. The increase, when it goes into full effect, will be above $12,000,000.

The National Education Association will issue soon a report on teachers' salaries and salary schedules.

The residents of Rosedale, in the southeastern portion of Queens, are demanding a school building for the children of the town. Letters have been addressed to Governor Smith, State Commissioner of Education Finley, and the Board of Regents, asking that Rosedale, which has about 1,500 population, be provided with a public school. Mayor Hylan will be requested to grant a hearing on the subject. An appeal will be presented to the Board of Estimate. Borough President Connolly of Queens will be asked to aid. The case will be presented to the Board of Education and to George J. Ryan, the member from Queens. The Board of Education promised to do something in the matter, but so far has done nothing.

Superintendent of School Buildings Snyder has asked for $1,000,000 for 1920 to put the school houses into suitable shape.

William H. Chatfield, Assistant Director of Attendance, has asked that $151,760 be allowed in 1920 for 130 additional attendance officers, for school census work, and for enforcing the new compulsory education law.

The school budget estimate for 1920 calls for the appointment of forty teachers in vocational schools to fill vacancies at a cost of $59,076 under the new schedules and for thirty-eight additional teachers at $53,031.

New vocational schools for the Bronx and Richmond have been requested by Director Loey. He has asked for a $500 bonus to the salary of his chief co-ordinator. President Prall says that the bonus is a canard, and that a man of special ability should be placed in a separate schedule on a suitable salary.

SEE GAIN FOR JUDGE IN TAMMANY ATTACK

SCHNEIDER MAKES REPLY

Friends of Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Newburger expressed satisfaction yesterday over the statement issued by the Tammany Hall executive committee explaining why a renomination had been refused. The fact that Tammany had found it necessary to make any explanation whatever, they declared, showed that the Tammany leaders were alarmed over the fight being made by independent Democrats to have Justice Newburger re-elected.

Leaders of the Judiciary party, which will have an emblem opposite the Justice's name on the official election ballot, said they were having no difficulty in obtaining signatures to the petition placing the name of Justice Newburger, as well as that of City Court Judge Richard H. Smith, who also was rejected by Tammany, on the ballot. Three thousand signatures are required for such a petition, and those in charge of its circulation declared that several thousand more names than are necessary would be obtained. Among the signers, it was said, were many organization Democrats, who resent the way both Justice Newburger and Judge Smith were treated.

"For the first time in its history Tammany Hall has found it necessary to explain to the voters of New York why a renomination was refused to one of its own members," said County Clerk William F. Schneider, leader of the movement to re-elect Justice Newburger and Judge Smith. "Evidently the criticisms leveled at its action by the general public, as well as the widespread discontent among its own people, has cut deep and aroused a feeling of insecurity. In no other way can the statements appearing in today's papers be explained.

Tammany Lawyers Know Record.

"They ascribe five reasons for their refusal to renominate Justice Newburger and not a single reason for Judge Smith's turndown. The first and most important reason assigned for Justice Newburger's turndown is that 'his official record is bad.' Let us examine this statement made by that grand young man, John R. Voorhis, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, and incidentally President of the Board of Elections. Certainly this statement might have come with better grace from some of the prominent lawyers within Tammany circles. Was this alleged 'bad record' not known to the Tammany lawyers whose names appeared on the petition issued by the Bar Association putting Justice Newburger in nomination in the Democratic primaries?"

At the head of the committee, Mr. Schneider explained, were the names of Senator James A. Foley, the Tammany candidate for Surrogate; John Godfrey Saxe, Chairman of the Tammany Law Committee; Morgan J. O'Brien, former presiding Justice of the Appellate Division and former associate of Justice Newburger on the Supreme Court Bench; David Leventritt, De Lancey Nicoll, and John B. Stanchfield. "They must have known the legal capabilities of Justice Newburger," Mr. Schneider said, "for they have practiced before him for many years."

Regarding the table submitted by the Tammany Executive Committee, showing the number of times Justice Newburger has been reversed in comparison with four other Justices, Mr. Schneider made this comment:

"Is the comparison fair in view of the fact that Justice Newburger has presided over 5,000 trials and has passed on over 10,000 motions, and out of this tremendous number of legal questions, involving every conceivable line of action at law, they can find only seventy-six reversals or modifications? Certainly the number is infinitesimal.

"They speak of the non-indorsement of Tammany Judges by the Republican Party. In 1892 the Republicans indorsed Justice Giegerich, a Tammany Judge; in 1901, Morgan J. O'Brien; in 1905, Justice Newburger, and again in 1906, Justice Giegerich; in 1910, Justice Delehanty for the City Court bench, and the same Justice in 1913 for the Supreme Court.

Age Not Always a Bar.

"Justice Newburger's age is given as one of the reasons for non-designation. Why did not this bar apply to Justice Dugro in 1914, whose age at that time was 64, who can serve only part of his term and who has served over twenty-eight years on the bench? The man who presented the resolutions in the Tammany Executive Committee is John R. Voorhis, who is in his ninetieth year, with a sound and clear mind. Age is not always taken into consideration by Tammany, for Mr. Voorhis is President of the Board of Elections, a Tammany nomination, and was 89 years old on his last birthday.

"They advise Justice Newburger to seek solace by accepting the office of Official Referee at the end of his present term. This office is as important as a judgeship, and if he is unfit to be a judge he is equally unfit to be a referee. The reasons given by Tammany do not satisfy the public. Which Tammany leader will take his party and the public into his confidence and tell us the real reason?"

Several Tammany leaders yesterday criticised Charles F. Murphy for allowing the statement attacking Justice Newburger to be made public. The attack, they said, was bound to react upon the organization by forcing all of the Justice's friends and others to come to his defense.

NEGRO TO OPPOSE WOMAN.

Miss Marguerite L. Smith, daughter of Dr. J. Gardner Smith, President of the Harlem Board of Commerce, of 21 West 122d Street, has been nominated by the Republicans for Assembly in the Nineteenth Assembly District. This district embraces a large part of the negro section of Harlem, and negroes in the northern section of the district will place in the field as an opposition independent Republican candidate to Miss Smith the Rev. R. M. Bolden, a negro minister. Friends of Miss Smith are confident that she will obtain enough support from both whites and negroes to win at the primaries.

Miss Smith is a teacher of hygiene and physical training and supervisor of club work in the Horace Mann School of Columbia University. For thirteen years she attended the New York Collegiate Institute, from which she was graduated with honors in 1912. She then entered Teachers College at Columbia to prepare herself for vocational training. At college she was captain of the basket ball team, catcher on the baseball team, and President of the Athletic Association of Teachers College. In the Summer of 1918 during the college conference at Silver Bay, Lake George, she was chairman of recreation, having under her leadership 800 girls from colleges all over the country. During the war she was active in patriotic drives, and for two years has been Chairman of Red Cross Auxiliary No. 56, which sent large quantities of serviceable things to France. She is captain of two groups of girl scouts, and is one of the original Camp Fire Girls of America.

Miss Smith has announced that she stands for better housing conditions and reduction of exorbitant rents; Government control of profiteering and regulation of the high cost of living; encouragement of law and order leagues, and the extension of physical training in public and private schools.

CHARGES FRAUD IN BONDS.

An attachment granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Hendrick against the property of R. Dillingham, also known as George B. Austin, discloses an alleged plan to defraud brokers in the purchase of Liberty bonds. The plaintiffs are Mabon & Co., who on Aug. 14 sold a man representing himself to be R. Dillingham, conducting the Dillingham Manufacturing Company, at 500 Fifth Avenue, Liberty bonds worth $3,029. He gave a check on the Bank of the United States, which was not paid on the ground that the General Motors Corporation has a claim against the account on the ground of fraud.

An affidavit by Victor McLean Day, law clerk for Rumsey & Morgan, counsel for the plaintiff, stated that "Dillingham" was not known at 500 Fifth Avenue, although he had filed a certificate in the County Clerk's office on Aug. 11 as doing business under that name there. Mr. Day said his investigation showed that the defendant bought $1,700 bonds on Aug. 14 from Kardos & Co. under the name of George B. Austin of the George B. Austin Manufacturing Company of 241 West Thirty-seventh Street, which is not known there, and bought $3,000 worth from Shippee & Rawson under the name of Austin. The latter two purchases were not delivered because the checks given for them were not paid.

TO GIVE BRITISH CROSSES.

Air Commodore Seeks to Present Decorations That Have Been Decorations Awarded.

The Air Service Division of the United States Army asked yesterday that the widest publicity be given to the request of the British Air Attaché, Air Commodore L. E. O. Charlton, C. B., C. M. G., D. S. O., with reference to certain officers of both the British and American armies who have not yet received the decorations which have been awarded to them.

Commodore Charlton asks that all Royal Air Force officers and men of other ranks now resident in the United States or its overseas possessions who have had an award of the Distinguished Flying Cross or the Air Force Cross, and who are not yet in possession of it, should communicate with him without delay at the British Embassy, Washington, D. C., in order that arrangements may be made for the due presentation of the decorations.

The above also applies to officers late of the Aviation Service, (Army or Navy) of the United States, who are similarly entitled but who are demobilized, therefore not necessarily in communication with the authorities in the matter.

STIRRING UP CHURCHMEN.

Episcopalians to be Urged on Nov. 16 to Awaken to Their Duties.

A concentrated drive to bring communicants of the Episcopal Church throughout the country face to face with church duties and responsibilities was decided upon at a conference in the Church Missions House, in which leaders of the Every Name and Nation-wide campaigns participated. It was decided that the nation-wide campaign would not be postponed and would begin early in December.

Troops of visitors are being organized to the end that on Nov. 16 every one whose name appears on the roster of the various parishes in the New York diocese will be visited and urged from the patriotic and religious standpoints to "awaken to the opportunities of the Church" in the new era following the termination of the war. It was announced that what is going forward in the New York parish is being duplicated in eighty-three out of eighty-six dioceses throughout the nation.

FREES TURNSTILE JUMPERS.

Magistrate O'Neill, in the Coney Island Court yesterday, decided the case of the three men who, as members of the Borough Park Civic Association to test the legality of the 10-cent fare to Coney Island on May 11 last, refused to pay a second 5 cents, and jumped over the turnstile where the extra fare is collected.

When the case came before Magistrate O'Neill, he said he would not pass upon the legality of the 10-cent fare, but only on the question of whether jumping over the turnstile was disorderly conduct. He decided yesterday that their act was not disorderly and discharged the three men, Samuel Kaufman of 1,254 Forty-first Street, David Garrson of 1,362 Forty-sixth Street, and Samuel Soacki of 1,411 Forty-first Street, all of Brooklyn.

WANT FRENCH TESTAMENTS.

"M. Ferdinand Cattelain, a young French Protestant now in this country, has brought a special message from the Bible Society of France, requesting from the American Bible Society the immediate shipment of 20,000 French New Testaments. M. Cattelain declares that the interest of the French people in the Bible has been intensified to a remarkable degree by the visit of millions of allied soldiers, each with a copy of the Testament. The appeal of our national leaders to the American people to supply the men of the army and navy with Testaments as an essential to morals has had a marked effect on the people of France in arousing interest in the Bible.

"The American Bible Society is taking immediate steps to raise the funds to meet the urgent need of the French Bible Society."

4 YOUTHS HELD IN ROBBERY.

Accused of Stealing $7,000 in Bonds from Stationers.

Charged with robbing the office of Stewart, Warren & Co., stationers, at 129 Lafayette Street, on Aug. 9, four youths were arrested early yesterday morning. The prisoners said they were Anthony Votta of 78 Mulberry Street, Albert Espito of 120 Mulberry Street and his brother Patrick of the same address, and Frank Dinnella of 84 Chrystie Street. The Espito brothers were routed from their beds by the detectives and Votta and Dinnella were arrested in the street near their homes.

According to the detectives, the four prisoners when taken to Police Headquarters admitted they broke into the office of the stationery firm on the eighth floor of the Lafayette Street building on the night the safe of the company was blown open and bonds valued at $7,000 taken.

"MR. UNKNOWN" GIVES $500.

Annual Contribution to Lutherans Brings Total to $15,000.

At the office of the American Lutheran Publicity Bureau, in the Hartford Building, Union Square, word was received that "Mr. Unknown," so named because his name has never been learned, called Thursday for the twenty-third time at the office of the Treasurer of the Commission for Work Amongst the Colored People as conducted by the Evangelical Lutheran Synodical Conference of North America. "Mr. Unknown" brought with him twenty-five new $20 greenbacks as this year's contribution. Since his first anonymous call in 1896 "Mr. Unknown" has contributed a total sum of $15,000 on his annual visits. The Lutheran Synodical Conference maintains forty-nine mission congregations where the Gospel is preached almost exclusively to colored people.

PICKS ON CHINA TO DOWN M'COOEY

OPPOSES WILSON'S LEAGUE

Declares for Principles of World Uplift in Election to Name County Officials.

The "People's Independent Party" yesterday entered the political field in Brooklyn and injected a number of new and original local issues into the county primary campaign. These included the rescue of China from Japan, the freeing of Ireland, India, and Egypt, and the amending of the present League of Nations. Even the "democracy" of Russia was taken under the protecting wing of the new party in its declaration of principles.

The "People's Independent Party" is an outgrowth of the Independence League. Records Commissioner Edmund O'Connor had largely to do with the resurrection. The league was devoted simply to municipal ownership, but Mr. O'Connor's new party will not be thus restricted in its uplift work for the people of Brooklyn. In entering a ticket in the primaries for the county nominations it has thrust into the background as puerile and vapid the question of McCooey's leadership and has spread before the enrolled Democratic electorate of the borough issues which it considers to be of more vital importance and interest to voters who are to choose candidates for Sheriff, County Clerk, and so forth.

The new party sets forth fourteen points in its argument to show why its candidates should be nominated and elected to the offices now held by McCooey's men in Brooklyn. At the outset, it agrees with Senator Lodge that it cannot support President Wilson's League of Nations "without reservations or amendments." Then the people of the United States should not be used to "rivet the chains of Japanese monarchial despotism on 400,000,000 citizens of the Chinese Republic," or to rivet like fetters, only of English make, on the citizens of the "Irish republic" and the hundreds of millions of India, Egypt, and other parts of the earth."

"We denounce the illegal use of our troops against the democracy of Russia," says the new party; "favor such changes in the income tax law as will result in a reasonable limitation of incomes, and in the inheritance tax law as will result in a reasonable limitation of individual inheritances. Also, we favor the adoption of the woman's suffrage amendment, and believe that the army of the United States should be at least as democratic as those of Switzerland, Australia, and France.

"We demand that Congress pass an amnesty bill, pardoning all military prisoners now under sentence for military offenses, and furthermore, we demand that the present archaic court martial law be repealed. We urge the passage of the bill granting six months' pay to all discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. We believe in old age pensions, favor the initiative, referendum and recall and the complete restoration of freedom of speech, of assemblage and the press. We approve the Torrens land registration law and believe that the question of what constitutes injurious beverages should not be left to prejudiced fanatics. We denounce the attempt of Governor Smith and Public Service Commissioner Nixon to aid the street railways in their efforts to extort additional fares."

It was learned last night that in the list of new issues raised in the local primary campaign no mention was made of the Armenian sufferers, the plebiscite in Schleswig-Holstein, the Peru-Bolivia boundary dispute or the actors' strike.

WOMEN REPUBLICANS TO AID

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Women of Port Chester, Rye, and Harrison have organized a Women's Republican Club following the recent organization of a Women's Democratic Club.

The Membership Committee of the new club consists of Mrs. George P. Putnam, Mrs. Francis Fletcher Palmer, Mrs. Everett L. Crawford, Mrs. Joseph Park, Mrs. Basil Harris, Mrs. Louis J. Snyder, Mrs. Frederick Tanner, Mrs. William J. Tingue, Mrs. W. P. Sellars, and Mrs. Wilford Carle.

A nominating committee to select officers for approval at the next meeting includes Mrs. George Barnes, Mrs. A. W. Putnam, Mrs. Geoffrey Parsons, Mrs. W. W. Peake, and Mrs. Charles B. Young. Meetings are being arranged to instruct voters on the coming election.

Grandson of Pulaski with Prince Lubomirski's Party.

Prince Casimir Lubomirski, Polish Minister Plenipotentiary, who is on his way from Poland to take up his duties in Washington, is expected to arrive in New York early next week, it was announced yesterday at the Polish Consulate here. He was at the head of the State Council in Poland during the German régime, a body which carried on the administrative affairs of the country under the rule of the German Army.

In the official party is Francis Pulaski, grandson of General Pulaski of American Revolution fame, who will act as First Secretary of the legation. The Second Secretary is a Jew, Mr. Berenson, and the Polish authorities here point to his presence in the legation as a proof that the Poles are not as hostile to the Jews as is currently reported. Berenson was formerly a lawyer in Warsaw.

The Prince's party will go to Washington as soon as he has visited the consulate here and looked over its progress. The New York consulate, which numbers about 200 members, has been busily engaged since its inception in attending to the affairs of Poles in this country.

There are about 4,000,000 in the United States, 400,000 living in New York State, and 130,000 in this city. They are besieging the consulate with requests for information about relatives in Poland, and other matters.

Calder Plans Daylight Saving.

Senator William A. Calder yesterday announced his intention of urging the Board of Aldermen of New York to pass a resolution directing that the public schools and places of business open and close an hour earlier in the months from May to October. If the Chamber of Commerce, banks, and other organizations agree to this, Senator Calder says, "we can have a daylight saving bill all to ourselves without touching the clock."

Strange Bird Alights at Bellevue.

A big brown bird dashed against the wall of the main building at Bellevue Hospital yesterday and dropped to the lawn stunned. Special Officer George O'Neil, going to pick it up, was attacked and nipped on the hand, but succeeded in overpowering it. The bird, which stands two and one-half feet high and has a wing spread of three feet, was caged. O'Neil thinks it escaped from a zoological park or a ship recently arrived from the tropics.
